Pact Gives Peiping Control Of Tibet

Chinese Reds Gain Military Stranglehold

Plan For 2 Lamas Suggests Partition

TOKYO, May 27 (AP)—Red China announced with much fanfare today a sweeping treaty for the "liberation" of Tibet—but which, if effective, gives it a military stranglehold on that gateway to India.

The terms called for control of Tibet's national defenses by the Red army. They also featured a sly Red attempt to divide the country by establishment of a Chinese as a rival of the ruling Dalai Lama.

Peiping radio rolled out a flood-tide of words on just how Red China "will certainly help the Tibetan people in wiping out the influence of imperialism in Tibet."

A note of uncertainty on just how Tibet will accept its "liberation" was detected in a statement issued by China's army commander-in-chief, Chu Teh:

Treaty Signed May 23

"It is hoped that the local government of Tibet will carry out the agreement on the measures for the peaceful liberation of Tibet in earnest and do all it can to help the People's Liberation Army (Communist) march into Tibet."

By the treaty, Tibet became a military district of Red China under a Red general's command the moment the treaty was signed—May 23.

By Peiping's own account:

Red troops will stay in that "roof of the world" land—about the size of France and Germany — which they invaded last fall.

(As monitored in San Francisco, this treaty provision read bluntly: "The local government of Tibet shall actively assist the People's Liberation (Communist) Army to enter Tibet and consolidate the national defenses.")

Tibetan troops will be integrated in the Red army.

Red China takes over Tibet's foreign affairs and trade.

Tibet will banish "imperialistic influence and revert to Red China."

There also was a hint that Tibet would be partitioned between rival lamas.

Shrewd Attempt At Partition

One treaty provision was that the status and power of the Dalai Lama would continue unmodified. With his government of priests, the Dalai Lama fled Lhasa at the outset of the Communist invasion. He went to Yatung on the Indian border.

But the treaty promised to establish the Panchen Lama. The present claimant is a Chinese who has never been in Tibet.

Chinese Red plans for two lamas suggest a shrewd attempt at partition.

The Dalai Lama has long been the temporal and spiritual leader of all Tibet. The current Panchen Lama sought to take over spiritual leadership but never was able to gain power so long as the Dalai Lama remained in Lhasa.

Dollar Interests Slated To Reject Sawyer Proposal

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Sawyer proposed today that disputed stock in the $68,000,000 American President Lines be sold to the highest bidder; but the R. Stanley Dollar interests promptly indicated they would reject the suggestion.

Sawyer made his proposal in a personal letter to Dollar, on the eve of possible Supreme Court action in the case. Sawyer and eight other officials are appealing to the highest court from a contempt of court citation by the U. S. Court of Appeals here.

The lower court told Sawyer and the others to deliver the stock to Dollar, as it had ordered previously, or go to jail. Chief Justice Vinson has stayed the contempt order pending the appeal to the Supreme Court.

Both the government and the Dollar interests claim ownership of the stock.

Sawyer wrote Dollar today suggesting that the stock be sold, reducing a long and bitter court fight to the issue of who gets the cash from the sale. He said this would "free the practical business operation (of the big steamship line) from the annoyance, burden and handicap of the litigation."

Lincoln Ellsworth, Antarctic Explorer, Heart Attack Victim

NEW YORK, May 27 (AP)—Explorer Lincoln Ellsworth (above), who claimed 381,000 square miles of Antarctica for the United States in 1939, died at his hotel last night.

His attorney said Ellsworth, 71, died of "a sudden heart attack" at the Hotel Carlyle, where he lived.

Ellsworth's wife, Mary Louise, was with him when he died.

Ellsworth conquered both the North Pole and the Antarctic.

His last major trip of exploration was a flight into the interior of Antarctica in 1939, when he made the territorial claim for the United States.

Austin Rejects Appeal By Red Propagandists

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., May 27 (AP) — Warren Austin, chief U. S. delegate to the United Nations, advised Communist peace propagandists tonight to go peddle their papers in Moscow and Peiping.

He used more diplomatic language. But that was the main idea in a long letter he wrote to Frederick Joliot-Curie, French atom scientist and Communist leader. The U. S. delegation made the text public here at about the same time the letter was due to reach Joliot-Curie in Paris.

Austin's letter answered an appeal from the French scientist to support appearance of a delegation from the Communist-dominated world Peace Council before the U. N. to argue its program. The council recently framed a new Soviet-inspired "peace program" in Berlin.

"If your delegation honestly desires to make a contribution to peace," Austin wrote, "I suggest that it visit Moscow and urge the Soviet ruling circle to abide by the (U. N.) charter and the other international agreements to which it is pledged.

"Your delegation could then proceed to Peiping, and urge the ruling circle there to end the aggression in Korea, withdraw its forces, and let the Korean people organize the independent, unified and democratic nation the U. N. seeks for them.

"In Moscow, you could urge the leaders of World Communism to abandon their declared aims of taking over other people's countries by the well-known totalitrian tactics which led Hitler to disaster. x x x"

Worker Chopped To Bits, Cremated

EVERETT, Wash., May 27 (AP) — A 59-year-old pulp plant workman was chopped to bits and then cremated today in a gruesome industrial accident.

Coroner Ken Baker said the victim, Verner Emanuel Frisk, apparently lost his balance and fell to a moving conveyor which carried waste wood through a multiple-knived chopper and then into a furnace where the shredded wood was burned for fuel.

U. S. Air Force Chief Today's Probe Witness

Vandenberg Faces Close Questioning

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP) — Gen. Hoyt. Vandenberg comes up tomorrow as the fifth witness in the MacArthur investigation, to give an airman's view on the ouster of the Far East commander.

With the stand of the high command in general — and of the Army in particular — already in the huge record of the hearings, all signs point to close questioning of the Air Force chief of staff on the proposal to carry the aerial war across the Korean border into Manchuria.

That was a cardinal item in the war plan which Gen. Douglas MacArthur urged so openly and persistently he was fired for it.

MacArthur's contention was that more aggressive tactics — including air operations to deny the Communist aggressors "sanctuary" behind the frontier, use of Chinese Nationalist troops from Formosa for a second front, and a blockade of the China coast — were the way out of a "stalemate" to victory.

Truman Took Risk

The White House and Defense Department view is that such widening of the Korean war carries little if any promise of succeeding better than present strategy, and does carry a grave threat of bringing on World War III.

Sen. Taf (R-Ohio) said today that "President Truman took the risk of a third world war when he moved into Korea."

The Senate GOP policy leader disagreed with Gen. Omar Bradley's testimony that military disclosures in the investigation might incite Russia to war.

"If we are weak anywhere, the Russians know it already," he said on NBC's television program, "Meet The Press."

"I don't think the Russians will go to war," he stated, but added that he believes the administration's foreign policy "risks war at every moment."

Four Witnesses In 19 Days

While members of the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees, jointly investigating the MacArthur ouster, readied questions for Vandenberg's appearance (9 a. m. EST), some of them suggested the lawmakers ought to agree on a target before they shoot inquiries at many more witnesses.

Although the closed-door inquiry is on its 19th day, only four witnesses have been heard and Armed Services Chairman Russell (D-Ga) said committeemen have "asked that about 100 witnesses be heard."

All of this caused Sen. Hunt (D-Wyo), one of the 26 committeemen, to tell a reporter "so far, we have not even formally decided what we're trying to do."

"Apparently no one doubts the authority of President Truman to relieve Gen. MacArthur, including the General himself," Hunt said. "I doubt that anybody seriously believes we could put the General back in his various commands."

Woman And Young Boy Found Slain On Beach

GULFPORT, Miss., May 27 (AP) — The brutally beaten bodies of an expectant mother and a young boy were found on the Gulf of Mexico beach today.

Sheriff Laze Quave said the woman, an attractive brunette between 25 and 30, was found lying face down in the surf clad only in brassiere and panties. The body of a boy, about seven or eight years old, was 100 yards away.

A coroner's jury called the deaths homicide.

Lone Survivor Of British Lost Battalion Is Rescued

WESTERN FRONT, Korea, May 27 (AP)—Help reached Britain's lost First Battalion of the Gloucestershire Regiment — but it came a month too late for all but one dazed and unbelieving survivor.

He was Private Lionel Essex, English rifleman who crawled away from the scene of massacre the night of April 25 and hid with a kindly Korean family for 33 days. A Greek patrol found him last night in a pouring rainstorm.

With the exception of the 49 men who fought their way back from the trap last month, he is the only known survivor of some 600 Britishers who battled for two days after they were surrounded by two Chinese corps.

The rest of the battalion, except for some who must have been taken prisoner were also found today—still lying in the hill trap or scooped into shallow graves by the Chinese.

At the foot of the hill was the wreckage of the battalion—vehicles and equipment—burned trucks, wrecked bren gun carriers, scattered ammunition and smashed machine guns.

All over the area were the mute symbols that are found on any battlefield—the empty helmet and the crumpled cloth caps of the dead.

Private Essex, who had been shot in the arm and leg by the Chinese, was rushed into the medics for evacuation.

Family Of Marine Officer Rescued In Korea

Italians Swarm To Polls To Vote In City Elections

Heavy Early Turnout Hailed By Anti-Reds

ROME, May 27 (AP)—The first of ten million electors in 28 provinces trooped to the polls in large numbers today in Italy's crucial municipal elections — an out-and-out struggle between Communists and anti-Communists.

Calm and order marked the balloting. Not one incident was reported from the 2,735 cities and towns picking municipal and provincial councils in today's voting.

Despite cloudy skies, rain and threats of rain, a good early vote was reported from the workers' districts of the industrial north, including the metropolis of Milan, surrounding towns and the important port city of Genoa, Bologna and Venice. Communist administrations now run Venice, Bologna and Genoa. Italy's Communist Party, claiming 2,500,000 members, is the largest outside Russia.

Anti-Reds "Encouraged"

At Milan, a key city because of its size and importance, the forces of Premier Alcide De Gasperi, head of the majority Christian Democrat Party, viewed the early vote as "encouraging." The Christian Democrats are allied with the Republicans, Liberals and Free Socialists in an anti-Communist coalition in most of the municipalities.

In the election campaign, in which Premier De Gasperi took a leading part, the Christian Democrats called on the voters to oust the Communist municipal governments in the 1,170 cities and towns where they are in power and return these communities "to the Italians."

Basing their predictions on the parliamentary elections of April, 1948, when the Communists were soundly whipped, Christian Democrat forecasters have expected victory if there was a large turnout of voters.

Church Major Factor

The famous Italian conductor, Arturo Toscanini, and Ildefonso Cardinal Schuster were among the early voters in Milan.

As in Italy's 1948 elections, which held the attention of chancellories of the world for days, the Catholic church has been a major factor in the past campaign.

In a final campaign cry, the Communists—largest Red party outside of Russia — urged the electors to "beware of x x x clerical propaganda." The Communist paper L'Unita charged that although campaigning was forbidden in the 48 hours before the polls opened the final campaign meetings would be in the churches this morning.

Plane, Flipped Over By Wind Gust, Crashes

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 27 (AP) —A light plane, flipped over in the air by a guest of wind, crashed near Hulman airport today and killed an aeronautics instructor.

Sgt. Edwin L. Robb, 29, instructor at Rose Polytechnic Institute here, was found dead in the wreckage of the two-place plane.

Runaway Box Car Hits Parked Autos; One Killed, 13 Hurt

LOS ANGELES, May 27 (AP) —A runaway box car rammed into a line of parked automobiles today, killing a 26-year-old housewife and injuring 13 other persons.

Firemen worked three hours to free many of the injured from the tangled wreckage. Four cars were completely demolished.

The freight car broke loose at a railroad yard. Gathering speed, it careened more than two miles and narrowly missed accident time and again.

Brakeman Waldo A. Brown rode the runaway, yelling warnings. He tried to set the brakes but nothing happened.

Dr. Koerner, 78, Bitter Anti-Red, Wins In Austria

VIENNA, May 27 (AP)—Dr. Theodor Koerner, 78, a grandfatherly veteran Socialist who is a bitter anti-Communist, was elected president of the Austrian republic tonight.

Koerner was named president for six years in a neck-and-neck runoff election in which a Conservative opposed him. The tally announced by the interior ministry tonight was:

Koerner, 2,172,806 votes.

Dr. Heinrich Gleissner, 58, a civil servant and life-long member of the People's Party, 2,004,290.

Koerner is a white-haired former general in the old Austro-Hungarian Imperial Army. He has been a life-long Socialist and fighter for the working man. Since the war he has been lord mayor of Vienna.

He succeeds another Socialist, the late Dr. Karl Renner, who died last New Year's Eve. Like Renner, Koerner is pro-Western. He disowned the Communists, who decided to vote for him after their own candidate had failed to get more than five per cent in the first presidential election May 6.

Blamey, Australian War Hero, Dies At 67

SYDNEY, Australia, May 27 (AP)—Field Marshal Sir Thomas Blamey, mastermind of Australia's toughest military campaigns in two world wars, died today in Heidelberg military hospital after nearly a year of illness. He was 67.

During World War II, Blamey was commander in chief of Allied land forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur and gained much of the credit for stopping the Japanese armies at the very doorstep of Australia.

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies announced in Canberra that the late Field Marshal will be buried with full military honors in a state funeral Wednesday afternoon.

U. N. Plane Crashes

SEOUL, May 27 (AP) — A United Nations plane crashed today shortly after taking off from Seoul city airfield but the seven passengers escaped injury.

The co-pilot, Walter Ristau, Seattle, Wash., was rushed by helicopter to a hospital.

Conciliatory Gesture Is Made By Anglo-Iranian Oil Company

TEHRAN, Iran, May 27 (AP) — The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company made a conciliatory gesture today by offering to send its resident manager to listen in at one meeting only of the oil nationalization board.

The billion dollar British company thus replied by half measures to the Iranian ultimatum that it help carry out its own nationalization by Wednesday or be taken over without consultation.

Members of the oil board declared AIOC's appeal yesterday to the International Court of Justice to appoint an arbitrator in the world-shaking dispute was "ridiculous" and the "desperate act of a drowning man."

Mass Meetings Called

"The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company no longer exists," said one member.

Communist front organizations called mass meetings throughout the country for Tuesday "to fight imperialistic oil companies."

All these moves seemed to presage a new crisis for wispy Premier Mohammed Mossadegh — a crisis in which westerners here saw a possible coup d'etat growing out of the present instability as the greatest danger.

Supporting AIOC's appeal to the world court at the Hague, the British government reserved the right to take measures to preserve her present status in Iran. The government owns 53 per cent of AIOC. If Britain moved her parachute troops, presently destined for Cyprus in the Eastern Mediterranean, into Southern Iran to protect her property and nationals Russia might make a similar move in the north.

Premier Needs Finances

Mossadegh, holed up in the parliament building for 14 days for fear of the same assassination fate that met former Premier Ali Razmara, was in a precarious financial state. His government is living on a hand-to-mouth budget because its oil royalties stopped with passage of the nationalization law 25 days ago.

Meanwhile, some of his fanatical followers are getting uneasy and are pointing out that though he fathered the nationalization law and has been premier for four weeks the AIOC maintains its private operations unmolested.

Gen. Collins In Paris

PARIS, May 27 (AP)—Gen. J. Lawton Collins, U. S. Army Chief of Staff, arrived here today for a two-week inspection tour of Europe.

Yanks Land In Germany Amid Cheers

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, May 27 (AP)—A former German who survived Hitler's concentration camps led 1,300 American soldiers ashore here today to begin a big reinforcement of U. S. troops guarding Western Europe.

They were part of the Fourth Infantry Division, the first to arrive of four new American divisions being sent to Germany to bolster this Western defense line afainst the threat of Communist attack.

Top commanders of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's North Atlantic Command welcomed the troops as they marched off the U. S. transport General Patch to the cheers of a waiting crowd.

Grimly Earnest Air

"You come to preserve the peace," said Gen. Alphonse Juin of France, commander of all Allied army forces in the central sector of Europe.

The first enlisted man ashore was German-born Pvt. Edwin Sternberg, Richmond, Va. His Jewish birth cost him four years in a concentration camp. Emigrating to America after the war he was drafted and sent back to his homeland as a soldier.

Despite the blaring band and the glittering pennants which decorated the big U. S. port here, there was a grimly earnest air about the troops as they poured off the ship in a drizzling rain.

Greeted By Top Brass

They stood stiffly at attention in military formation before an imposing array of generals who flew here to greet them.

"We and our allies are here to maintain a secure military foundation for the protection of Germany and all Western Europe," they were told by Gen. Thomas T. Handy, commander of all U. S. forces in Europe.

Third Division Halted Reds After Dramatic Night Ride

TOKYO, May 27 (AP)—Now it can be told how the U. S. Third Division took a midnight ride and made the greatest flying tackle of the Korean war.

Two Republic of Korea divisions collapsed on the east-central front at the outset of the Reds' ill-fated mid-May offensive. The fighting Third, under Maj. Gen. Robert Soule, then put the flying tackle on 25,000 Chinese Communists racing southward.

Censorship today permitted identification of the Third as the division which prevented the Reds from making the most of a tremendous breakthrough.

Here's what happened:

On Wednesday May 16, the Chinese smacked into the east-central front with 125,000 men.

The biggest blow hit the U. S. Second Division, east of Chunchon, and two ROK divisions on the Second's right (east) flank.

The ROK divisions were routed. Chinese streamed southward.

An emergency call went out for the Third Division—in reserve on the western front.

The division answered with a dramatic, 70-mile ride across the peninsula.

The Third Division hit the line near Soksa, 18 miles inland from the east coast. Repeated bloody engagements completely stalled the amazed Reds. Members of the enemy units had fought the Third on the western front early in May and had not expected it to show up on the east.

Pincer Snaps Shut On Many Fleeing Reds

Hundreds Of Enemy Troops Surrender

TOKYO, Monday, May 28 (AP) — Allied forces surged back into Hwachon seven miles inside North Korea Sunday and seized two other road centers in lightning pincer thrusts. Central escape corridors were slammed shut on thousands of demoralized Communist troops.

Chinese abandoned huge supply dumps on both the central and east-central fronts as they ran for their lives.

Field dispatches said scores of disorganized groups of Reds surrendered in "unprecedented numbers" throughout the day to United Nations rear-line outfits.

The U. S. Eighth Army reported in its Monday mid-morning communique that more than 2,000 Chinese surrendered northwest of Chunchon on the central front.

Yanks Capture Inje

Two U. S. Second Division armored forces within one half hour bottled up both north and south ends of an important escape route into North Korea for thousands of Chinese. With only slight opposition they seized the road junction of Inje, four miles north of the 38th parallel and Hyon, four miles south of the prewar boundary.

The swift movement caught the tag end of a large Red column streaking north through Hyon. Allied artillery, machine guns and small arms slaughtered the trapped column, a pooled field dispatch reported.

The Red column was estimated to number between 5,000 and 10,000.

Inje is 28 miles inland from the east coast, Hyon 25 miles.

Farther east the U. S. Third Division was disclosed in action for the first time in the current offensive. Last week it had plugged a dangerous gap in Allied lines at Soksa and now was sweeping northward across the Naerichon River near the parallel.

On the extreme east coast South Korean Capitol Division troops were back in Yangyang, eight miles north of 38.

Pincer Arms Snap Shut

The mounting debacle to Chinese and North Korean troops across the entire 125-mile Korean front led some high officers to estimate it would take three months or more for the Reds to mount any new offensive.

American, Dutch and French troops, spearheaded by tanks and backed by mobile artillery, took after the retreating Reds.

The northern arm of the Second Division pincer closed in on Inje at 4 p. m., Sunday. The southern arm snapped shut at 4:30 p. m.

In the center of the slowly compressing trap, South Korean forces moved forward through a mountainous sector reported swarming with Communist stragglers in groups of three to 60.

"Apparently no one doubts the authority of President Truman to relieve Gen. MacArthur, including the General himself," Hunt said. "I doubt that anybody seriously believes we could put the General back in his various commands."

Woman And Young Boy Found Slain On Beach

GULFPORT, Miss., May 27 (AP) — The brutally beaten bodies of an expectant mother and a young boy were found on the Gulf of Mexico beach today.

Sheriff Laze Quave said the woman, an attractive brunette between 25 and 30, was found lying face down in the surf clad only in brassiere and panties. The body of a boy, about seven or eight years old, was 100 yards away.

A coroner's jury called the deaths homicide.

Family Of Marine Officer Rescued In Korea

Italians Swarm To Polls To Vote In City Elections

Heavy Early Turnout Hailed By Anti-Reds

ROME, May 27 (AP)—The first of ten million electors in 28 provinces trooped to the polls in large numbers today in Italy's crucial municipal elections — an out-and-out struggle between Communists and anti-Communists.

Calm and order marked the balloting. Not one incident was reported from the 2,735 cities and towns picking municipal and provincial councils in today's voting.

Despite cloudy skies, rain and threats of rain, a good early vote was reported from the workers' districts of the industrial north, including the metropolis of Milan, surrounding towns and the important port city of Genoa, Bologna and Venice. Communist administrations now run Venice, Bologna and Genoa. Italy's Communist Party, claiming 2,500,000 members, is the largest outside Russia.

Anti-Reds "Encouraged"

At Milan, a key city because of its size and importance, the forces of Premier Alcide De Gasperi, head of the majority Christian Democrat Party, viewed the early vote as "encouraging." The Christian Democrats are allied with the Republicans, Liberals and Free Socialists in an anti-Communist coalition in most of the municipalities.

In the election campaign, in which Premier De Gasperi took a leading part, the Christian Democrats called on the voters to oust the Communist municipal governments in the 1,170 cities and towns where they are in power and return these communities "to the Italians."

Basing their predictions on the parliamentary elections of April, 1948, when the Communists were soundly whipped, Christian Democrat forecasters have expected victory if there was a large turnout of voters.

Church Major Factor

The famous Italian conductor, Arturo Toscanini, and Ildefonso Cardinal Schuster were among the early voters in Milan.

As in Italy's 1948 elections, which held the attention of chancellories of the world for days, the Catholic church has been a major factor in the past campaign.

In a final campaign cry, the Communists—largest Red party outside of Russia — urged the electors to "beware of x x x clerical propaganda." The Communist paper L'Unita charged that although campaigning was forbidden in the 48 hours before the polls opened the final campaign meetings would be in the churches this morning.

Plane, Flipped Over By Wind Gust, Crashes

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 27 (AP) —A light plane, flipped over in the air by a guest of wind, crashed near Hulman airport today and killed an aeronautics instructor.

Sgt. Edwin L. Robb, 29, instructor at Rose Polytechnic Institute here, was found dead in the wreckage of the two-place plane.

Runaway Box Car Hits Parked Autos; One Killed, 13 Hurt

LOS ANGELES, May 27 (AP) —A runaway box car rammed into a line of parked automobiles today, killing a 26-year-old housewife and injuring 13 other persons.

Firemen worked three hours to free many of the injured from the tangled wreckage. Four cars were completely demolished.

The freight car broke loose at a railroad yard. Gathering speed, it careened more than two miles and narrowly missed accident time and again.

Dr. Koerner, 78, Bitter Anti-Red, Wins In Austria

VIENNA, May 27 (AP)—Dr. Theodor Koerner, 78, a grandfatherly veteran Socialist who is a bitter anti-Communist, was elected president of the Austrian republic tonight.

Koerner was named president for six years in a neck-and-neck runoff election in which a Conservative opposed him. The tally announced by the interior ministry tonight was:

Koerner, 2,172,806 votes.

Dr. Heinrich Gleissner, 58, a civil servant and life-long member of the People's Party, 2,004,290.

Koerner is a white-haired former general in the old Austro-Hungarian Imperial Army. He has been a life-long Socialist and fighter for the working man. Since the war he has been lord mayor of Vienna.

He succeeds another Socialist, the late Dr. Karl Renner, who died last New Year's Eve. Like Renner, Koerner is pro-Western. He disowned the Communists, who decided to vote for him after their own candidate had failed to get more than five per cent in the first presidential election May 6.

Blamey, Australian War Hero, Dies At 67

SYDNEY, Australia, May 27 (AP)—Field Marshal Sir Thomas Blamey, mastermind of Australia's toughest military campaigns in two world wars, died today in Heidelberg military hospital after nearly a year of illness. He was 67.

During World War II, Blamey was commander in chief of Allied land forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur and gained much of the credit for stopping the Japanese armies at the very doorstep of Australia.

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies announced in Canberra that the late Field Marshal will be buried with full military honors in a state funeral Wednesday afternoon.

U. N. Plane Crashes

SEOUL, May 27 (AP) — A United Nations plane crashed today shortly after taking off from Seoul city airfield but the seven passengers escaped injury.

The co-pilot, Walter Ristau, Seattle, Wash., was rushed by helicopter to a hospital.

Conciliatory Gesture Is Made By Anglo-Iranian Oil Company

TEHRAN, Iran, May 27 (AP) — The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company made a conciliatory gesture today by offering to send its resident manager to listen in at one meeting only of the oil nationalization board.

The billion dollar British company thus replied by half measures to the Iranian ultimatum that it help carry out its own nationalization by Wednesday or be taken over without consultation.

Members of the oil board declared AIOC's appeal yesterday to the International Court of Justice to appoint an arbitrator in the world-shaking dispute was "ridiculous" and the "desperate act of a drowning man."

Mass Meetings Called

"The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company no longer exists," said one member.

Communist front organizations called mass meetings throughout the country for Tuesday "to fight imperialistic oil companies."

All these moves seemed to presage a new crisis for wispy Premier Mohammed Mossadegh — a crisis in which westerners here saw a possible coup d'etat growing out of the present instability as the greatest danger.

Supporting AIOC's appeal to the world court at the Hague, the British government reserved the right to take measures to preserve her present status in Iran. The government owns 53 per cent of AIOC. If Britain moved her parachute troops, presently destined for Cyprus in the Eastern Mediterranean, into Southern Iran to protect her property and nationals Russia might make a similar move in the north.

Premier Needs Finances

Mossadegh, holed up in the parliament building for 14 days for fear of the same assassination fate that met former Premier Ali Razmara, was in a precarious financial state. His government is living on a hand-to-mouth budget because its oil royalties stopped with passage of the nationalization law 25 days ago.

Meanwhile, some of his fanatical followers are getting uneasy and are pointing out that though he fathered the nationalization law and has been premier for four weeks the AIOC maintains its private operations unmolested.

Gen. Collins In Paris

Yanks Land In Germany Amid Cheers

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, May 27 (AP)—A former German who survived Hitler's concentration camps led 1,300 American soldiers ashore here today to begin a big reinforcement of U. S. troops guarding Western Europe.

They were part of the Fourth Infantry Division, the first to arrive of four new American divisions being sent to Germany to bolster this Western defense line afainst the threat of Communist attack.

Top commanders of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's North Atlantic Command welcomed the troops as they marched off the U. S. transport General Patch to the cheers of a waiting crowd.

Grimly Earnest Air

"You come to preserve the peace," said Gen. Alphonse Juin of France, commander of all Allied army forces in the central sector of Europe.

The first enlisted man ashore was German-born Pvt. Edwin Sternberg, Richmond, Va. His Jewish birth cost him four years in a concentration camp. Emigrating to America after the war he was drafted and sent back to his homeland as a soldier.

Despite the blaring band and the glittering pennants which decorated the big U. S. port here, there was a grimly earnest air about the troops as they poured off the ship in a drizzling rain.

Greeted By Top Brass

They stood stiffly at attention in military formation before an imposing array of generals who flew here to greet them.

"We and our allies are here to maintain a secure military foundation for the protection of Germany and all Western Europe," they were told by Gen. Thomas T. Handy, commander of all U. S. forces in Europe.

Third Division Halted Reds After Dramatic Night Ride

TOKYO, May 27 (AP)—Now it can be told how the U. S. Third Division took a midnight ride and made the greatest flying tackle of the Korean war.

Two Republic of Korea divisions collapsed on the east-central front at the outset of the Reds' ill-fated mid-May offensive. The fighting Third, under Maj. Gen. Robert Soule, then put the flying tackle on 25,000 Chinese Communists racing southward.

Censorship today permitted identification of the Third as the division which prevented the Reds from making the most of a tremendous breakthrough.

Here's what happened:

On Wednesday May 16, the Chinese smacked into the east-central front with 125,000 men.

The biggest blow hit the U. S. Second Division, east of Chunchon, and two ROK divisions on the Second's right (east) flank.

The ROK divisions were routed. Chinese streamed southward.

An emergency call went out for the Third Division—in reserve on the western front.

The division answered with a dramatic, 70-mile ride across the peninsula.

The Third Division hit the line near Soksa, 18 miles inland from the east coast. Repeated bloody engagements completely stalled the amazed Reds. Members of the enemy units had fought the Third on the western front early in May and had not expected it to show up on the east.

Lone Survivor Of British Lost Battalion Is Rescued

WESTERN FRONT, Korea, May 27 (AP)—Help reached Britain's lost First Battalion of the Gloucestershire Regiment — but it came a month too late for all but one dazed and unbelieving survivor.

He was Private Lionel Essex, English rifleman who crawled away from the scene of massacre the night of April 25 and hid with a kindly Korean family for 33 days. A Greek patrol found him last night in a pouring rainstorm.

With the exception of the 49 men who fought their way back from the trap last month, he is the only known survivor of some 600 Britishers who battled for two days after they were surrounded by two Chinese corps.

The rest of the battalion, except for some who must have been taken prisoner were also found today—still lying in the hill trap or scooped into shallow graves by the Chinese.

At the foot of the hill was the wreckage of the battalion—vehicles and equipment—burned trucks, wrecked bren gun carriers, scattered ammunition and smashed machine guns.

All over the area were the mute symbols that are found on any battlefield—the empty helmet and the crumpled cloth caps of the dead.

Private Essex, who had been shot in the arm and leg by the Chinese, was rushed into the medics for evacuation.

Hundreds Of Enemy Troops Surrender

TOKYO, Monday, May 28 (AP) — Allied forces surged back into Hwachon seven miles inside North Korea Sunday and seized two other road centers in lightning pincer thrusts. Central escape corridors were slammed shut on thousands of demoralized Communist troops.

Chinese abandoned huge supply dumps on both the central and east-central fronts as they ran for their lives.

Field dispatches said scores of disorganized groups of Reds surrendered in "unprecedented numbers" throughout the day to United Nations rear-line outfits.

The U. S. Eighth Army reported in its Monday mid-morning communique that more than 2,000 Chinese surrendered northwest of Chunchon on the central front.

Yanks Capture Inje

Two U. S. Second Division armored forces within one half hour bottled up both north and south ends of an important escape route into North Korea for thousands of Chinese. With only slight opposition they seized the road junction of Inje, four miles north of the 38th parallel and Hyon, four miles south of the prewar boundary.

The swift movement caught the tag end of a large Red column streaking north through Hyon. Allied artillery, machine guns and small arms slaughtered the trapped column, a pooled field dispatch reported.

The Red column was estimated to number between 5,000 and 10,000.

Inje is 28 miles inland from the east coast, Hyon 25 miles.

Farther east the U. S. Third Division was disclosed in action for the first time in the current offensive. Last week it had plugged a dangerous gap in Allied lines at Soksa and now was sweeping northward across the Naerichon River near the parallel.

On the extreme east coast South Korean Capitol Division troops were back in Yangyang, eight miles north of 38.

Pincer Arms Snap Shut

The mounting debacle to Chinese and North Korean troops across the entire 125-mile Korean front led some high officers to estimate it would take three months or more for the Reds to mount any new offensive.

American, Dutch and French troops, spearheaded by tanks and backed by mobile artillery, took after the retreating Reds.

The northern arm of the Second Division pincer closed in on Inje at 4 p. m., Sunday. The southern arm snapped shut at 4:30 p. m.

In the center of the slowly compressing trap, South Korean forces moved forward through a mountainous sector reported swarming with Communist stragglers in groups of three to 60.

McKeldin Stand On Teacher Pay Hike Unchanged

HAGERSTOWN, Md., 27 (AP) — Addresses by Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin and Sen. Richard M. Nixon (R-Calif.) highlighted the annual convention of Maryland's Federation of Young Republicans.

Before concluding their meeting here yesterday, the group adopted a resolution endorsing McKeldin for the 1952 Republican presidential nomination.

In his talk, the Governor repeated his stand that counties are responsible for boosting the pay of school teachers. He supported his veto of a bill providing for an annual pay hike of $500 for Maryland school teachers by arguing that the state is responsible only for seeing that minimum salary standards are supported.

At their business meeting, the Young Republicans elected Paul Marshall, of Montgomery County, as state chairman. National committee posts went to William Kreyhenbohn, Hagerstown, and Grace Hildreth, Baltimore.

The federation also approved giving 18-year-olds voting privileges and holding congressional hearings in public. An amendment to except matters involving national security was referred to committee.

Sen. Nixon told the group that the administration has no policy to end the Korean war.

He called for the resignations of Secretary of State Dean Acheson and of "those persons in the State Department who first made a mistake in judging the character of the Chinese Communist movement."

Transit Strikers Vote To Stay Out

DETROIT, May 27 (AP) — Detroit transit drivers, facing a court showdown tomorrow in their record 37-day strike, voted today to stay out until their demands are met.

Approximately 1,000 of the 3,500 strikers, at a mass meeting, stood, shouted and stamped their feet when asked "how many of you want to stick this out until we win our demands?"

The speaker, Frank X. Martel, president of the Detroit and Wayne County Federation of Labor (AFL), earlier had asked a show of hands of men willing to go back to work. No hands were raised.

Presiding Circuit Judge Ira W. Jayne tomorrow is to conduct a show cause hearing on a request of the city for an injunction to prevent the union from interfering with a resumption of operations.

Dual Mishap On Turnpike

Roland C. Herring, 26, U. S. Navy, of Mechanicsville, Iowa, is in critical condition in Dr. Timmons Hospital, Bedford, Pa., following a highway accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike about 12 miles east of Bedford. He suffered a possible fractured skull and lacerations. Pennsylvania State Police last night said the mishape occurred about 4 p. m.

Herring, on leave, was traveling east and ran into the left rear end of a tractor-trailer operated by Nick Mazzie, Easton, Pa. Police said he was thrown from the car which continued on down the turnpike about 100 feet crashing through a guard rail.

At about 2:45 p. m. yesterday another accident occurred in almost the same locale. Glenn R. Manevall, Newport, Pa., was treated at the scene by a passing physician. Police said the driver was caught in a heavy rainstorm and ran the car up the side of a bank, turned over and holled several times. About $1,000 damage was reported. He received lacerations. The same physician treated Herring prior to his admittance to the Bedford hospital.

New Haven Railroad President Succumbs

GROTON, Mass., May 27 (AP)—Frederic C. Dumaine, president of the New Haven Railroad and long one of New England's outstanding financial figures, died today at his home. He was 85.

Always moving behind the scenes and ever shy of publicity, the shrewd Yankee trader in millions played a vital role in three major phases of New England industry. He had been in good health, considering his years, and made three trips a week to his Boston office.

No bluestocking Bostonian, Dumaine was born in the little town of Hadley and when only 11 years old took a job to help support his widowed mother. He rose to front rank in the textiles, railroad and fishing industries.

Draft Test, On Whole, Fair, Students Agree

BALTIMORE, May 27 (AP)—Some thought it was a breeze, some thought it was a bit rough, but most thought it was, on the whole, a fair examination.

That seemed to be the range of reaction reported in Maryland today on the aptitude and knowledge test which will help determine which college students will continue in school and which will be drafted into the army.

Approximately 2,000 students in Maryland sweated over the 150 questions in the "Selective Service qualification" test yesterday.

Fourteen colleges acted as test centers.

Interracial Net Match Stopped At Baltimore

BALTIMORE, May 27 (AP)—Park board police today stopped a tennis meet between the Fort Meade and Baltimore Tennis Club teams when they learned it was to be an interracial event.

The meet was scheduled for 11 a. m. at Druid Hill Park, which has separate facilities for negroes and whites.

Charles A. Hook, superintendent of city parks, said it is park board policy not to permit mixed play. He added there was "nothing else for us to do" but order the teams not to play, under threat of arrest.

Aviation Leader Dies

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 27 (AP)—Albert Henry Near, 54, director of Louisville airports and a national aviation leader, died today. He suffered a cerebral hemorrhage Wednesday.

Armistice Conference

TEL AVIV, Israel, May 27 (AP)—The Israeli-Syrian mixed armistice commission will meet tomorrow near the border to discuss terms for settling the dispute between the two countries, it was learned officially today.

SUSIE Q. SMITH By Linda and Jerry Walter

"For you, Susie!"

DiSalle Defends Beef Rollback

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP) — Price Director Michael V. DiSalle said today "we are bringing the price of beef back within the reach of people."

He defended his recent price rollback order and scoffed at a cattleman's charge that the whole program "is a hoax on the American people."

DiSalle appeared with Joe G. Montague, general counsel of the Texas South-Western Cattle Raiser's Association, on television.

Also putting DiSalle's rollback order on the pan was Herschel D. Newsom, master of the National Grange. The farm organization leader argued that price controls should be eliminated unless they are accompanied by rationing. Newsom and Sen. Maybank (D-SC) appeared in a radio interview.

"If we are going to have price stabilization, we have got to control the price of beef," DiSalle said. Beef, he added, increased 50 per cent in price since January, 1950.

$10,000 Suit Set For Trial

A $10,000 damage, resulting from a woman tenant's fall on the stairway in a Hagerstown apartment house, has been docketed for trial today in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Frances Gilpin Brown filed the suit last December 27 in Washington County Circuit Court against D. Webster Groh, Jr., Edison Y. Groh, Garland E. Groh and R. Eleanor Warrenfoltz, all of Hagerstown. She contended that on or about last November 28 she fell down a stairway in an apartment building owned by the defendants at 20 West Franklin Street. She said the hallway was in almost total darkness and she caught her heel in a rubber tread which was torn and shredded.

The suit was removed to Allegany County Circuit Court after defense attorneys made such a request March 20. The plaintiff is represented by Attorneys Paul Ottinger and Ernest V. Wachs, both of Hagerstown, and Edward J. Ryan. Attorneys for the defendants are Leo H. Miller and Edwin H. Miller, both of Hagerstown, and W. Earle Cobey.

McKeldin Stand On Teacher Pay Hike Unchanged

HAGERSTOWN, Md., 27 (AP) — Addresses by Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin and Sen. Richard M. Nixon (R-Calif.) highlighted the annual convention of Maryland's Federation of Young Republicans.

Before concluding their meeting here yesterday, the group adopted a resolution endorsing McKeldin for the 1952 Republican presidential nomination.

In his talk, the Governor repeated his stand that counties are responsible for boosting the pay of school teachers. He supported his veto of a bill providing for an annual pay hike of $500 for Maryland school teachers by arguing that the state is responsible only for seeing that minimum salary standards are supported.

At their business meeting, the Young Republicans elected Paul Marshall, of Montgomery County, as state chairman. National committee posts went to William Kreyhenbohn, Hagerstown, and Grace Hildreth, Baltimore.

The federation also approved giving 18-year-olds voting privileges and holding congressional hearings in public. An amendment to except matters involving national security was referred to committee.

Sen. Nixon told the group that the administration has no policy to end the Korean war.

He called for the resignations of Secretary of State Dean Acheson and of "those persons in the State Department who first made a mistake in judging the character of the Chinese Communist movement."

Transit Strikers Vote To Stay Out

DETROIT, May 27 (AP) — Detroit transit drivers, facing a court showdown tomorrow in their record 37-day strike, voted today to stay out until their demands are met.

Approximately 1,000 of the 3,500 strikers, at a mass meeting, stood, shouted and stamped their feet when asked "how many of you want to stick this out until we win our demands?"

The speaker, Frank X. Martel, president of the Detroit and Wayne County Federation of Labor (AFL), earlier had asked a show of hands of men willing to go back to work. No hands were raised.

Presiding Circuit Judge Ira W. Jayne tomorrow is to conduct a show cause hearing on a request of the city for an injunction to prevent the union from interfering with a resumption of operations.

Dual Mishap On Turnpike

Roland C. Herring, 26, U. S. Navy, of Mechanicsville, Iowa, is in critical condition in Dr. Timmons Hospital, Bedford, Pa., following a highway accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike about 12 miles east of Bedford. He suffered a possible fractured skull and lacerations. Pennsylvania State Police last night said the mishape occurred about 4 p. m.

Herring, on leave, was traveling east and ran into the left rear end of a tractor-trailer operated by Nick Mazzie, Easton, Pa. Police said he was thrown from the car which continued on down the turnpike about 100 feet crashing through a guard rail.

At about 2:45 p. m. yesterday another accident occurred in almost the same locale. Glenn R. Manevall, Newport, Pa., was treated at the scene by a passing physician. Police said the driver was caught in a heavy rainstorm and ran the car up the side of a bank, turned over and holled several times. About $1,000 damage was reported. He received lacerations. The same physician treated Herring prior to his admittance to the Bedford hospital.

New Haven Railroad President Succumbs

GROTON, Mass., May 27 (AP)—Frederic C. Dumaine, president of the New Haven Railroad and long one of New England's outstanding financial figures, died today at his home. He was 85.

Always moving behind the scenes and ever shy of publicity, the shrewd Yankee trader in millions played a vital role in three major phases of New England industry. He had been in good health, considering his years, and made three trips a week to his Boston office.

No bluestocking Bostonian, Dumaine was born in the little town of Hadley and when only 11 years old took a job to help support his widowed mother. He rose to front rank in the textiles, railroad and fishing industries.

Draft Test, On Whole, Fair, Students Agree

BALTIMORE, May 27 (AP)—Some thought it was a breeze, some thought it was a bit rough, but most thought it was, on the whole, a fair examination.

That seemed to be the range of reaction reported in Maryland today on the aptitude and knowledge test which will help determine which college students will continue in school and which will be drafted into the army.

Approximately 2,000 students in Maryland sweated over the 150 questions in the "Selective Service qualification" test yesterday.

Fourteen colleges acted as test centers.

Interracial Net Match Stopped At Baltimore

BALTIMORE, May 27 (AP)—Park board police today stopped a tennis meet between the Fort Meade and Baltimore Tennis Club teams when they learned it was to be an interracial event.

The meet was scheduled for 11 a. m. at Druid Hill Park, which has separate facilities for negroes and whites.

Charles A. Hook, superintendent of city parks, said it is park board policy not to permit mixed play. He added there was "nothing else for us to do" but order the teams not to play, under threat of arrest.

Aviation Leader Dies

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 27 (AP)—Albert Henry Near, 54, director of Louisville airports and a national aviation leader, died today. He suffered a cerebral hemorrhage Wednesday.

Armistice Conference

TEL AVIV, Israel, May 27 (AP)—The Israeli-Syrian mixed armistice commission will meet tomorrow near the border to discuss terms for settling the dispute between the two countries, it was learned officially today.

DiSalle Defends Beef Rollback

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP) — Price Director Michael V. DiSalle said today "we are bringing the price of beef back within the reach of people."

He defended his recent price rollback order and scoffed at a cattleman's charge that the whole program "is a hoax on the American people."

DiSalle appeared with Joe G. Montague, general counsel of the Texas South-Western Cattle Raiser's Association, on television.

Also putting DiSalle's rollback order on the pan was Herschel D. Newsom, master of the National Grange. The farm organization leader argued that price controls should be eliminated unless they are accompanied by rationing. Newsom and Sen. Maybank (D-SC) appeared in a radio interview.

She received boot training at Great Lakes, Ill.

Housing Project Planned At Mapleside May Be Curtailed

The low-rent housing project planned for Mapleside is in serious danger of not being constructed in the event the Senate passes a bill similar to the one approved in the House on May 4 cutting the appropriations on public housing projects.

A time deadline faces the Cumberland Housing Authority, James B. Raines, director, explained yesterday. The project must have proceed orders by June 30 in order to come under the bill's provision.

This means that the Negro housing project of 30 apartments planned on Frederick Street could not possibly be ready by June 30, Raines said.

Yearly Limit Fixed

House Bill 3880 passed May 4 will limit future public housing construction to 5,000 dwelling units per year in the nation.

Exempted from this bill, if a similar one is passed by the Senate, will be those projects under construction or those that have proceed orders for construction.

Raines and Thomas B. Finan, attorney to the Housing Authority, said that plans are expected to be completed by June 6 by the engineers and architect.

Between then and June 30, much has to be done by the Housing Authority under the bill.

Bids are expected to be advertised on June 6 when the plans are ready. In all fairness, Raines pointed out, the bidders on the job in Mapleside should have at least two weeks to prepare their estimates.

Must Get Approval

The final bids then must be forwarded to the regional Public Housing Administration in Philadelphia for approval.

It was indicated that there is a chance that the local project will not meet the deadline because of a number of possible delays.

During the next fiscal year, starting July 1, only 5,000 units will be allotted in the United States. One project in a large city would take up this number.

The housing project picture nationwide shows 38,670 units under construction; 98,860 under final contract, of which sites have been purchased for 62,930 units; 140,580 under preliminary loan contract, and 23,421 units under reservation.

Beall Answered Protest

In answer to a protest by Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, Rep. J. Glenn Beall, who voted for the bill, stated he felt that the cut in appropriations for public housing "would in no way interfere with Cumberland or any other community whose authorization has been approved."

Housing authority spokesmen clarified the picture by pointing out that the preliminary studies on the Mapleside project have been made and approved, and authorization was given to go ahead with the acquisition of property.

However, the bill reads that "proceed orders" on actual construction after the contract has been awarded must be had by June 30.

Y Camp Program To Begin June 26

The sixth annual Central YMCA day camp will be held over a six-week period beginning June 26 and ending August 3, according to Van Roby, camp director and physical instructor at the Y.

Registration will be held each day at the YMCA at 9 a. m. and the schedule ends at 4 p. m.

Commissions Of Inquiry

Congress faces a decision before September 1 on whether to continue the current investigation of interstate crime and if so under what auspices. Three alternative methods of pursuing the inquiry have been suggested. They are further extension of the present Senate investigating committee, which expires three months hence; creation of a new joint Senate-House committee for surveillance of crime conditions; enactment of legislation to establish a permanent Federal Crime Commission in the executive branch of the government.

Transfer of the inquiry to a presidentially-appointed commission is the method preferred by the present Crime Investigating Committee. In a report, May 1, it recommended creation of such a commission, which, in addition to keeping track of criminal operations, would have the duty of suggesting legislation for better law enforcement at all levels of government, conducting social studies in these fields, and maintaining a clearing house of information on criminal activities.

All except one of the five members of the committee joined in this recommendation. The lone dissenter, Sen. Wiley (R., Wis.), is opposed to both an executive commission and a congressional watchdog committee. He sees the proposed watchdog committee only as an instrument for harrassing such agencies as the FBI, the Secret Service, and the Narcotics Bureau in the performance of their duties, and believes there is no need to put any "super-duper crime commission" over them.

The question whether inquiry into a given national problem can be better conducted by a congressional committe or by an executive commission has often been raised in the past. It again arises both in the crime investigation and in troubles of the commission appointed by the President, with Admiral Nimitz at its head, to investigate and report on questions of internal security and individual rights.

Eight members of the Nimitz commission resigned in a body after a House-passed resolution to exempt it from the "conflict of interest" laws was shelved by the Senate Judiciary Committee. These laws forbid any person employed by the government to do business with it until two years after termination of his service. This prohibition has customarily been lifted both for presidential commissions and for staff members of congressional investigating committees. But the Senate Judiciary Committee has established a subcommittee of its own members to investigate internal security, with an appropriation of $75,000, and does not look with favor on competition from a presidentially-appointed commission.

Like the royal commissions used in Great Britain and Canada to study and recommend solutions to national problems, presidential commissions in the United States have frequently rendered valuable service. Yet many of them have encountered obstruction from the Legislative Branch.

A denial of further appropriations brought an end to the work of President Taft's Commission on Economy and Efficiency in 1913. The Taft commission is credited, among other things, with laying foundations for the present federal budget system. One of the most notable commissions of American history—Theodore Roosevelt's National Conservation Commission, headed by Gifford Pinchot— had similarly been terminated in 1909.

Two commissions which were less successful in winning public acceptance of their recommendations were the Commission on Law Enforcement and Observance, appointed by President Hoover in 1929, and the Committee on Civil Rights, appointed by President Truman in 1946. Hoover himself voiced "serious objections" to recommendations on prohibition of his Law Enforcement commission when submitting them to Congress.

The recent Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch, under Hoover's chairmanship, has had about half its recommendations accepted and put into effect. It was a mixed legislative-executive body of the type which may ultimately be accepted as successor to the Senate's Crime Investigating Committee.

What Next?

Considering the confused state of the government's economic controls program and the uncertain manner in which it is being administered, it is not strange that Congress cannot decide what to do about it. The present law expires June 30—and at the moment it is a toss-up whether Congress will abandon the whole thing or pass a new bill which will be either broader or more narrow than the law now in force.

Because the American people are constitutionally opposed to regimentation, it is perhaps natural that every group should have a complaint to make against the system under which the nation's economy has been operating for several months. Labor, industry, farmers, stock raisers and just ordinary consumers are all in a fault-finding mood and are putting all possible heat on members of Congress.

Labor is seeking further cracks in the wage ceiling, industry wants changes in the distribution of scarce materials, farmers demand higher prices for their produce and householders are fretting under a steadily mounting cost of living. To reconcile these conflicting viewpoints is now the job before Congress.

It is a job that is becoming more difficult day by day. The public remains unconvinced that if the more drastic controls advocated by President Truman are applied, a day will ever arrive that will see the Administration consent to their removal.

Fight On Cancer Gains

There is a paradox in the report of the American Cancer Society on progress of the fight on cancer last year. The report estimates 70,000 persons were saved from cancer and possibly cured. An additional 70,000 persons might have been saved had their cancers been detected and treated earlier, according to the report. The fight on cancer definitely is making progress.

But cancer deaths numbering 210,000 reached a new high last year, which is not so good. But the increase in cancer deaths is attributed largely to the fact that more people are living to the ages when cancer becomes more common—that is, to increased longevity—and to more accurate diagnosis which lists deaths as caused by cancer which might have been attributed to other causes in former years.

Progress in the fight on cancer is being made in the fields of X-ray, radium and surgery. The 70,000 persons saved from cancer last year probably will not have a recurrence of cancer, society officials said, basing their opinion on past experience. But five years must go by without a recurrence before cancer is considered cured.

How To Keep Well

Procaine Eases Pain

Procaine, an anesthetic, came into being more than 40 years ago and owes its fame to the fact that it can be introduced under the skin or into the gums and within a few moments the nerves will be deadened. The area becomes so numb that the surgeon or dentist is able to work without producing pain.

Ten years ago physicians began to experiment with the intravenous use of this drug. They injected the solution into a vein and found it was nontoxic and left no unpleasant after effects. This is unusual because most pain relievers and anesthetics are followed by a hangover, interfere with breathing, or fail to relax the muscles. This is not true of procaine. Furthermore, the substance is eliminated rapidly from the system, which is an additional safety measure in case too much is administered.

Pain from an injury such as a sprain or blow subsides within a few moments after the material is injected. One group of industrial surgeons, for example, employed it in 463 cases and were more than pleased with the results. Many of the patients had fractures, joint pains, sprains, sore back, mild fascitis [inflammation], or other disturbances brought on thru trauma. The procaine in the blood has a tendency to leak into the damaged tissues so that the concentration is seven or eight times greater than in normal tissues. In fractures, procaine relieved distress immediately and helped reduce swelling within a day or two. The parts were not completely deadened; the physician could reduce the fracture without resorting to other anesthetics.

In dislocations and sprains there was dramatic improvement and many sufferers were able to bear their weight without wincing. Relief may not be permanent and the injection can be repeated if necessary after 24 to 48 hours. Many do well with one "shot"; should pain return it usually is tolerable. Procaine also has been helpful in certain types of arthritis.

Intravenous procaine has eased itching of the skin and pain of a burn. Here again the involved tissues are more permeable and allow the procaine to diffuse freely into the tissues and anesthetize the nerve endings. In a few instances, the compound has led to temporary relief of muscle spasm in such conditions as cerebral palsy and paralysis agitans. Procaine, combined with tetanus antitoxin, has given good results in experimental work.

Procaine rarely is given intravenously as a substitute for ether or nitrous oxide in surgical operations, but has been utilized in appendicitis and hernia repair. The quantity required for this purpose is too much for routine use. Anesthetists have employed it in conjunction with a general anesthetic. The combination has a tendency to depress the coughing reflex, keep the entire respiratory tract dry, and eliminate the possibility of nausea and vomiting on coming out of the anesthetic. Procaine also has a good influence upon the heart, preventing irregularities. Tho the preparation has toxic effects that are related to the rate of injection, slow administration will avert this difficulty. Furthermore, if a barbituric compound is given prior to the procaine, discomfort of this nature will be combated.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen discusses mumps.

ARTERIOSCLEROSIS

F. G. writes: What foods and drinks are bad for hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

None to my knowledge except those that add weight. There is considerable talk about the role of cholesterol-rich foods in the production of arteriosclerosis but most of this work is based on animal experimentation which is done under unnatural conditions. It is unfair to draw too heavily on these conclusions.

SOME WE DO

H. L. writes: Why can't we have most diseases more than once?

REPLY

Many diseases, such as polio and mumps, confer immunity. Others, like the common cold, often give repeat performances. Still others occur only once but persist because we have no remedy for them. Multiple sclerosis is an example of the chronic type of disease.

SALT BATHS

H. F. writes: Are Epsom salt baths good to remove pus from a finger?

REPLY

Yes, but I have more faith in the hot water than the Epsom salts. Much of the magic power attributed to magnesium sulfate is due to the heat of the bath.

RFC Scandal Faces Symington; Case Involves B. & O. Railroad And Jesse Jones; Railroad Paid Private Debts But Not Government Loan

WASHINGTON — Stuart Symington, the Truman trouble-shooter, has made a good start toward cleaning the barnacles from the politics-ridden Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He may not know it, however, but the most scandalous case in his files involves one of the major railroads of the United States and a member of the Roosevelt Cabinet.

It also involves some of the worst wire-pulling and deliberate deception which this observer has ever seen in Washington.

The railroad is the Baltimore and Ohio, which borrowed $87,000,000 of the taxpayers' money in 1939 with the obligation to pay it back in 1944. Instead, the B. &. O. arranged a deal, with the RFC as a collaborator, by which it went into receivership under the McLaughlin Act.

The Roosevelt Cabinet member was Jesse Jones, onetime Sesretary of Commerce and Federal Loan Administrator.

One of the most interesting aspects of the B. & O. case is that forthright GOP Senator Tobey of New Hampshire, then chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, conducted an investigation of the loan in 1947, but for some strange reason a final report was never published — even though the Republicans were then in control of Congress.

However, the facts are all on record, both before a federal court in Baltimore and in the files of the Banking and Currency Committee

Jesse Takes A Ride

They show that the Baltimore and Ohio took Jesse Jones on a private car to St. Louis while he was returning to Texas for the Christmas holidays in 1943, and on this trip B. & O. Vice President Russell Snodgrass suggested a plan to put the railroad into receivership. Snodgrass even wrote the draft of a letter which he wanted the RFC to send him — a letter which would be the excuse for putting the railroad into a receivership.

And Jesse Jones, sitting back in the private B. & O. car, clicking over the rails to St. Louis, obviously agreed. For the letter was sent, signed by one of Jones' RFC directors, and the railroad thereafter was able to postpone payment of its huge $87,000,000 loan to Uncle Sam.

At that time, the B. & O. was making money. In fact, between 1939 and 1944, it cleared $110,000,000 net profit after taxes.

Siphoning Off Profits

Furthermore, the railroad deliberately paid off $31,000,000 from its net profits in 1943-44 to to buy up B. & O. bonds that didn't mature until between the years 1948 and 2000. The goverment loan meanwhile matured in 1944. Yet the B. & O. management siphoned off money which could have reduced its indebtedness to Uncle Sam, in order to pay private debts not due until much later.

This diversion of money also was done with the consent of Jesse Jones, despite the fact he was then charged with protecting the best interests of the United States government.

Putting these private debts ahead of the government loan, commented the Senate Banking and Currency investigation, "tended to minimize the actual and prospective resources of the B. & O. and thus served to justify the receivership.

"It seems fair to conclude," the senators added, "that without straining, B. & O. could have cut its debt to RFC to about $25,000,000 had it chosen to treat first things first, and to meet its 1944 debt to RFC from the resources it had available."

Part of this inside finagling between Jesse Jones and the B. & O. leaked out when Cassius Clay, a former RFC official, joined the B. & O. as solicitor, then became disgusted with what was going on and supplied information to the Senate committee.

Clay's Confidential Memo

It was Clay who wrote a confidential memo, dated Aug. 1944, telling of the Jesse Jones conversation on the private B. & O. car at which the plot was hatched. Clay, then general solicitor of the railroad, wrote to John Cornwell, a director and general counsel, as follows:

"When Mr. Jesse H. Jones went to Texas for the Christmas holidays, Mr. Snodgrass took him out to St. Louis on one of the B. & O. business cars for the purpose, so I understand, of discussing the matter with Mr. Jones. Not long thereafter Mr. Snodgrass asked me to come to his office to confer. He said that in his view it was necessary for the company to resort to the McLaughlin Act in 1944-45, particularly for the following reasons:

"(1) The fact that the McLaughlin Act expired on November 1, 1945, and the uncertainty as to whether it would be renewed by Congress.

"(2) The second reason which he gave was expressed in this way: 'If we wait beyond 1944, we might lose control of the situation.'

"With regard to Point 1, I said I was not impressed since it seemed to me that it was likely that the McLaughlin Act would be extended regardless of what party was in power after the next election . . . . With regard to Point 2, I said that I did not appreciate that the control of the B. & O. was involved. In expanding his remarks, Mr. Snodgrass said he meant after the election, Mr. Jesse Jones might leave the RFC and the RFC might pass into hands that were less friendly to the B. & O."

Shortly afterward, Clay resigned in disgust. He charged that the petition for receivership was a "fraud" and a "frame-up."

"Fragrant" Deal

Another interesting letter in the B. & O. files was written by Snodgrass exactly four days before the B. & O. filed its second receivership petition in district court in Baltimore in July 1945. The letter was written to Arthur Dean, special counsel for the railroad in handling the receivership. It read:

"Dear Arthur: I am enclosing a copy of a plant and of the bud which we grafted on it with a view to producing a flower, lily white in color, bold in design and seductive in fragrance, instead of the burs and beggar lice which the plant was intended to bear."

Though written in parables, the letter apparently referred to the impending petition. It would seem that Snodgrass was describing the fictitious bankruptcy as "bold in design," yet "producing a flower, lily white in color . . . and seductive in fragrance."

Under testimony, Snodgrass admitted that he was not a botanist and had written the letter in "hyperbole." Presumably Vice President Snodgrass felt that the deal he was putting across was so carefully camouflaged that it would have a fragrant odor to the public, not the nauseating smell which it deserved if all the facts were published.

This is only a part of the history of the second largest loan in RFC history, which has been gathering dust in RFC files, and which new RFC Director Symington now must wrestle with. More on this amazing operation will follow soon.

Opportunities Today

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., May 27—During the past winter many young people have complained to me saying: "There are not as many good opportunities today for young people as there were 50 years ago." Let me answer by saying this complaint is all wrong so far as it applies to those willing to do a good day's work. Here are eight reasons to prove it.

Free Educational Opportunities

(1) Although our United States population has increased from 75,994,575 in 1900 (when I got my first job at $10 per week) to 153,490,000 today, the demand for workers has increased much more. Hence, population figures are in favor of today's young people.

(2) There are many more opportunities for free advanced education than ever before. These include free degree scholarships in all good colleges, very cheap extension correspondence courses in most subjects, and excellent public libraries where one can get a good education by merely systematic reading.

(3) The average young person today will not work hard or for long hours. He wants an "easy job." This gives those few who are glad to work hard and long much better jobs and faster promotions.

What Employers Want

(4) Employers want young workers to have good habits—those who let liquor alone and don't smoke during business hours. As each year fewer job applicants appear to qualify for good habits, those few who do possess them have an advantage.

(5) Those who belong to no labor union also have an advantage in getting good jobs and fast promotions. This gives another opportunity to young people not possessed by elders.

(6) Another advantage young people have today is the ability to borrow money for a home. When I got married it was necessary to put 40 per cent cash down. We could borrow only 60 per cent and only for three to five years. Now, any good couple can borrow 80 per cent or more with payments extended over 20 years. In addition, they today have social security, accident insurance and other benefits which Mrs. Babson and I never had.

(7) As a statistician, I must remind readers of how the country's birth rate will help graduates this coming June. If you were born during the early "thirties" when there was great unemployment and few marriages and babies, you now have not so many to compete with.

(8) The pension plans which are now rapidly increasing not only eliminate the oldsters more rapidly, thus making promotions easier for you, but they also furnish you security in your latter days.

Don't Have Draft Worries

I repeat my previous advice that you go ahead with your plans for college or for getting a job the same as if no war were possible. Congress is acting on universal military training just as I forecast. Moreover, those who are drafted are about as safe as those who stay at home; while the 85 per cent who return will have benefits as veterans, which the non-drafted boys will not have.

One more thought. The question as to whether you will become an employer some day instead of always remaining a wageworker will largely be determined by this simple rule: If you save some money each week, you can some day become an employer. If you don't save money each week, you will always remain a wageworker.

Matter Of Fact

What Do We Want In Korea?

WASHINGTON

The National Security Council, with the concurrence of President Truman, has now at last arrived at a decision of the greatest importance. After endless travail, the National Security Council has decided precisely what the American government wants to achieve in Korea.

What the American government wants is a negotiated settlement of the Korean War, based on the partition of Korea at the 38th Parallel. This is, of course, a minimum objective. And to this objective certain conditions are attached.

One condition is that such a settlement must involve no commitment whatsoever on the status of Formosa or on Communist China's admission into the United Nations. Another condition is that United Nations observers must be freely admitted into North Korea, to make certain that Chinese Communist troops are actually withdrawn. A third probable condition is the establishment of a demilitarized buffer zone along the 38th Parallel.

This National Security Council decision is of the utmost significance in a great many ways. For one thing, such a settlement would be far short of the "victory" which Gen. MacArthur demands, a fact which has all sorts of domestic political implications. But although a settlement on the 38th Parallel would not mean victory for this country, it would certainly mean defeat for the Soviet effort to seize all Korea by force.

Evidence Inconclusive

This raises the obvious question—whether there is any real chance at all of negotiating such a settlement. Here the evidence, while certainly not conclusive, is at least interesting.

About two weeks ago, as first reported in this space, there came the first exceedingly veiled hints of a Soviet willingness to negotiate on Korea. Despite denials, one such hint came from Soviet United Nations delegate Jacob Malik. Another, stronger hint, which carried the implication that the British might act as intermediaries, was conveyed to British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison. And at the same time, the Soviet propaganda line underwent an abrupt change, which has received remarkably little attention in this country.

Previously, the universal Communist line had been that the "American imperialists" must be driven into the sea. Then the Kremlin's Moscow mouthpiece, the newspaper "Pravda," suddenly gave much space to an obscure Senate resolution introduced by Colorado's Sen. Edwin Johnson. This resolution proposed a negotiated ceasefire on the 38th Parallel. Instantly the Western Communist press, and especially the New York "Daily Worker," obviously acting on urgent orders from the Kremlin, began beating the drums for the Johnson resolution.

It is true that the other Kremlin mouthpiece, "Izvestia," mildly disputed "Pravda," asserting that the Johnson resolution was no more than "imperialist camouflage." The Chinese Communist propaganda apparatus had adhered rigidly and exclusively to this line.

Two Stages Required

Even so, the best of the experts take the signs and portents listed above very seriously indeed. These signs and portents at least might mean that the Soviet rulers, since the defeat of the Communist spring offensive, have concluded that Soviet victory in Korea is impossible without world war, and have therefore decided to cut their losses. If so, a settlement will require two stages.

The first stage will be that of secret negotiation with the Soviets —which one official has described as "a process both as clumsy and as delicate as the mating of whales." If—an enormous if—this process is successful, it will then be up to the Soviet rulers to force their Chinese satellites into line. Rightly or wrongly, none of the experts believes that there is the slightest doubt about the Soviet ability to do this. The second, formal stage of negotiation will then start, in which a settlement already arrived at will be publicly ratified.

No one in his senses will predict that anything like the foregoing will actually come to pass. The Soviet hints and the Soviet propaganda switch may be no more than a trap for the unwary. Any one of a number of events, notably an explosion in Iran, or a new Soviet-inspired aggression elsewhere, could rule out the slightest chance of a settlement. Yet, in trying to understand what lies behind all the sound and fury emanating from Washington, it is worth bearing in mind that the most experienced policy makers seriously believe that there is a real chance of a negotiated settlement of the Korean war; and that American policy in Asia is now squarely based on this chance, however slim it may be.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Bipartisanship

The theory of bipartisan commissions and committees in the American system of government is that no one political party, no matter how extensive its majority, shall have sole control. Ours is a two-party system with a recognition by acts of Congress of the rights of minority parties.

The President of the United States is often required by law to appoint members of the minority party to serve on commissions and such bodies. It has become increasingly a habit for the Democratic Administration to select its own Republicans, even some whose relationship to the minority party is remote or dubious.

Now along comes Donald Dawson, presidential secretary, whose explanation to the Fulbright Committee is fascinating:

"Senator Bennett. If the Republican National Committee had known that its recommendations would have received 'every consideration,' can you explain why it was necessary for the two Republicans who by law had to be appointed to the RFC board of directors to receive recommendations from the Democratic National Committee?

"Mr. Dawson. This is a Democratic Administration, Senator. Of course we go to the Democratic National Committee."

That is not the law. The President is not required by law to go to the Democratic National Committee or the Republican National Committee when he needs to choose a Republican. He can find his own. He might even create a Republican. This violates the theory of bipartisanship, but Mr. Dawson, does not. For note this colloquy:

"Senator Bennett....There is this interesting situation: under the law, two of these men must be Republicans. The purpose of the law is to get bipartisanship, true bipartisanship in the management of RFC, but under the circumstances can you have true bipartisanship if the Republican nominees must be cleared with the Democratic National Committee?

"Mr. Dawson. Certainly.

"Senator Bennett. Do you say your idea of bipartisanship is control by the Democratic National Committee?

"Mr. Dawson. That is not what I said at all, and it is not my idea, Senator.

"Senator Bennett. Would you enlighten me a little further, please.

"Mr. Dawson. When you have the Congress setting up an agency to carry out a program of the Administration, it is necessary that the that purpose that the Congress has people that run that agency be for intended the agency, and naturally you could not expect a man to head an agency if he were antagonistic to it."

The queer thing about this statement is that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which is the agency under discussion, is not under the President, but should report to Congress. Its members should not by law, be concerned with the policies of the Administration but should form their own policies independently. This, Donald Dawson, in spite of the fact that he is one of the President's secretaries, apparently did not understand. Senator Bennett put him through the paces:

"Senator Bennett. Is the Administration responsible for administering the RFC?

"Mr. Dawson. I think the President is held responsible for its success.

"Senator Bennett. I understand this is an independent agency, and the President's powers are limited to the appointment of members of the board, subject to confirmation by the Senate. I may be mistaken about that.

"Mr. Dawson. I don't know about those technical features.

"Senator Bennett. But your impression is that it is an Administration agency; and, therefore, the President is responsible.

"In other words, there is no such thing as an independent agency.

"Mr. Dawson. My impression is that the President is held accountable for its success."

This may seem unbelievable to a student of government who knows why the independent agencies were organized and how they are supposed to function. Yet here is the shocking instance of the presidential secretary in charge of personnel, through whose hands pass the names of those whom the President appoints to office, not knowing the difference between a public body that is under the executive branch of government and a public body that is independent of the executive.

I would suggest to the White House that it purchase for the sum of $1 the "United States Government Organization Manual," prepared by the Federal Register Division, National Archives and Records Service of the General Services Administration. This book is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. Beginning on Page 286 and running to Page 457, Donald Dawson will find a detailed account of the independent agencies. It could aid his understanding of our government.

Commissions Of Inquiry

Congress faces a decision before September 1 on whether to continue the current investigation of interstate crime and if so under what auspices. Three alternative methods of pursuing the inquiry have been suggested. They are further extension of the present Senate investigating committee, which expires three months hence; creation of a new joint Senate-House committee for surveillance of crime conditions; enactment of legislation to establish a permanent Federal Crime Commission in the executive branch of the government.

Transfer of the inquiry to a presidentially-appointed commission is the method preferred by the present Crime Investigating Committee. In a report, May 1, it recommended creation of such a commission, which, in addition to keeping track of criminal operations, would have the duty of suggesting legislation for better law enforcement at all levels of government, conducting social studies in these fields, and maintaining a clearing house of information on criminal activities.

All except one of the five members of the committee joined in this recommendation. The lone dissenter, Sen. Wiley (R., Wis.), is opposed to both an executive commission and a congressional watchdog committee. He sees the proposed watchdog committee only as an instrument for harrassing such agencies as the FBI, the Secret Service, and the Narcotics Bureau in the performance of their duties, and believes there is no need to put any "super-duper crime commission" over them.

The question whether inquiry into a given national problem can be better conducted by a congressional committe or by an executive commission has often been raised in the past. It again arises both in the crime investigation and in troubles of the commission appointed by the President, with Admiral Nimitz at its head, to investigate and report on questions of internal security and individual rights.

Eight members of the Nimitz commission resigned in a body after a House-passed resolution to exempt it from the "conflict of interest" laws was shelved by the Senate Judiciary Committee. These laws forbid any person employed by the government to do business with it until two years after termination of his service. This prohibition has customarily been lifted both for presidential commissions and for staff members of congressional investigating committees. But the Senate Judiciary Committee has established a subcommittee of its own members to investigate internal security, with an appropriation of $75,000, and does not look with favor on competition from a presidentially-appointed commission.

Like the royal commissions used in Great Britain and Canada to study and recommend solutions to national problems, presidential commissions in the United States have frequently rendered valuable service. Yet many of them have encountered obstruction from the Legislative Branch.

A denial of further appropriations brought an end to the work of President Taft's Commission on Economy and Efficiency in 1913. The Taft commission is credited, among other things, with laying foundations for the present federal budget system. One of the most notable commissions of American history—Theodore Roosevelt's National Conservation Commission, headed by Gifford Pinchot— had similarly been terminated in 1909.

Two commissions which were less successful in winning public acceptance of their recommendations were the Commission on Law Enforcement and Observance, appointed by President Hoover in 1929, and the Committee on Civil Rights, appointed by President Truman in 1946. Hoover himself voiced "serious objections" to recommendations on prohibition of his Law Enforcement commission when submitting them to Congress.

The recent Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch, under Hoover's chairmanship, has had about half its recommendations accepted and put into effect. It was a mixed legislative-executive body of the type which may ultimately be accepted as successor to the Senate's Crime Investigating Committee.

What Next?

Considering the confused state of the government's economic controls program and the uncertain manner in which it is being administered, it is not strange that Congress cannot decide what to do about it. The present law expires June 30—and at the moment it is a toss-up whether Congress will abandon the whole thing or pass a new bill which will be either broader or more narrow than the law now in force.

Because the American people are constitutionally opposed to regimentation, it is perhaps natural that every group should have a complaint to make against the system under which the nation's economy has been operating for several months. Labor, industry, farmers, stock raisers and just ordinary consumers are all in a fault-finding mood and are putting all possible heat on members of Congress.

Labor is seeking further cracks in the wage ceiling, industry wants changes in the distribution of scarce materials, farmers demand higher prices for their produce and householders are fretting under a steadily mounting cost of living. To reconcile these conflicting viewpoints is now the job before Congress.

It is a job that is becoming more difficult day by day. The public remains unconvinced that if the more drastic controls advocated by President Truman are applied, a day will ever arrive that will see the Administration consent to their removal.

Fight On Cancer Gains

There is a paradox in the report of the American Cancer Society on progress of the fight on cancer last year. The report estimates 70,000 persons were saved from cancer and possibly cured. An additional 70,000 persons might have been saved had their cancers been detected and treated earlier, according to the report. The fight on cancer definitely is making progress.

But cancer deaths numbering 210,000 reached a new high last year, which is not so good. But the increase in cancer deaths is attributed largely to the fact that more people are living to the ages when cancer becomes more common—that is, to increased longevity—and to more accurate diagnosis which lists deaths as caused by cancer which might have been attributed to other causes in former years.

Progress in the fight on cancer is being made in the fields of X-ray, radium and surgery. The 70,000 persons saved from cancer last year probably will not have a recurrence of cancer, society officials said, basing their opinion on past experience. But five years must go by without a recurrence before cancer is considered cured.

How To Keep Well

Procaine Eases Pain

Procaine, an anesthetic, came into being more than 40 years ago and owes its fame to the fact that it can be introduced under the skin or into the gums and within a few moments the nerves will be deadened. The area becomes so numb that the surgeon or dentist is able to work without producing pain.

Ten years ago physicians began to experiment with the intravenous use of this drug. They injected the solution into a vein and found it was nontoxic and left no unpleasant after effects. This is unusual because most pain relievers and anesthetics are followed by a hangover, interfere with breathing, or fail to relax the muscles. This is not true of procaine. Furthermore, the substance is eliminated rapidly from the system, which is an additional safety measure in case too much is administered.

Pain from an injury such as a sprain or blow subsides within a few moments after the material is injected. One group of industrial surgeons, for example, employed it in 463 cases and were more than pleased with the results. Many of the patients had fractures, joint pains, sprains, sore back, mild fascitis [inflammation], or other disturbances brought on thru trauma. The procaine in the blood has a tendency to leak into the damaged tissues so that the concentration is seven or eight times greater than in normal tissues. In fractures, procaine relieved distress immediately and helped reduce swelling within a day or two. The parts were not completely deadened; the physician could reduce the fracture without resorting to other anesthetics.

In dislocations and sprains there was dramatic improvement and many sufferers were able to bear their weight without wincing. Relief may not be permanent and the injection can be repeated if necessary after 24 to 48 hours. Many do well with one "shot"; should pain return it usually is tolerable. Procaine also has been helpful in certain types of arthritis.

Intravenous procaine has eased itching of the skin and pain of a burn. Here again the involved tissues are more permeable and allow the procaine to diffuse freely into the tissues and anesthetize the nerve endings. In a few instances, the compound has led to temporary relief of muscle spasm in such conditions as cerebral palsy and paralysis agitans. Procaine, combined with tetanus antitoxin, has given good results in experimental work.

Procaine rarely is given intravenously as a substitute for ether or nitrous oxide in surgical operations, but has been utilized in appendicitis and hernia repair. The quantity required for this purpose is too much for routine use. Anesthetists have employed it in conjunction with a general anesthetic. The combination has a tendency to depress the coughing reflex, keep the entire respiratory tract dry, and eliminate the possibility of nausea and vomiting on coming out of the anesthetic. Procaine also has a good influence upon the heart, preventing irregularities. Tho the preparation has toxic effects that are related to the rate of injection, slow administration will avert this difficulty. Furthermore, if a barbituric compound is given prior to the procaine, discomfort of this nature will be combated.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen discusses mumps.

ARTERIOSCLEROSIS

F. G. writes: What foods and drinks are bad for hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

None to my knowledge except those that add weight. There is considerable talk about the role of cholesterol-rich foods in the production of arteriosclerosis but most of this work is based on animal experimentation which is done under unnatural conditions. It is unfair to draw too heavily on these conclusions.

SOME WE DO

H. L. writes: Why can't we have most diseases more than once?

REPLY

Many diseases, such as polio and mumps, confer immunity. Others, like the common cold, often give repeat performances. Still others occur only once but persist because we have no remedy for them. Multiple sclerosis is an example of the chronic type of disease.

SALT BATHS

H. F. writes: Are Epsom salt baths good to remove pus from a finger?

REPLY

Yes, but I have more faith in the hot water than the Epsom salts. Much of the magic power attributed to magnesium sulfate is due to the heat of the bath.

NOISY TUMMY

Mrs. R. writes: My stomach is always grumbling. What can I do?

REPLY

Feed it.

RFC Scandal Faces Symington; Case Involves B. & O. Railroad And Jesse Jones; Railroad Paid Private Debts But Not Government Loan

WASHINGTON — Stuart Symington, the Truman trouble-shooter, has made a good start toward cleaning the barnacles from the politics-ridden Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He may not know it, however, but the most scandalous case in his files involves one of the major railroads of the United States and a member of the Roosevelt Cabinet.

It also involves some of the worst wire-pulling and deliberate deception which this observer has ever seen in Washington.

The railroad is the Baltimore and Ohio, which borrowed $87,000,000 of the taxpayers' money in 1939 with the obligation to pay it back in 1944. Instead, the B. &. O. arranged a deal, with the RFC as a collaborator, by which it went into receivership under the McLaughlin Act.

The Roosevelt Cabinet member was Jesse Jones, onetime Sesretary of Commerce and Federal Loan Administrator.

One of the most interesting aspects of the B. & O. case is that forthright GOP Senator Tobey of New Hampshire, then chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, conducted an investigation of the loan in 1947, but for some strange reason a final report was never published — even though the Republicans were then in control of Congress.

However, the facts are all on record, both before a federal court in Baltimore and in the files of the Banking and Currency Committee

Jesse Takes A Ride

They show that the Baltimore and Ohio took Jesse Jones on a private car to St. Louis while he was returning to Texas for the Christmas holidays in 1943, and on this trip B. & O. Vice President Russell Snodgrass suggested a plan to put the railroad into receivership. Snodgrass even wrote the draft of a letter which he wanted the RFC to send him — a letter which would be the excuse for putting the railroad into a receivership.

And Jesse Jones, sitting back in the private B. & O. car, clicking over the rails to St. Louis, obviously agreed. For the letter was sent, signed by one of Jones' RFC directors, and the railroad thereafter was able to postpone payment of its huge $87,000,000 loan to Uncle Sam.

At that time, the B. & O. was making money. In fact, between 1939 and 1944, it cleared $110,000,000 net profit after taxes.

Siphoning Off Profits

Furthermore, the railroad deliberately paid off $31,000,000 from its net profits in 1943-44 to to buy up B. & O. bonds that didn't mature until between the years 1948 and 2000. The goverment loan meanwhile matured in 1944. Yet the B. & O. management siphoned off money which could have reduced its indebtedness to Uncle Sam, in order to pay private debts not due until much later.

This diversion of money also was done with the consent of Jesse Jones, despite the fact he was then charged with protecting the best interests of the United States government.

Putting these private debts ahead of the government loan, commented the Senate Banking and Currency investigation, "tended to minimize the actual and prospective resources of the B. & O. and thus served to justify the receivership.

"It seems fair to conclude," the senators added, "that without straining, B. & O. could have cut its debt to RFC to about $25,000,000 had it chosen to treat first things first, and to meet its 1944 debt to RFC from the resources it had available."

Part of this inside finagling between Jesse Jones and the B. & O. leaked out when Cassius Clay, a former RFC official, joined the B. & O. as solicitor, then became disgusted with what was going on and supplied information to the Senate committee.

Clay's Confidential Memo

It was Clay who wrote a confidential memo, dated Aug. 1944, telling of the Jesse Jones conversation on the private B. & O. car at which the plot was hatched. Clay, then general solicitor of the railroad, wrote to John Cornwell, a director and general counsel, as follows:

"When Mr. Jesse H. Jones went to Texas for the Christmas holidays, Mr. Snodgrass took him out to St. Louis on one of the B. & O. business cars for the purpose, so I understand, of discussing the matter with Mr. Jones. Not long thereafter Mr. Snodgrass asked me to come to his office to confer. He said that in his view it was necessary for the company to resort to the McLaughlin Act in 1944-45, particularly for the following reasons:

"(1) The fact that the McLaughlin Act expired on November 1, 1945, and the uncertainty as to whether it would be renewed by Congress.

"(2) The second reason which he gave was expressed in this way: 'If we wait beyond 1944, we might lose control of the situation.'

"With regard to Point 1, I said I was not impressed since it seemed to me that it was likely that the McLaughlin Act would be extended regardless of what party was in power after the next election . . . . With regard to Point 2, I said that I did not appreciate that the control of the B. & O. was involved. In expanding his remarks, Mr. Snodgrass said he meant after the election, Mr. Jesse Jones might leave the RFC and the RFC might pass into hands that were less friendly to the B. & O."

Shortly afterward, Clay resigned in disgust. He charged that the petition for receivership was a "fraud" and a "frame-up."

"Fragrant" Deal

Another interesting letter in the B. & O. files was written by Snodgrass exactly four days before the B. & O. filed its second receivership petition in district court in Baltimore in July 1945. The letter was written to Arthur Dean, special counsel for the railroad in handling the receivership. It read:

"Dear Arthur: I am enclosing a copy of a plant and of the bud which we grafted on it with a view to producing a flower, lily white in color, bold in design and seductive in fragrance, instead of the burs and beggar lice which the plant was intended to bear."

Though written in parables, the letter apparently referred to the impending petition. It would seem that Snodgrass was describing the fictitious bankruptcy as "bold in design," yet "producing a flower, lily white in color . . . and seductive in fragrance."

Under testimony, Snodgrass admitted that he was not a botanist and had written the letter in "hyperbole." Presumably Vice President Snodgrass felt that the deal he was putting across was so carefully camouflaged that it would have a fragrant odor to the public, not the nauseating smell which it deserved if all the facts were published.

This is only a part of the history of the second largest loan in RFC history, which has been gathering dust in RFC files, and which new RFC Director Symington now must wrestle with. More on this amazing operation will follow soon.

Opportunities Today

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., May 27—During the past winter many young people have complained to me saying: "There are not as many good opportunities today for young people as there were 50 years ago." Let me answer by saying this complaint is all wrong so far as it applies to those willing to do a good day's work. Here are eight reasons to prove it.

Free Educational Opportunities

(1) Although our United States population has increased from 75,994,575 in 1900 (when I got my first job at $10 per week) to 153,490,000 today, the demand for workers has increased much more. Hence, population figures are in favor of today's young people.

(2) There are many more opportunities for free advanced education than ever before. These include free degree scholarships in all good colleges, very cheap extension correspondence courses in most subjects, and excellent public libraries where one can get a good education by merely systematic reading.

(3) The average young person today will not work hard or for long hours. He wants an "easy job." This gives those few who are glad to work hard and long much better jobs and faster promotions.

What Employers Want

(4) Employers want young workers to have good habits—those who let liquor alone and don't smoke during business hours. As each year fewer job applicants appear to qualify for good habits, those few who do possess them have an advantage.

(5) Those who belong to no labor union also have an advantage in getting good jobs and fast promotions. This gives another opportunity to young people not possessed by elders.

(6) Another advantage young people have today is the ability to borrow money for a home. When I got married it was necessary to put 40 per cent cash down. We could borrow only 60 per cent and only for three to five years. Now, any good couple can borrow 80 per cent or more with payments extended over 20 years. In addition, they today have social security, accident insurance and other benefits which Mrs. Babson and I never had.

(7) As a statistician, I must remind readers of how the country's birth rate will help graduates this coming June. If you were born during the early "thirties" when there was great unemployment and few marriages and babies, you now have not so many to compete with.

(8) The pension plans which are now rapidly increasing not only eliminate the oldsters more rapidly, thus making promotions easier for you, but they also furnish you security in your latter days.

Don't Have Draft Worries

I repeat my previous advice that you go ahead with your plans for college or for getting a job the same as if no war were possible. Congress is acting on universal military training just as I forecast. Moreover, those who are drafted are about as safe as those who stay at home; while the 85 per cent who return will have benefits as veterans, which the non-drafted boys will not have.

One more thought. The question as to whether you will become an employer some day instead of always remaining a wageworker will largely be determined by this simple rule: If you save some money each week, you can some day become an employer. If you don't save money each week, you will always remain a wageworker.

Matter Of Fact

What Do We Want In Korea?

WASHINGTON

The National Security Council, with the concurrence of President Truman, has now at last arrived at a decision of the greatest importance. After endless travail, the National Security Council has decided precisely what the American government wants to achieve in Korea.

What the American government wants is a negotiated settlement of the Korean War, based on the partition of Korea at the 38th Parallel. This is, of course, a minimum objective. And to this objective certain conditions are attached.

One condition is that such a settlement must involve no commitment whatsoever on the status of Formosa or on Communist China's admission into the United Nations. Another condition is that United Nations observers must be freely admitted into North Korea, to make certain that Chinese Communist troops are actually withdrawn. A third probable condition is the establishment of a demilitarized buffer zone along the 38th Parallel.

This National Security Council decision is of the utmost significance in a great many ways. For one thing, such a settlement would be far short of the "victory" which Gen. MacArthur demands, a fact which has all sorts of domestic political implications. But although a settlement on the 38th Parallel would not mean victory for this country, it would certainly mean defeat for the Soviet effort to seize all Korea by force.

Evidence Inconclusive

This raises the obvious question—whether there is any real chance at all of negotiating such a settlement. Here the evidence, while certainly not conclusive, is at least interesting.

About two weeks ago, as first reported in this space, there came the first exceedingly veiled hints of a Soviet willingness to negotiate on Korea. Despite denials, one such hint came from Soviet United Nations delegate Jacob Malik. Another, stronger hint, which carried the implication that the British might act as intermediaries, was conveyed to British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison. And at the same time, the Soviet propaganda line underwent an abrupt change, which has received remarkably little attention in this country.

Previously, the universal Communist line had been that the "American imperialists" must be driven into the sea. Then the Kremlin's Moscow mouthpiece, the newspaper "Pravda," suddenly gave much space to an obscure Senate resolution introduced by Colorado's Sen. Edwin Johnson. This resolution proposed a negotiated ceasefire on the 38th Parallel. Instantly the Western Communist press, and especially the New York "Daily Worker," obviously acting on urgent orders from the Kremlin, began beating the drums for the Johnson resolution.

It is true that the other Kremlin mouthpiece, "Izvestia," mildly disputed "Pravda," asserting that the Johnson resolution was no more than "imperialist camouflage." The Chinese Communist propaganda apparatus had adhered rigidly and exclusively to this line.

Two Stages Required

Even so, the best of the experts take the signs and portents listed above very seriously indeed. These signs and portents at least might mean that the Soviet rulers, since the defeat of the Communist spring offensive, have concluded that Soviet victory in Korea is impossible without world war, and have therefore decided to cut their losses. If so, a settlement will require two stages.

The first stage will be that of secret negotiation with the Soviets—which one official has described as "a process both as clumsy and as delicate as the mating of whales." If—an enormous if—this process is successful, it will then be up to the Soviet rulers to force their Chinese satellites into line. Rightly or wrongly, none of the experts believes that there is the slightest doubt about the Soviet ability to do this. The second, formal stage of negotiation will then start, in which a settlement already arrived at will be publicly ratified.

No one in his senses will predict that anything like the foregoing will actually come to pass. The Soviet hints and the Soviet propaganda switch may be no more than a trap for the unwary. Any one of a number of events, notably an explosion in Iran, or a new Soviet-inspired aggression elsewhere, could rule out the slightest chance of a settlement. Yet, in trying to understand what lies behind all the sound and fury emanating from Washington, it is worth bearing in mind that the most experienced policy makers seriously believe that there is a real chance of a negotiated settlement of the Korean war; and that American policy in Asia is now squarely based on this chance, however slim it may be.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Bipartisanship

The theory of bipartisan commissions and committees in the American system of government is that no one political party, no matter how extensive its majority, shall have sole control. Ours is a two-party system with a recognition by acts of Congress of the rights of minority parties.

The President of the United States is often required by law to appoint members of the minority party to serve on commissions and such bodies. It has become increasingly a habit for the Democratic Administration to select its own Republicans, even some whose relationship to the minority party is remote or dubious.

Now along comes Donald Dawson, presidential secretary, whose explanation to the Fulbright Committee is fascinating:

"Senator Bennett. If the Republican National Committee had known that its recommendations would have received 'every consideration,' can you explain why it was necessary for the two Republicans who by law had to be appointed to the RFC board of directors to receive recommendations from the Democratic National Committee?

"Mr. Dawson. This is a Democratic Administration, Senator. Of course we go to the Democratic National Committee."

That is not the law. The President is not required by law to go to the Democratic National Committee or the Republican National Committee when he needs to choose a Republican. He can find his own. He might even create a Republican. This violates the theory of bipartisanship, but Mr. Dawson, does not. For note this colloquy:

"Senator Bennett.... There is this interesting situation: under the law, two of these men must be Republicans. The purpose of the law is to get bipartisanship, true bipartisanship in the management of RFC, but under the circumstances can you have true bipartisanship if the Republican nominees must be cleared with the Democratic National Committee?

"Mr. Dawson. Certainly.

"Senator Bennett. Do you say your idea of bipartisanship is control by the Democratic National Committee?

"Mr. Dawson. That is not what I said at all, and it is not my idea, Senator.

"Senator Bennett. Would you enlighten me a little further, please.

"Mr. Dawson. When you have the Congress setting up an agency to carry out a program of the Administration, it is necessary that the that purpose that the Congress has people that run that agency be for intended the agency, and naturally you could not expect a man to head an agency if he were antagonistic to it."

The queer thing about this statement is that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which is the agency under discussion, is not under the President, but should report to Congress. Its members should not by law, be concerned with the policies of the Administration but should form their own policies independently. This, Donald Dawson, in spite of the fact that he is one of the President's secretaries, apparently did not understand. Senator Bennett put him through the paces:

"Senator Bennett. Is the Administration responsible for administering the RFC?

"Mr. Dawson. I think the President is held responsible for its success.

"Senator Bennett. I understand this is an independent agency, and the President's powers are limited to the appointment of members of the board, subject to confirmation by the Senate. I may be mistaken about that.

"Mr. Dawson. I don't know about those technical features.

"Senator Bennett. But your impression is that it is an Administration agency; and, therefore, the President is responsible.

"In other words, there is no such thing as an independent agency.

"Mr. Dawson. My impression is that the President is held accountable for its success."

This may seem unbelievable to a student of government who knows why the independent agencies were organized and how they are supposed to function. Yet here is the shocking instance of the presidential secretary in charge of personnel, through whose hands pass the names of those whom the President appoints to office, not knowing the difference between a public body that is under the executive branch of government and a public body that is independent of the executive.

I would suggest to the White House that it purchase for the sum of $1 the "United States Government Organization Manual," prepared by the Federal Register Division, National Archives and Records Service of the General Services Administration. This book is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. Beginning on Page 286 and running to Page 457, Donald Dawson will find a detailed account of the independent agencies. It could aid his understanding of our government.

Memorial Day Concert Planned In Lonaconing

Band Will Honor Deceased Members

LONACONING — Memorial Day will be observed Wednesday with a concert by the Lonaconing City band at Alvin C. Neat Post No. 5280, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at 7 p. m.

The concert program will include "Opening March — Invercargal" waltz, "My Buddy" and "Memories"; "Largo" from New World Symphony and "Your Land and My Land." A march, "Loyalty Day," "Fillmore's Triumphant" march, "When Day is Done" and "Moonlight Bay" will be other selections. The march, "The Show Boy"; "That Naughty Waltz"; and "Town Booster" march will follow in order.

"The Star Spangled Banner," will climax the public outdoor Memorial Day observance. The band will play from the VFW veranda and seating benches will be placed on the front lawn

Marshall Fatkin will be master of ceremonies.

The officers and members of the Lonaconing City band honor its deceased members who, because of their loyalty and civic pride, helped make Maryland's oldest band a successful organization since 1857, when it was chartered.

It was Captain John Douglas who organized the Lonaconing City band which is recognized in Allegany County's Historical Society book as being the oldest band of its kind in the state. Members of the band at that time were Henry Thomas, James Murray, father of the late Bishop John Murray, renowned Episcopal clergyman, Herman Hanekamp, Daniel Dixon, William Snyder, William Borden, William Bowden, Frank Stevenson Sr., Frank Tonry, David Welsh, Samuel Nichols, George Fogel and Elias Lewis.

Present officers are J. Bradley Marshall, director; Joseph Morton and Arch Stewart, assistant directors; Henry Connors, president; Alvin F. Green, secretary-treasurer; and William Barnard, business manager.

Memorial Choral Concert Held

LONACONING — A Memorial Choral Concert was presented yesterday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church. Miss Verna Miller directed the choir and Miss Dorothy Brown was organist.

Invocation and processional hymn was followed by the first group singing "Oh, Worship The King," "Sweet Hour of Prayer" and "Praise Ye The Father."

A duet, "Some Day" was sung by Patty Ann Davis and Helen Sigler. Group two sang "O. Lamb of God," soloist, Mrs. John Turnbull; "The Beautiful City," and "Garden of Peace and Prayer," soloist, Mrs. August Eichhorn.

"Face To Face" was a duet sung by Mrs. John Turnbull and Mrs. George Gardner. The third group sang "Lead Me Gently Home, Father," "Beyond the Sunset," and "Jacob's Ladder."

"Rise, Shine, Give God Glory" was sung by the congregation; followed by benediction and postlude.

Lonaconing Vet Receives Citation

LONACONING — Sergeant First Class Dallas B. Ours, husband of Mrs. Clara Gowans Ours, East Main street, has been awarded the Bronze Star for heroic action in the Korean conflict when he was in command of an anti-aircraft battery at the time of the citation.

The citation states that "Sgt. Our's heroic action under fire was an inspiration to the members of his squad and reflect great credit on himself and the military service."

He is the father of two children. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Ours, Sr., reside in Westernport.

Mt. Savage Homemakers Visit Oldest Area Home

MT. SAVAGE — The Mt. Savage Homemakers held their silver tea several days ago at "The Pines," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Trimble, considered the oldest home in the vicinty.

After a short business meeting Mrs. Marie Farrell gave a history of the home. She said that it was built in 1722. Antiques were displayed on a table at the home. Included was a set of scales used during slavery days to weight quinine.

For the first part of the program, entitled "The Days of Long Ago," women appeared dressed in old costumes. Mrs. Louis Haus played the music and Mrs. Roy Deffenbaugh was the narrator. Participants, and the periods they represented, were Mrs. Lou Harris, 1675; Mrs. William Williams, 1820; Mrs. Edward Farrell, 1895; Mrs. Wesley Sleeman, 1900; Mrs. Charles Albright, 1905; Mrs. Wilson Sweene, 1907; Mrs. John Wingert, 1916, and Mrs. Raymond Yutzey, 1900. Mrs. Yutzey wore a cap that was over 150 years old.

Clothes made by the wearers were exhibited in the second portion of the program entitled, "A Visit To The Homemaker." Mrs. Edward Farrell was director, Mrs. Roy Deffenbaugh was narrator and Mrs. Ralph Wilson accompanist. Others in this program were Mrs. John Wingert, Mrs. Thomas Adams, Mrs. Wilson Sweene, Mrs. Charles Albright, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Lesley Sleeman, Mrs. Lou Harris, Mrs. Loyde Wade, Mrs. Trimble and Mrs. Marie Farrell.

Refreshments were handled by Mrs. Frederick Miller and Mrs. Rudolph Gunkel. Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Sleeman directed decorations.

Mrs. Trimble was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Tilly Norris. Guests included Miss Maude Bean, county home demonstration agent; Mrs. Irene MacDonald and Mrs. Robert Young of Cumberland.

Children Hold "Circus Day" In Lonaconing

Parade Is Feature Of Gala Attraction

LONACONING — It was "circus day" here Saturday afternoon. A group of young children paraded the streets prior to their "circus," with a sign, "M M M Circus" carried by Marvin and Mary Catherine McGregor.

Harold "Sonny" McGregor led his goat, "Nancy", in the line of march which resulted in the parade going where the "stubborn" goat led them. Billy and Bobby McGregor, twins, were attired as boxers, with robes and gloves.

Jimmy Fazenbaker wore a comical negro mask. A collie dog, "Pal", walked along dressed in a large polo shirt. Circus music was provided by Mackay McKenzie and Dale Wilson, trumpets; Billy Rooney, trombone; and Melvin Klipstein, clarinet.

Lancastrians Win Piedmont Speech Contest

Yorkist Take Honors In Serious Reading

PIEDMONT, W. Va. — Lancastrians were winners in the forty-second annual contest of the Yorkist-Lancastrians Literary Societies of the Piedmont High Schol held Friday evening in the high school auditorium.

The winners carried off honors in the debate and humorous reading while the Yorkist took honors in serious reading.

The subject debated was, "Resolved; That the American People Should Reject the Welfare State". The affirmative was upheld by Richard Smith and Anna May Kight, representing the Lancastrians while Wright Welton and Diane Chilcote of the Yorkist presented the negative side of the question.

The winner of the serious reading was Verda Loy, Yorkist, who selected "The American Way", while Emily Chapman, Lancastrian, gave, "That We Might Be Saved".

Angela Lupis, Lancastrian, was the winner of the humorous selection in "Trials of A Vaudeville Manager". Patsy Bosley, Yorkist, presented "The Bride and the Broom".

The report of the judges was given by David Nuzum, Potomac State Faculty, Keyser. Other judges were Dr. Elizabeth A. Atwater and Mrs. Gwendolyn Gillham, also faculty members of Potomac State.

While the judges were considering their decisions Charles Chaney, Lancastrian, played a trumpet solo and Helen Metcalfe, Yorkist, gave a piano solo.

Vernon A. Staggers, principal, who presided, presented a medal to James Arnold, Lancastrian, and Paul Cline, Yorkist, for valuable contribution to their particular society.

16 Boy Scouts Pass District Board Of Review

Court Of Honor Planned May 29

Sixteen Boy Scouts, an assistant scoutmaster and a scoutmaster received advancements or merit badges at a Cumberland District Board of Reviews last week at Scout Headquarters, Union Street building.

Advanced from Tenderfoot Scout to Second Class Scout were George Hast, George Eskin and Gary William, all of Troop No. 1, sponsored by St. Luke's Lutheran Church; Vincent Martin, Donald Murray, John Michael Lyons and Charles W. Kiser, all of Troop No. 14, St. Patrick's Catholic Church; Tommy Matlick, Willer Roller and Kenneth Reiber, Troop No. 17, Kelly Springfield Tire Company.

Receiving advancement to Star Scouts were Kent Smith, Troop No. 7, Cumberland Rotary Club, and Robert Parker, Troop No. 4, Centre Street Methodist Church.

Merit badges were approved for First Class Scout Jerry Huff, Troop No. 1, for Bugling, Carpentry, Music and Home Repair; Second Class Bill Spoerl, Troop No. 1, Bookbinding; Second Class Scout Frederick Williams, Troop No. 1, Bookbinding and Home Repair; Star Scout Kent Smith, Troop No. 4, First Aid and Cooking; Star Scout Eugene Kenny, Troop No. 7, Home Repair and First Aid; Assistant Scoutmaster Fern Kenny, Troop No. 7, First Aid; and Scoutmaster Ralph Wigger, Troop No. 14, First Aid.

The badges and awards which were approved by the local district board at Tuesday's review will be formally presented to the scouts at a Cumberland District Court of Honor in Constitution Park beginning at 8 p. m. In the event of inclemet weather next week the Court of Honor will be held at the same time in the Central YMCA.

John L. Towler, chairman, presided at the Board of Review, along with board members Edward T. Jones and R. E. Hollandsworth. Willis V. Smith, scout executive, also was present at the review.

Cumberland Chaplain Is May 30th Speaker

Captain Raymond F. Coleman, native of Cumberland, now serving as Catholic chaplain at Scott Air Force Base, Illinois, will deliver the Memorial Day address at Belleville, Ill., eight miles from the Air Base.

During World War II, Chaplain Coleman served with the 19th Bomber Group on Guam. He entered the service in 1943, served until 1946 and re-entered the service in 1948. Father Coleman has been stationed at the Illinois Air Base since October of last year. He is a son of Joseph A. Coleman, Davidson street.

The Dartmouth College Library has acquired an important collection of letters and manuscripts of Daniel Webster. Another outstanding addition to the Library is a Stephen Crane collection, donated by George Matthew Adams, New York bibliophile.

Rockets Away!

Ada Lu Snyder holds the huge rocket up as Betty Bishop lights the fuse that will send it away with a roar. And if Ada Lu forgets to let go she may take a long ride on the man-made missle. However, it's all in fun as the two Allegany High School students demonstrate on the lawn of the school the types of fireworks which will be used in the gala display planned Memorial Day at Cumberland Fairgrounds by the local Optimist Club. The pyrotechnic program will start at 9:15 p.m. preceded by a band concert by Frostburg's Arion Band and the Fort Hill High School Senior Band. The band concert will begin at 8:15 o'clock with the grounds being opened at 6 p.m.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

The Acrobatic Horse

My uncle ran a livery stable in Yonkers, when I was a boy, and a very high-class establishment is was with shiny coaches, liveried drivers, and slick animals. It was a great place to learn to pitch horseshoes, which proved to be profitable in my later years, and to find out about horses.

Whenever I could get away from home. I visited this headquarters and soon had the job of delivering boarders as we called them to their owners which yielded an occasional tip. William G. McAdoo, later Secretary of the Treasury and President Wilson's sonin-law, kept an old nag and phaeton at the barn, and I used to drive up to his house and sometimes had to wait for half an hour. A very important man he was in those days as always. Unless it has slipped my memory, I don't remember ever receiving a gratuity from the gent, and I had a pretty retentive memory about such matters, but boy, he gave me a world of advice.

It was customary for ladies to ride sidesaddle then, so I was ambidextrous you might say and would deliver steeds dressed that way, doing the best I could to stay on. My mother was afraid it might make me effeminate, so she hired a man to give me lessons on the cornet, because she thought I was narrow-chested, and it would expand my lungs. This only lasted a short time, since the neighbors, being unappreciative of music, complainned of the noise and requested I shift to the jew's harp.

There was one horse in the stable which belonged to a lady with an affectionate regard for him, although why I never understood. He had a peculiar habit of rearing up without warning and throwing himself over backwards which was hard on the rider if not agile. She never got on him herself, and I was the boy to exercise him. His eccentricity reminds me of the story of the man who bought a horse with the assurance he was sound in wind and limb. The first day when he was out driving with his wife and going through a narrow creek, the animal plunked down, and they couldn't get him up for half an hour. He went to the former owner and complained.

"Oh, I forgot to tell you," explained the latter. "He has one bad habit. Keep him out of brooks. He likes to sit on fish."

The name of the Yonkers horse was Saxon, and he liked to sit on anything, particularly his rider. However, I got used to him and was light, so he made such a good impression that the head of the carpet works in town decided to try him with the idea of buying, as his horse had gone lame. This rather bulky man made the mistake of mounting in the stable, and the animal promptly turned over and his rider went through the front of a glass harness cabinet, which was his first stop on the way to the hospital. He survived, but was bandaged pretty good for a couple of weeks. He also had a broken arm and just missed getting his throat cut.

After a reasonable lapse of time while I restored Saxon's reputation, a man in south Yonkers with eight or nine children bought him as a carriage horse, forgetting the old saying "caveat emptor." He hitched him up all right and then he and three of four of his offspring got into the surrey. As he clucked to old Saxon to start, he decided to sit in the lap of the new owner, thereby busting the carriage and the harness and generally scaring the daylights out of the family. The last I heard of him he had been sent down the chute to an auction. At that he had only one bad habit.

Now I live in Ridgefield, Conn., on the fringe of the horsey set, and some newcomers were invited for cocktails not long ago by one of the social leaders. There was a lot of talk about horses, but the strangers held back. Finally the hostess, referring to riding, turned to the wife and said,

"Do you jump?"

"Only when I'm pinched in certain places," she answered. I wonder who was kidding who.

Get-Acquainted Day Is Planned At City Schools

A total of 660 elementary students who next fall enter junior high school will visit Fort Hill and Allegany High Schools tomorrow for a get-acquainted program.

Fort Hill will play host to 385, including 50 seventh graders from Pennsylvania Avenue School who will enter the Eighth Grade. The remainder are Sixth-Grade students and come from Pennsylvania Avenue, John Humbird, Johnson Heights, East Side, Gephart, West Side and Columbia Street.

Victor D. Heisey, Fort Hill principal, said the group will meet in the auditorium from 1 to 1:45 p. m. where a program will be presented by the Junior High School Band, choir, Art Club, Dramatic Club and other organizations. The new students will visit English, social studies, science and mathematics classes where they will be made acquainted with class routines and instructors.

Later, students will go to the boys' and girls' gymnasiums for a get-acquainted period with the instructors who will deliver safety and health talks to be remembered during the summer vacation months.

At Fort Hill, Ardell Haines, director of guidance, and the Seventh Grade teachers, are conducting the program.

Allegany, which will be host to 275 students has instigated a novel introduction into junior high school life, according to Ralph R. Webster, principal. New students will ask questions about various activities offered and will be answered by a seventh grader. These may concern membership in the band, how to become cheerleader or any other subject.

A play, written and directed by Miss Betsy Ross Rankin, will portray opportunities offered in activities in junior high. The group at Allegany is scheduled to meet at 12:45 p. m.

Later this group will visit classes.

The new students at Allegany will come from Centre Street School, Columbia Street, Corriganville, Ellerslie, Gephart, LaVale, Mt. Royal and West Side.

Wear your stole with finesse! It takes a polished technique to manage this glamor item with grace!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

Because the stole is such a glamorizer on anything from a bathing suit to an evening dress it takes a little more art to wear it than any other current fashion.

However, it's better to leave it alone than to let it tempt you into an appearance of gaucherie. But you'll have nothing to fear, if you adopt these Powers Girl techniques in handling stoles. Just try them before your mirror and you'll see what grace they add to your appearance.

Draping Your Stole

The first and most important rule is never to pull a stole around you so tightly that it loses all line. If you do, you'll look plain prim—and your stole plain skimpy. Half the beauty of a stole lies in the way it is draped.

When you want warmth from your stole, place it around the back of your shoulders, letting the left side ripple across your chest; sling the right side over your left shoulder, forming a cowl around the front of your throat. Another way to beauty and warmth, unless your stole is cape-shaped, is to wear the center section draped across your chest with the ends crossed behind your back and then returned forward so that they fall over your shoulders.

A second invaluable rule is never to let the ends of your stole dangle like limp, shapeless strings. The result of so doing is a dumpy-looking figure and an unlovely-looking stole.

A graceful effect is assured if you let one end of your stole fall lower than the other. Drape the short end in some graceful fashion—over your wrist, in the curve of your elbow, or under your belt. You will then create diagonal lines that give shape to both your figure and the fashion.

Model Adroitness

Don't expect the back view to take care of itself. Make sure that the fabric drapes prettily. For the utmost drama in an evening dress, let the back of the stole slide to your waistline and catch the sides lightly in the elbow curves.

Only practice will make these techniques come natural to you. You should see the Powers Girls rehearsing them for a big fashion show. But, once on the runway, the models look as though they were born knowing how. A few turns before your mirror, and you will too!

Tomorrow: Toning up to bathing beauty condition!

The first and most important rule is never to pull a stole around you so tightly that it loses all line. If you do, you'll look plain prim—and your stole plain skimpy. Half the beauty of a stole lies in the way it is draped.

When you want warmth from your stole, place it around the back of your shoulders, letting the left side ripple across your chest; sling the right side over your left shoulder, forming a cowl around the front of your throat. Another way to beauty and warmth, unless your stole is cape-shaped, is to wear the center section draped across your chest with the ends crossed behind your back and then returned forward so that they fall over your shoulders.

A second invaluable rule is never to let the ends of your stole dangle like limp, shapeless strings. The result of so doing is a dumpy-looking figure and an unlovely-looking stole.

A graceful effect is assured if you let one end of your stole fall lower than the other. Drape the short end in some graceful fashion—over your wrist, in the curve of your elbow, or under your belt. You will then create diagonal lines that give shape to both your figure and the fashion.

Model Adroitness

Don't expect the back view to take care of itself. Make sure that the fabric drapes prettily. For the utmost drama in an evening dress, let the back of the stole slide to your waistline and catch the sides lightly in the elbow curves.

Only practice will make these techniques come natural to you. You should see the Powers Girls rehearsing them for a big fashion show. But, once on the runway, the models look as though they were born knowing how. A few turns before your mirror, and you will too!

Tomorrow: Toning up to bathing beauty condition!

Cumberland To Join National CPS Program

Cumberland is one of the first cities to co-operate in the recently announced national plan to inaugurate a Certified Professional Secretary program under the sponsorship of the National Secretaries Association.

According to Miss Dorothy L. Campbell of the Cumberland Chapter, several local secretaries will take the intensive course leading to the certification of those who pass. Any secretary in the Cumberland area may apply for admission to the first course through Miss Campbell, Cumberland Office Supply Company. Applications must be in the hands of national officials before July 1.

HOLLYWOOD, May 27 (INS)—Tony Martin actually killed 'em in San Francisco MCing the stage show at the "Hard, Fast and Beautiful" premiere junket. I get this straight from my undercover agent on the tip who is not given to overstatement.

Tony Martin

As good as he was, I happen to know that Howard Hughes decided before Tony went away to take up his option at RKO, and that he sent out an order to find another musical pronto for the handsome singer. Hughes was delighted with Tony's singing (to be expected) and the new warmth he brings to his emoting in "Two Tickets To Broadway."

Tony's radio, TV shows, and recordings have made him extremely popular but he hasn't done too well in motion pictures until now.

With his happy marriage to Cyd Charisse and their new baby—well, life can be beautiful and is, these days, for Tony.

• — • — •

If you're up in your movie history you'll know that almost the first motion picture ever made was "The Great Train Robbery." That was even before I started in the movies.

Now we're going to have a 1951 movie called "The First Train Robbery." This one will have all the trimmings and will be made by Warner Brothers with Randy Scott as the star.

Just in case you don't know, the first train robbery was pulled off in 1864 on the Central Pacific Railroad just outside Reno by Big Jack Davis. Randy's not playing Big Jack. He'll play "the law" who brings the holdup men to justice. David Weisbart, Warner's newest producer, is in charge of the job.

• — • — •

What surprised me most about Shelley Winters is her really serious intentions toward her career as an actress. While in New York she has been attending classes three times a week at the actor's studio. Formerly under the direction of Elia Kazan, it is now guided by Lee Strasburg.

Shelley has even inveigled Farley Granger into attending classes with her. Her graduation test is a meaty scene from "Rose Tattoo," while Farley will display his talents in "Country Girl."

As for Shelley's suspension for refusing to play opposite Frank Sinatra in "Meet Danny Wilson." It's not that she doesn't want to do the picture with Frankie—it's just that she wants more to go to Europe with Farley Granger.

• — • — •

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Robert Preston has been beauing Peggy Lee about New York—a new duo. Peggy and her husband, Dave Barbour, recently parted. Bob and Mrs. Preston are also separated.

My old friend, Charles MacArthur, is eagerly waiting to have his wife of many years, Helen Hayes, back home. Charlie hasn't been feeling well and when these boys aren't well they want their best girls with them. So, Helen is hurrying to finish her picture so she can go back to Charlie.

Helen's picture, "My Son, John" went on location here at Black-Foxe School. Robert Walker's two sons, Bobby and Michael, go to school there and when they heard their dad was on the grounds they obtained permission to watch him work.

Tony Romano, patriotic guitar player and Frances Langford's accompanist, becomes a father tomorrow. Mrs. Romano undergoes a Caesarean.

The understatement of the week came from Marie Wilson who said when someone telephoned her, "You know, I've been a little sick.". Marie goes away for two weeks to get in shape to start her picture at RKO.

It is said Fighter Joe Louis will marry Angele De Lavalade Stratton, wealthy Detroit woman.

A personal invitation from Jack Warner to take an advance look at "Streetcar Named Desire" brought out a group of our top stars. So great was the emotional effect that for at least five minutes after the last scene no one spoke. The picture is definitely better than the play.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

32 Guardsmen Are Qualified

Lt. John Hensell, commander of Headquarters and Headquarters Company of the First Battalion, 115th Infantry, Saturday praised area guardsmen for accuracy on the firing range at Camp Ritchie over two recent weekends.

City Makes Effort To Get Plane Company Subcontract

Initial steps in a program to get some Fairchild Aviation Corporation subcontracts for the Cumberland area will be taken this week.

It was announced Saturday that the Air Force has approved plans for spending an estimated $7,000,000 to enlarge the Fairchild plant at Hagerstown.

Even before the expansion was approved, William C. Walsh, president of the Cumberland and Allegany Industrial Promotion Corporation, had conferred with Senator Herbert R. O'Conor relative to having some of the subcontract work for the Hagerstown operation allotted to Cumberland.

Walsh said Saturday he contacted A. F. Flood, executive vice president of Fairchild, and arranged for a meeting in Hagerstown, this week if possible. Walsh said it is planned to have a small committee of the local corporation, which is seeking new industry for the area, to meet with Flood to outline the facilities of this section.

The president of the local promotion group said at this stage it is impossible to even estimate the possibilities of getting some of the subcontracts.

Senator O'Conor said the Fairchild plant will be enlarged and hangar space increased to care for the upped production of the company's battle-tested transport plane, the C-119.

3 Korean War Casualties Are Being Returned Home

The bodies of three more Cumberland area soldiers killed in Korea are being returned to the United States for reburial.

Two dead heroes from Cumberland already have reached this country, bringing the total number to five.

Enroute are Pvt. Richard K. Cook, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lon D. Cook, Route 5, Cresap Park; Cpl. Floyd R. Whiteman, 32, son of Ray M. Whiteman, Route 6, Cumberland, and husband of Mrs. Martha P. Whiteman, Romney, W. Va., and Sgt. Herbert L. VanMeter, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. VanMeter, Luke.

Second County Fatality

Pvt. Cook was Allegany County's second fatality of the Korean war. He died August 6, 1950, from wounds suffered while fighting Communist forces. Before entering the Army September 15, 1949, he attended Cresaptown School and worked in the Public Service Market there.

The young soldier received basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., and arrived in Japan in February, 1950, to serve with American occupation troops. In addition to his parents, he leaves four brothers, Lou Denver, Roger, William and Raymond Cook, and a sister, Mrs. Marian Hause.

Cpl. Whiteman, native of Cumberland and former student at Allegany High School, was killed in action last September 16. He worked for the B. and O. Railroad prior to enlisting in the Army about six years ago and served 24 months in Europe during World War II.

Cpl. Whiteman reported September 1, 1950, at Camp Stoneman, Calif., for shipment overseas while attached to a medical unit. Besides his father and widow, he is survived by a daughter, Barbara Ann Whiteman; two sisters, Mildred and June E. Whiteman; three brothers, Maurice, Ralph J. and Dane O. Whiteman; his step-mother, Mrs. Emma F. (Arnold) Whiteman, and two step-children.

First Tri-Towns Casualty

Sgt. VanMeter's death July 20, 1950, marked the first war fatality in the Tri-Towns section. A veteran of ten years service, he had been fighting with the Seventh Infantry Division.

He participated in the invasion of Africa, Sicily and Italy during the last war and was injured in Rome. Following his discharge from service, he was employed at the Celanese plant for five months but enlisted again in January, 1946. Later he was sent to Germany and Austria.

Sgt. VanMeter attended Bruce High School, Westernport. Survivors include two brothers, Bernard and Roy L. VanMeter, and three sisters, Louise, Jean and Janey VanMeter.

Veterans Due Home

However, 17 living veterans of combat in Korea from the tri-state area will be home with their families this week as the rotation plan comes into being.

They are Cpl. Thomas G. Giles, of Frostburg; and Pfc. Clarence A. Stuckey, who arrived aboard the Transport Marine Adler at San Francisco Monday.

From nearby West Virginia are Sfc. Paul Keplinger, Route 2, Keyser; Sgt. Edwin H. Parrack, Mill Creek, Randolph County; Sfc. Harold E. Rhodes, Emoryville, Mineral County.

Sfc. James D. Ramos, Elkins; Cpl. Phillip Thompson, Whitmer, Randolph County; Pvt. Edwin J. Saylor, Route 1, Morgantown; Cpl. Herbert W. Barker, Mannington; Cpl. Harry Harris, Jr., of Junior, Barbour County.

Sgt. Harry W. Johnson, Morgantown; Pfc. James F. Hing, Keyser; Sgt. Robert F. Mills, Martinsburg; Cpl. Kenneth E. Montos, Grafton; Sgt. Arros E. Summerfield, Elkins; Sgt. Elvin M. Wagner, Belington, and Cpl. Albert Welch, Shaw, Mineral County.

Linger Will Speak

Rev. O. Afton Linger, pastor of First Baptist Church, will be guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Rotary Club, Tuesday at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA. His topic of discussion is "Sacrifice, The Law of Life."

Bank To Operate Eichhorn's

The Second National Bank of Cumberland yesterday was appointed receiver pendentelite of M. Eichhorn Furniture and Funeral Store in Lonaconing by Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris in Allegany County Circuit Court and was given power to operate the firm as an active going business.

Judge Harris' order also designated George Eichhorn, Jr., as manager of business; John A. Eichhorn as assistant manager and George A. Eichhorn, III, as general employe.

The judge's action was on an equity suit filed yesterday by Attorney Charles Z. Heskett on behalf of certain relatives of Miss Minnie Eichhorn, 81, who died May 15. Miss Eichhorn's will, admitted to probate in Orphans Court May 18, gave no person or firm power to operate the Lonaconing business which she had owned for years. Other uncertainties have arisen concerning her estate, not all of which is included in her will.

Oakland Bags 5th Straight

Terra Alta Keeps Record Unblemished

Oakland and Terra Alta kept their records unblemished in the Mountain Top Baseball League by scoring victories on Sunday.

Bob Glaze notched his fifth straight win of the campaign as Oakland blanked Bittinger on the latter's field by the score of 5-0 in a game halted in the 6th by rain.

Glaze yielded only two hits and fanned seven.

Ted James homered and tripled and Gary Baker doubled and singled twice to pace the Oakland swatsmiths. Bob Buckel made both of Bittinger's bingles.

Terra Alta marked up its 5th victory at the expense of Aurora, grabbing a 13-4 decision behind Bob Fraley who now has a 4-0 record. The Terra Alta pitcher fanned 10. Rain halted this game in the top of the 9th.

Richard "Skip" Fraley with a double and two singles and Mike Root with a pair of two-baggers and a single led the Terra Alta hitters. Boyle Bolyard banged a homer and single for Aurora.

Swanton's Dodgers took the measure of Friendsville by the score of 10-3 behind the two-hit pitching of Ross who fanned 10. Swanton racked up a dozen hits, including "Bud" Sanders' triple with two aboard and a pair of singles and three one-base knocks by Bob Mitter.

No reports were made on the Kitzmiller-Salisbury and Loch Lynn-Accident games. Scores:

Centerville defeated the Hyndman V.F.W., 5-1 and Moorefield took the measure of Romney, 7-5, to remain tied for first place in the Interstate Baseball League.

In a wild game at Penn Avenue Field, the Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose edged the Cumberland Black Sox, 20-19.

Glenn Deremer posted his third straight victory of the season at Centerville when he turned back Hyndman with six hits and fanned 10 batsmen. Emerick's triple and Cliff Clites' single in the 4th robbed Deremer of a shutout victory. Harclerode rapped a triple and single for the losers.

Dwight Rose headed the Reds' 16-hit assault on Ed Shaffer and May with a double, three singles and a walk in five trips to the plate. Glentis Street had a double and two singles and Deremer garnered a two-bagger and single.

Singles by Roy Mickey and Streett, Lou Evans' triple, Deremer's double and Dwight Rose's one-base knock netted Centerville four runs in the 2nd frame. Deremer, Dwight Rose and Veryl Nave rapped singles for another tally in the 4th.

Lefty Garrett gained the decision over "Pete" Elliott in the contest at Moorefield. Moorefield's 12-hit attack was punctuated by homers by Warden Hott in the 5th and Bob Keller in the 6th, the latter coming with one aboard. Courtney Tusing, "Huck" Seymour and Garrett registered two hits each. Blaine Turner was Romney's "big gun" with four hits in five trips.

Twenty-eight hits were chalked up and 12 errors made in the affair at Penn Avenue Field. Errors produced the Moose team's winning marker in the last of the 9th. Wheeler of the Sox and Jim Gaffney of the Moose had four hits each. Homers were blasted by Wheeler, Perry and B. Smith of the Sox and Gaffney. The scores:

Charles Defends Title 8th Time On Wednesday

Figured To Defeat Maxim For 4th Time

CHICAGO, May 27 (AP) — World heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles defends his title against light-heavyweight champion Joey Maxim at Chicago Stadium Wednesday night in a 15-round bout that pits the two sharp boxers for the fourth time since 1942.

Charles out-pointed Maxim in all three of their previous meetings, two 10-rounders in 1942 and a 15-rounder in 1949. However, that was before either had acquired the title he now holds.

It will be 29-year-old Charles' eighth defense since he inherited Joe Louis' vacated crown with a June, 1949 win over Jersey Joe Walcott here. Maxim, 29-year-old Italian from Cleveland whose real name is Giuseppe Antonio Berardinelli, won the light-heavy title by a 10th round knockout of England's Freddie Mills at London in January, 1950.

The sharpies who lately pegged Charles a 5 to 2 favorite think the bout will follow the pattern of the three previous matches.

I.B.C. president Jim Norris is satisfied everyone concerned will be well rewarded. Although Chicago Stadium is scaled for a $246,000 net and advance ticket sales indicate about a $125,000 gross, the IBC has sold video rights for $100,000 .

Charles gets 40 per cent of both the net gate and the video swag, probably accruing $80,000 for his night's work. Maxim's 20 per cent take from both melons means about $40,000.

It will be Charles' first start since his seventh title defense and second meeting with Walcott at Detroit March 7. Charles took a 15-round decision from Walcott but suffered a battered ear, now reported completely mended.

Wednesday night's bout puts Charles four months ahead of Louis' pace as a battling champion. The now rusted Brown Bomber made his eighth title defense 27 months after he dethroned Jimmy Braddock for the heavyweight title.

White Sox Annex Pair From Tribe

Chicago Makes It 11 In Row, 5-2 And 6-4

CLEVELAND, May 27 (AP) —Chicago's White Sox made a clean sweep of their road trip today, registering their tenth and eleventh straight victories with a double win off the Cleveland Indians, 5 to 2 and 6 to 4.

That added up to four in a row off the Indians, after seven wins from the four eastern clubs. The double bill, interrupted frequently by showers, ran more than seven hours.

Frostburg's Demons pounded the offerings of three pitchers for 13 hits and a 12 to 0 triumph over Westvaco in a Bi-State Baseball League game yesterday in the Mountain City.

John Waltman, who pitched for a St. Louis Browns' farm team several years ago, but was forced out of minor league ball with a dead arm last season, made his first start of 1951, twirled six innings, yielded two hits and fanned seven. He gave way to Jack Kauffman with the score 12-0 in his favor in the 7th frame.

The victory tied Frostburg with Westvaco for first place, each team having 5-3 records.

Ted Durbin, leadoff man and top hitter in the league, started the Demons on the road to victory in the first inning when he belted a home run. He got a single later in the game. Jimmy Eckard had two singles, Danny Drew a double and single and Scott two singles.

Inskeep obtained two of the four hits yielded by Frostburg pitchers.

Cook Masters 'Coney

Bob Cook made his initial start of the campaign and pitched the Hyndman Firemen to a 10-3 triumph over Lonaconing at Hyndman.

Cook gave up five hits, whiffed nine and blasted a two-run homer and single who share batting honors with Manager William "Bee" Scarpelli who hammered a triple and double. Gene Stair who racked up three singles and Alton Nave who garnered a pair of two-base wallops. Scarpelli and Cook batted in three runs each. Marble accounted for two of 'Coney's hits, one being a double.

Old Germans Win, 2-1

Cumberland's Old Germans gained a 2-1 decision over Keyser at Stitcher Field where Bob Gordon outpitched Al Swick and "Lefty" Kuhn.

The home team put the game on ice in the second stanza when it scored two runs on "Buck" Cowher's double and singles by "Buddy" Gray, Bill Kirk and Garland Cooper. See's single and two errors gave Keyser its unearned run in the final inning.

Gordon fanned ten batsmen and stopped Keyser cold in the 5th after Symons tripled by firing the third strike past Lauer and Swick.

Garland Cooper collected three hits and a walk to pace the Brewers at the plate. Cage had a double, single and base on balls and Cowher smacked a pair of two-baggers. R. Hess collected two of Keyser's eight blows. The scores:

Cary Middlecoff Scores In Texas, Pockets $3,000

Noses Out Jack Burke By Stroke In Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 27 (AP) —Cary Middlecoff was hottest when the chips were down today to win the $15,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

Tall, black-haired Cary shot a three-over-par 73 on the final 18 holes to capture his second tournament of the year and pocket $3,000. His 72-hole total over the 7,035-yard par 35-35—70 Colonial Country Club course was 282.

A sweating throng of 12,000 swayed and rocked as Ben Hogan, the Hershey, Pa., mite, put on what then appeared a typical finish for him to draw within a stroke of Middlecoff at seven holes. But the man from Memphis, Tenn., rallied for birdies on seven and nine and at 63 holes pushed his lead to three strokes.

From then on, he could coast in.

Middlecoff came into No. 18 two over par. He was on the green 25 feet away. He stroked five feet past the cup and took two more putts to get down.

Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., shot the low score of the day—a 67—to finish in second place with 283.

Third was Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago with 284. Mangrum had an even par 70 on the last 18.

Ed Oliver of Seattle, Wash., Byron Nelson of Roanoke, Tex., and Hogan tied for fourth at 285.

Mt. Savage's first place team handed the winless Klondyke Colts their 5th straight setback in a Pen-Mar Baseball League game yesterday at Klondyke. The score was 13-4.

A nine-run outburst in the 6th inning settled the issue after Klondyke had scored four times to take a 4-1 lead in the fourth frame.

George Shaffer sparked the league leaders with two doubles and a single in four trips while Deffenbaugh smashed a triple with the bases loaded. Dave Norris had a perfect day at the plate for the Colts, obtaining four hits, while Gary Adams banged three hits in four trips. Bill Best who pitched the first five innings was the winner.

Wellersburg rallied for three runs in the 8th inning to eke out an 8-7 decision over Eckhart. The visitors made things interesting in the 9th inning when "Moose" Arnone, in the role of pinch hitter, drove in two runs with a triple. Charley Robinette and Kerr Kennell belted home runs for Wellersburg. Cessna, Valentine, Petenbrink and C. Robinette of Wellersburg and Duncan of Eckhart had two hits each. Glenn Ford limited Eckhart to six safeties.

Ellerslie grouped four hits with a walk and two errors for six runs in the 7th innings and defeated Zihlman at Ellerslie by the score of 7-5. Bob See posted win No. 3 and fanned seven batsmen. Merle, Fred, and Bob See of Ellerslie and Byrnes, Stevens, Robertson, Dunn and Thomas of Zihlman collected two hits each. Haberlein, replaced by Robeson in the 7th, was the losing pitcher. Ted Williams Stars, Boston Captures Pair

Washington Beaten By 9-3, 7-1 Scores

BOSTON, May 27 (INS) — Ted Williams powdered the ball like his old self today to pace the Boston Red Sox to a double triumph over the skidding Washington Senators before 24,659 fans at Fenway Park.

Williams had a perfect day at the plate in the first game as the Bosox won out, 9 to 3, and he collared a grand-slammer in the nightcap to pave the way for a 7 to 1 triumph.

The double win gave the rebounding Sox seven in a row and made it eight losses in a row for the Nats.

Williams' grand-slammer, his tenth round-tripper, was part of a seven-run outburst that gave Harry Taylor his third win of the season. Bobby Doerr also connected for a three-run homer in that same inning.

The Big Thumper, who had seven runs-batted-in for the day, raised his average over the .300 mark with his first game belting.

Paul Hornick, Jr., of Johnstown, Pa., turned in the best performance of the current season at the Ridgeley Rod and Gun Club traps yesterday when he broke 100 straight 16-yard targets to top a field of 20 gunners in the West Virginia club's registered trapshooting tournament.

Tony Francis, Westernport, was the runner-up with a score of 97 while John Lohr, Johnstown, took third place with a 96.

Gunners from Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland participated in the program.

The second perfect score of the day was credited to Edgar S. McDonald, of Headsville, West Virginia doubles champion, who broke 24 straight in his favorite event. John Lighter, Cumberland, and Sherwood Bostwick, Waynesboro, Pa., were tied for second place with scores of 23.

Bostwick romped off with high gun in the handicap by breaking 48 out of 50 from the 20 yard mark. Four tied for second place with 45s. They were Tony Francis, Charles "Lefty" Jordan, Cumberland; Dr. C. A. Brown and J. B. Powell, both of Hagerstown.

Oakland Bags 5th Straight

Terra Alta Keeps Record Unblemished

Oakland and Terra Alta kept their records unblemished in the Mountain Top Baseball League by scoring victories on Sunday.

Bob Glaze notched his fifth straight win of the campaign as Oakland blanked Bittinger on the latter's field by the score of 5-0 in a game halted in the 6th by rain.

Glaze yielded only two hits and fanned seven.

Ted James homered and tripled and Gary Baker doubled and singled twice to pace the Oakland swatsmiths. Bob Buckel made both of Bittinger's bingles.

Terra Alta marked up its 5th victory at the expense of Aurora, grabbing a 13-4 decision behind Bob Fraley who now has a 4-0 record. The Terra Alta pitcher fanned 10. Rain halted this game in the top of the 9th.

Richard "Skip" Fraley with a double and two singles and Mike Root with a pair of two-baggers and a single led the Terra Alta hitters. Boyle Bolyard banged a homer and single for Aurora.

Swanton's Dodgers took the measure of Friendsville by the score of 10-3 behind the two-hit pitching of Ross who fanned 10. Swanton racked up a dozen hits, including "Bud" Sanders' triple with two aboard and a pair of singles and three one-base knocks by Bob Mitter.

No reports were made on the Kitzmiller-Salisbury and Loch Lynn-Accident games. Scores:

Centerville defeated the Hyndman V.F.W., 5-1 and Moorefield took the measure of Romney, 7-5, to remain tied for first place in the Interstate Baseball League.

In a wild game at Penn Avenue Field, the Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose edged the Cumberland Black Sox, 20-19.

Glenn Deremer posted his third straight victory of the season at Centerville when he turned back Hyndman with six hits and fanned 10 batsmen. Emerick's triple and Cliff Clites' single in the 4th robbed Deremer of a shutout victory. Harclerode rapped a triple and single for the losers.

Dwight Rose headed the Reds' 16-hit assault on Ed Shaffer and May with a double, three singles and a walk in five trips to the plate. Glentis Street had a double and two singles and Deremer garnered a two-bagger and single.

Singles by Roy Mickey and Streett, Lou Evans' triple, Deremer's double and Dwight Rose's one-base knock netted Centerville four runs in the 2nd frame. Deremer, Dwight Rose and Veryl Nave rapped singles for another tally in the 4th.

Lefty Garrett gained the decision over "Pete" Elliott in the contest at Moorefield. Moorefield's 12-hit attack was punctuated by homers by Warden Hott in the 5th and Bob Keller in the 6th, the latter coming with one aboard. Courtney Tusing, "Huck" Seymour and Garrett registered two hits each. Blaine Turner was Romney's "big gun" with four hits in five trips.

Twenty-eight hits were chalked up and 12 errors made in the affair at Penn Avenue Field. Errors produced the Moose team's winning marker in the last of the 9th. Wheeler of the Sox and Jim Gaffney of the Moose had four hits each. Homers were blasted by Wheeler, Perry and B. Smith of the Sox and Gaffney. The scores:

Charles Defends Title 8th Time On Wednesday

Figured To Defeat Maxim For 4th Time

CHICAGO, May 27 (AP) — World heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles defends his title against light-heavyweight champion Joey Maxim at Chicago Stadium Wednesday night in a 15-round bout that pits the two sharp boxers for the fourth time since 1942.

Charles out-pointed Maxim in all three of their previous meetings, two 10-rounders in 1942 and a 15-rounder in 1949. However, that was before either had acquired the title he now holds.

It will be 29-year-old Charles' eighth defense since he inherited Joe Louis' vacated crown with a June, 1949 win over Jersey Joe Walcott here. Maxim, 29-year-old Italian from Cleveland whose real name is Giuseppe Antonio Berardinelli, won the light-heavy title by a 10th round knockout of England's Freddie Mills at London in January, 1950.

The sharpies who lately pegged Charles a 5 to 2 favorite think the bout will follow the pattern of the three previous matches.

I.B.C. president Jim Norris is satisfied everyone concerned will be well rewarded. Although Chicago Stadium is scaled for a $246,000 net and advance ticket sales indicate about a $125,000 gross, the IBC has sold video rights for $100,000.

Charles gets 40 per cent of both the net gate and the video swag, probably accruing $80,000 for his night's work. Maxim's 20 per cent take from both melons means about $40,000.

It will be Charles' first start since his seventh title defense and second meeting with Walcott at Detroit March 7. Charles took a 15-round decision from Walcott but suffered a battered ear, now reported completely mended.

Wednesday night's bout puts Charles four months ahead of Louis' pace as a battling champion. The now rusted Brown Bomber made his eighth title defense 27 months after he dethroned Jimmy Braddock for the heavyweight title.

Westvaco at Hyndman Firemen

Frostburg's Demons pounded the offerings of three pitchers for 13 hits and a 12 to 0 triumph over Westvaco in a Bi-State Baseball League game yesterday in the Mountain City.

John Waltman, who pitched for a St. Louis Browns' farm team several years ago, but was forced out of minor league ball with a dead arm last season, made his first start of 1951, twirled six innings, yielded two hits and fanned seven. He gave way to Jack Kauffman with the score 12-0 in his favor in the 7th frame.

The victory tied Frostburg with Westvaco for first place, each team having 5-3 records.

Ted Durbin, leadoff man and top hitter in the league, started the Demons on the road to victory in the first inning when he belted a home run. He got a single later in the game. Jimmy Eckard had two singles, Danny Drew a double and single and Scott two singles.

Inskeep obtained two of the four hits yielded by Frostburg pitchers.

Cook Masters 'Coney

Bob Cook made his initial start of the campaign and pitched the Hyndman Firemen to a 10-3 triumph over Lonaconing at Hyndman.

Cook gave up five hits, whiffed nine and blasted a two-run homer and single who share batting honors with Manager William "Bee" Scarpelli who hammered a triple and double. Gene Stair who racked up three singles and Alton Nave who garnered a pair of two-base wallops. Scarpelli and Cook batted in three runs each. Marble accounted for two of 'Coney's hits, one being a double.

Old Germans Win, 2-1

Cumberland's Old Germans gained a 2-1 decision over Keyser at Stitcher Field where Bob Gordon outpitched Al Swick and "Lefty" Kuhn.

The home team put the game on ice in the second stanza when it scored two runs on "Buck" Cowher's double and singles by "Buddy" Gray, Bill Kirk and Garland Cooper. See's single and two errors gave Keyser its unearned run in the final inning.

Gordon fanned ten batsmen and stopped Keyser cold in the 5th after Symons tripled by firing the third strike past Lauer and Swick.

Garland Cooper collected three hits and a walk to pace the Brewers at the plate. Cage had a double, single and base on balls and Cowher smacked a pair of two-baggers. R. Hess collected two of Keyser's eight blows. The scores:

Cary Middlecoff Scores In Texas, Pockets $3,000

Noses Out Jack Burke By Stroke In Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 27 (AP) —Cary Middlecoff was hottest when the chips were down today to win the $15,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

Tall, black-haired Cary shot a three-over-par 73 on the final 18 holes to capture his second tournament of the year and pocket $3,000. His 72-hole total over the 7,035-yard par 35-35—70 Colonial Country Club course was 282.

A sweating throng of 12,000 swayed and rocked as Ben Hogan, the Hershey, Pa., mite, put on what then appeared a typical finish for him to draw within a stroke of Middlecoff at seven holes. But the man from Memphis, Tenn., rallied for birdies on seven and nine and at 63 holes pushed his lead to three strokes.

From then on, he could coast in.

Middlecoff came into No. 18 two over par. He was on the green 25 feet away. He stroked five feet past the cup and took two more putts to get down.

Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., shot the low score of the day—a 67—to finish in second place with 283.

Third was Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago with 284. Mangrum had an even par 70 on the last 18.

Ed Oliver of Seattle, Wash., Byron Nelson of Roanoke, Tex., and Hogan tied for fourth at 285.

Wednesday Games

Ellerslie at Barrelville
Mt. Savage at Zihlman
Wellersburg at Klondyke

Mt. Savage's first place team handed the winless Klondyke Colts their 5th straight setback in a Pen-Mar Baseball League game yesterday at Klondyke. The score was 13-4.

A nine-run outburst in the 6th inning settled the issue after Klondyke had scored four times to take a 4-1 lead in the fourth frame.

George Shaffer sparked the league leaders with two doubles and a single in four trips while Deffenbaugh smashed a triple with the bases loaded. Dave Norris had a perfect day at the plate for the Colts, obtaining four hits, while Gary Adams banged three hits in four trips. Bill Best who pitched the first five innings was the winner.

Wellersburg rallied for three runs in the 8th inning to eke out an 8-7 decision over Eckhart. The visitors made things interesting in the 9th inning when "Moose" Arnone, in the role of pinch hitter, drove in two runs with a triple. Charley Robinette and Kerr Kennell belted home runs for Wellersburg. Cessna, Valentine, Petenbrink and C. Robinette of Wellersburg and Duncan of Eckhart had two hits each. Glenn Ford limited Eckhart to six safeties.

Ellerslie grouped four hits with a walk and two errors for six runs in the 7th innings and defeated Zihlman at Ellerslie by the score of 7-5. Bob See posted win No. 3 and fanned seven batsmen. Merle, Fred, and Bob See of Ellerslie and Byrnes, Stevens, Robertson, Dunn and Thomas of Zihlman collected two hits each. Haberlein, replaced by Robeson in the 7th, was the losing pitcher. Ted Williams Stars, Boston Captures Pair

BOSTON, May 27 (INS) — Ted Williams powdered the ball like his old self today to pace the Boston Red Sox to a double triumph over the skidding Washington Senators before 24,659 fans at Fenway Park.

Williams had a perfect day at the plate in the first game as the Bosox won out, 9 to 3, and he collared a grand-slammer in the nightcap to pave the way for a 7 to 1 triumph.

The double win gave the rebounding Sox seven in a row and made it eight losses in a row for the Nats.

Williams' grand-slammer, his tenth round-tripper, was part of a seven-run outburst that gave Harry Taylor his third win of the season. Bobby Doerr also connected for a three-run homer in that same inning.

The Big Thumper, who had seven runs-batted-in for the day, raised his average over the .300 mark with his first game belting.

Five Schools To Vie In Fort Hill Invitation Meet Tonight

Fifth Track And Field Meet At Stadium Will Start At 8

Sentinels Are Hosts To Martinsburg, Beall, Frederick And A. H. S.

Fort Hill High School's fifth annual invitational track and field meet is set for tonight at 8 o'clock at the Fort Hill Stadium.

The Sentinels, victorious in five out of six meets this season, have been installed the favorites after their impressive showings in the city, county, state and University of Maryland meets, which they won along with a dual meet with Keyser. Fort Hill finished second to Handley High in the latter's invitational held at Winchester, Va., early in the season.

William P. Hahn, Fort Hill mentor, and director of the meet, announced last night that five schools will vie tonight in the program of 16 events. Battling it out with the Fort Hillians will be Martinsburg (W. Va.), Frederick (Md.), Beall of Frostburg and Allegany High.

Among The Visitors

Among the visiting stars will be Kibler, Martinsburg, who has hurled the 12 pound shot over 50 feet and has thrown the discus 144 feet; Haugh, of Frederick, sprint specialist who has won the 100 in several meets this year; Netoskie, Martinsburg dash star, and Glenn Workman, Beall's crack quarter miler, who recently hung up a new record in the Allegany County Senior High School meet.

Fort Hill has won the past four invitationals and is the team to beat tonight.

Foy A. Curry, assistant principal at Allegany High School and former AHS track and field mentor, will be the official starter for the track events.

Time For Each Event

The track events will be run off on the following time schedule:

8:00—100 dash trials. 8:10—High hurdles trials. 8:20—880 yard run. 8:30—100' yard dash finals. 8:40—High hurdles finals. 8:50—220 dash trials. 9:00—440 yards run. 9:10—180 low hurdles trials. 9:20—mile run. 9:30—220 dash finals. 9:40—180 low hurdles finals. 9:50—440 relay. 10:00—880 relay. 10:10—medley relay. 10:20—mile relay.

Time for the field events:

8:00—High jump and discus. 8:30—Pole Vault. 8:45—Shot Put. 9:00—Broad jump.

Here Are Past Records

Handley, which was unable to compete, shares eight meet records with Fort Hill. Allegany holds three, Hagerstown and East Palestine, Ohio, two each, and Ridgeley (W. Va.) High one.

Here are the meet records the boys will shoot at tonight:

Average Now Is .543; Arnone Has 9-0 Mark

Clay Leydig now holds a 63-point lead over Ronnie Cage, 1950 champion, in the race for the batting championship in the Bi-State Baseball Conference which concludes its season next week.

The Hyndman High Schol third sacker is now hitting .543 while Cage of Fort Hill boasts an average of .480.

George Miller of Beall High is third with .467 while Emory Wilson, who has hit safely in 10 games for Barton High, is smacking the pill at a .455 clip.

Cage copped the batting crown last year with an all-time high of .613.

Lefty Arnone of Beall High is showing the way in pitching with a 9-0 record and 16 consecutive wins in the league over two seasons. Bobby Raines of Bruce (7-1) holds a 115-109 edge over Arnone in the strikeout race. Doug Connolly, LaSalle, is third among the moundsmen with five wins and two defeats. The averages:

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should children be taught respect?

Answer: Yes, but not primarily in words, and still less by punishment for being "disrespectful." A child's manners are acquired by imitation, and he will tend to show respect to his parents if they are respectful to each other and to him. His attitude towards his father in particular is largely based upon the tone of voice in which his mother uses the word: "Daddy." And of course, respecting a child's feeling and dignity will help teach him to respect you. If you treat him rudely or contemptuously, do not be surprised if he is disrespectful to you as he dares, especially as he grows older.

Can a blind person be hypnotized?

Answer: Just as readily as someone who can see, I am told by Dr. Lewis R. Wolberg, eminent authority and author of "Medical Hypnosis." The once common practice of asking a person who was to be hypnotized to stare at a bright object or into the eyes of the hypnotist, is largely outdated.. Nowadays he is more often merely asked to relax, or even told "Your eyes are so heavy that you cannot keep them open!" The voice and words of the hypnotist are the main vehicles of the suggestion that induces the hypnotic trance, just as it is spoken command to which the subject responds while hypnotized, or afterards.

Is the "hard-boiled" boss scared?

Answer: Yes, though as a rule he doesn't know it and would "take your head off" if you even hinted at such an idea. His "hard-boiledness" actually is his defense against recognizing the inner insecurity which he cannot bear to face. The more secure and self-assured a person feels, the less he will resent a minor deviation from his orders or will feel that he must scold or punish the offender. The one difficulty about working for a person who is sure of himself is that he may not bother to scold you until after he has made up his mind that you are unfitted for your job, and may dismiss you on "short notice."

Five Schools To Vie In Fort Hill Invitation Meet Tonight

Fifth Track And Field Meet At Stadium Will Start At 8

Sentinels Are Hosts To Martinsburg, Beall, Frederick And A. H. S.

Fort Hill High School's fifth annual invitational track and field meet is set for tonight at 8 o'clock at the Fort Hill Stadium.

The Sentinels, victorious in five out of six meets this season, have been installed the favorites after their impressive showings in the city, county, state and University of Maryland meets, which they won along with a dual meet with Keyser. Fort Hill finished second to Handley High in the latter's invitational held at Winchester, Va., early in the season.

William P. Hahn, Fort Hill mentor, and director of the meet, announced last night that five schools will vie tonight in the program of 16 events. Battling it out with the Fort Hillians will be Martinsburg (W. Va.), Frederick (Md.), Beall of Frostburg and Allegany High.

Among The Visitors

Among the visiting stars will be Kibler, Martinsburg, who has hurled the 12 pound shot over 50 feet and has thrown the discus 144 feet; Haugh, of Frederick, sprint specialist who has won the 100 in several meets this year; Netoskie, Martinsburg dash star, and Glenn Workman, Beall's crack quarter miler, who recently hung up a new record in the Allegany County Senior High School meet.

Fort Hill has won the past four invitationals and is the team to beat tonight.

Foy A. Curry, assistant principal at Allegany High School and former AHS track and field mentor, will be the official starter for the track events.

Time For Each Event

The track events will be run off on the following time schedule:

8:00—100 dash trials. 8:10—High hurdles trials. 8:20—880 yard run. 8:30—100' yard dash finals. 8:40—High hurdles finals. 8:50—220 dash trials. 9:00—440 yards run. 9:10—180 low hurdles trials. 9:20—mile run. 9:30—220 dash finals. 9:40—180 low hurdles finals. 9:50—440 relay. 10:00—880 relay. 10:10—medley relay. 10:20—mile relay.

Time for the field events:

8:00—High jump and discus. 8:30—Pole Vault. 8:45—Shot Put. 9:00—Broad jump.

Here Are Past Records

Handley, which was unable to compete, shares eight meet records with Fort Hill. Allegany holds three, Hagerstown and East Palestine, Ohio, two each, and Ridgeley (W. Va.) High one.

Here are the meet records the boys will shoot at tonight:

Average Now Is .543; Arnone Has 9-0 Mark

Clay Leydig now holds a 63-point lead over Ronnie Cage, 1950 champion, in the race for the batting championship in the Bi-State Baseball Conference which concludes its season next week.

The Hyndman High Schol third sacker is now hitting .543 while Cage of Fort Hill boasts an average of .480.

George Miller of Beall High is third with .467 while Emory Wilson, who has hit safely in 10 games for Barton High, is smacking the pill at a .455 clip.

Cage copped the batting crown last year with an all-time high of .613.

Lefty Arnone of Beall High is showing the way in pitching with a 9-0 record and 16 consecutive wins in the league over two seasons. Bobby Raines of Bruce (7-1) holds a 115-109 edge over Arnone in the strikeout race. Doug Connolly, LaSalle, is third among the moundsmen with five wins and two defeats. The averages:

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should children be taught respect?

Answer: Yes, but not primarily in words, and still less by punishment for being "disrespectful." A child's manners are acquired by imitation, and he will tend to show respect to his parents if they are respectful to each other and to him. His attitude towards his father in particular is largely based upon the tone of voice in which his mother uses the word: "Daddy." And of course, respecting a child's feeling and dignity will help teach him to respect you. If you treat him rudely or contemptuously, do not be surprised if he is disrespectful to you as he dares, especially as he grows older.

Can a blind person be hypnotized?

Answer: Just as readily as someone who can see, I am told by Dr. Lewis R. Wolberg, eminent authority and author of "Medical Hypnosis." The once common practice of asking a person who was to be hypnotized to stare at a bright object or into the eyes of the hypnotist, is largely outdated.. Nowadays he is more often merely asked to relax, or even told "Your eyes are so heavy that you cannot keep them open!" The voice and words of the hypnotist are the main vehicles of the suggestion that induces the hypnotic trance, just as it is spoken command to which the subject responds while hypnotized, or afterards.

Is the "hard-boiled" boss scared?

Answer: Yes, though as a rule he doesn't know it and would "take your head off" if you even hinted at such an idea. His "hard-boiledness" actually is his defense against recognizing the inner insecurity which he cannot bear to face. The more secure and self-assured a person feels, the less he will resent a minor deviation from his orders or will feel that he must scold or punish the offender. The one difficulty about working for a person who is sure of himself is that he may not bother to scold you until after he has made up his mind that you are unfitted for your job, and may dismiss you on "short notice."

One American Conquest

ROME.

The most successful export we have made to Europe and one of our best ambassadors in every country is our dance music. It's rather odd when you come to think about it a bit. The world's great music sprang from Europe but the Europeans, at least the current crop, don't seem to understand how to compose a popular song.

John Crosby

You can wander all over Europe and never get out of hearing distance of "Ol' Man River," "Begin The Beguine," "Night and Day" and "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" which are conceivably the four most international songs in the world. The French, the Italians, the Danes — well, name anybody — prefer our old popular songs, the older the better. At Grosvenor House in London you will find the English, a sober race, jiggling up and down sedately to "Bye Bye Blues." And at that football field of the dance floor in the Grande Hotel in Stockholm, you'll find a different crowd but the same tune.

Move over to Helsinki, which has been aptly described as the Tim Costello's of the north — there's only one nightclub there — or at the Wunderbar in Copenhagen you'll hear an awful lot of "After You've Gone." In Berlin at the Golden Horseshoe, where the customers ride horses around a sanded ring for reasons which were never made clear to me, you'll encounter that old-time tune, "Avalon."

In Vienna, at the Moulin Rouge, at this very moment I bet anything you'll find a couple of professional entertainers tap dancing to "Tea For Two" which, of course, is the tune people have been tap dancing to all over the world ever since it was written. In Rome, there is a wonderful restaurant and nightclub called the Hosteria dell Orso in an edifice that was standing there in Dante's day. And the tune we danced to there—"Yes, Sir, That's My Baby" which came along only a few years after Dante.

In Paris — this paragraph may just confuse you a bit at first but stick with me here — the Metro, the subway, contains some of the most glamorous names in France as station stops. One line contains in order the following subway stops — Louvre, Palais Royal, Tuileries, Place de la Cocorde, and Champs Elysees. I took this line once, stopped of at the Lido on the Champs Elysees and got there just in time to hear a girl sing "Take The A Train" which can hardly mean anything to the French. You'd think the French would write songs about their own subways. But no.

I was in that enchantingly beautiful city, Bruges, during the Whitsun holiday, which is strenuously celebrated in Belgium. There were carnivals in all the city squares. Blaring from one of the merry-go-rounds, competing with and almost drowning out the 13th Century bells of the Cathedral of St. Sauveur, was Hoagy Carmichael, old gravel-voice himself, croaking "Am I Blue?"

"Stardust," "Penthouse Serenade," "Time On My Hands" "September Song"—they'll ring in your ears everywhere this side of the Iron Curtain and conceivably on the other side, too. We Americans have not succeeded very well in exporting ideas. We are not very well understood anywhere and neither is democracy of capitalism. It has occurred to me that one device for selling our ideas might be the popular song. Let's get Irving Berlin, Cole Porter, Rogers and Hammerstein and the rest of them to wrap up a few American ideas in good popular dance tunes. They'll be sung all over Europe.

• — • — •

The GI's took the jitterburg, which has pretty well passed out of the picture in America to Europe during the war. It's still there, though not just everywhere. At the Vieux Colombier in Montparnasse, where the Sorbonne students hang out, you'll hear some of the best American jazz in the world, and also see some of the most amazing jitterbugging and Big Apple — a dance which has completely died back home. In both cases, the French have formalized the dances. There is less abandon, less improvisation, and more precision and formal movement, though they are still danced at the speed of light.

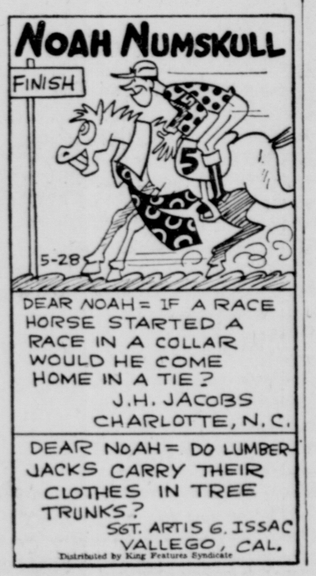
If you find scum in your washer, even on the final rinse, possibly you are using too much soap in the wash water. Try using a water softener, even in the rinse water.



Shrine Temple Plans Ritual Work June 2

Ali Ghan Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, will hold its spring ceremonial Saturday, June 2, in Hagerstown.

A. Wayne Reed, Westernport, chief rabban, will be in charge of ritualistic work. The degree will be conferred in Hagerstown High School, Potomac Avenue. Candidates will report to the recorder at the high school at 2 p. m. A parade of the uniformed units of the temple, led by the band and drum corps will be held at 4 p. m.

Dinner will be served at 6 p. m. in the school cafeteria and the ceremonial will begin at 8 p. m., with H. Clifford Spiker, director, in charge. Dr. Albert C. Cook will be master of ceremonies.

The GI's took the jitterburg, which has pretty well passed out of the picture in America to Europe during the war. It's still there, though not just everywhere. At the Vieux Colombier in Montparnasse, where the Sorbonne students hang out, you'll hear some of the best American jazz in the world, and also see some of the most amazing jitterbugging and Big Apple — a dance which has completely died back home. In both cases, the French have formalized the dances. There is less abandon, less improvisation, and more precision and formal movement, though they are still danced at the speed of light.

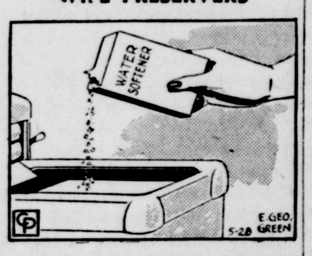
Shrine Temple Plans Ritual Work June 2

Ali Ghan Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, will hold its spring ceremonial Saturday, June 2, in Hagerstown.

A. Wayne Reed, Westernport, chief rabban, will be in charge of ritualistic work. The degree will be conferred in Hagerstown High School, Potomac Avenue. Candidates will report to the recorder at the high school at 2 p. m. A parade of the uniformed units of the temple, led by the band and drum corps will be held at 4 p. m.

Dinner will be served at 6 p. m. in the school cafeteria and the ceremonial will begin at 8 p. m., with H. Clifford Spiker, director, in charge. Dr. Albert C. Cook will be master of ceremonies.

WIFE PRESERVERS



If you find scum in your washer, even on the final rinse, possibly you are using too much soap in the wash water. Try using a water softener, even in the rinse water.

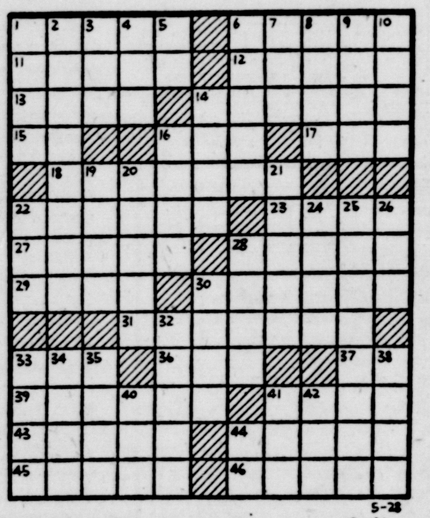
Saturday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

X M L M J Q D E P J Z X X D J Q M J L Y Z
X Y D Q S K S W Q Z D L Y — X L F D E P.

Saturday's Cryptoquote: LIFE IS TO BE FORTIFIED BY MANY FRIENDSHIPS—SMITH.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our son and brother, Donald E. Kight, who passed away one year ago today, May 28, 1950.
A year has passed since God has called
our loved one away,
We've kept his smile within our hearts,
And he is not forgotten for a day.
We often travel to the spot where his
dear body is laid,
For there we knew we were close to him,
And he knows every prayer that is said.
God bless this saddened home today.
MOTHER, FATHER,
BROTHER & SISTERS

In loving memory of my dear son, Enoch W. Fleek, who left me two years ago, May 27th, 1949.
Dear Enoch, I never will forget
That sad and lonely night
Two years ago.
The shock I received that night
Will always with me stay.
Your smile has gone forever
And your sweet hands I cannot touch;
I never will forget you
As long as God lets me live.
Sadly missed by his mother,
sisters and brother

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our son and brother, Donald E. Kight, who passed away one year ago today, May 28, 1950.
A year has passed since God has called
our loved one away,
We've kept his smile within our hearts,
And he is not forgotten for a day.
We often travel to the spot where his
dear body is laid,
For there we knew we were close to him.
And he knows every prayer that is
said,
God bless this saddened home today.
MOTHER, FATHER,
BROTHER & SISTERS

In loving memory of my dear son, Enoch W. Fleek, who left me two years ago, May 27th, 1949.
Dear Enoch, I never will forget
That sad and lonely night
Two years ago.
The shock I received that night
Will always with me stay.
Your smile has gone forever
And your sweet hands I cannot touch;
I never will forget you
As long as God lets me live.
Sadly missed by his mother,
sisters and brother

Rubber Workers Ratify Contract With Tire Plant

Union Shop Included In Chief Provisions

At a special meeting held yesterday afternoon members of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America ratified a new contract with the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

The membership gave the negotiating committee instructions to sign the agreement upon ratification by the International Union of Rubber Workers.

It is understood that the chief provisions of the pact, which will be effective until March 1, 1953, are a union shop and a change in the vacation clause.

At a NLRB election early this year, the workers of the tire plant voted ten-to-one to authorize the committee to negotiate for a union shop.

Actually, only a handful of the some 1,800 hourly paid workers will be affected by the provision, which requires that workers must join the union within a stipulated time in order to continue employment. They do not, however, have to be union members before they are employed.

The new vacation clause, it is reported, allows workers to schedule vacations two or three weeks at a time, based on a seniority preference, if they so desire. Previously, one week of the vacation had to be taken during a plant shutdown, when vacation shutdowns were scheduled.

Wage issues were not discussed during the current contract talks.

Hail Storms Injure Crops

Considerable damage was caused yesterday afternoon by hail storms which occurred throughout the Twiggtown and Flintstone area. Reports indicate stones large as "marbles" fell for about 10 minutes east of Cumberland although damage was not too great.

Motorists along the Martins Mountain Highway said last night the leaves of trees were beat off and much damage was seen along the route round 4 o'clock.

Hit hardest in the spotty storms were small truck farms, orchards and early plants. Locally the weatherman gave out with intermittent rainfall throughout the day.

Seven Complete Fire Course

Seven members of District 16 Volunteer Fire Company, North Branch, received qualifying cards yesterday evening at a dinner in the fire hall for completion of a Fire School Course sponsored by the Fire Extension, College of Engineering, University of Maryland.

Receiving the cards presented by William A. Wilson, Midland, treasurer of the Maryland Fire Association, were Robert C. Brown, Harold B. Chaney, Chester Delawder, J. W. MacDonald, Norman Twigg, Carl G. Valentine, Delbert R. Valentine.

C. C. Larrimore, senior instructor for the Extension, presented a certificate to the volunteer fire company in recognition of the members completing the course. Cromwell Zembower, instructor, president of La-Vale Volunteer Fire Company and vice president of the State Firemen Association, presented each fireman with an official arm insignia denoting successful completion of the course.

Dinner was prepared and served by the Firemen Auxiliary.

Old License Plate Is Discovered

An old Maryland auto license plate, now a collector's item, was discovered last week during excavation work on the flood project on the West Side. The 38-year-old plate, dated 1913, was found by Ed Fort, Brooklyn, N. Y., foreman on the construction job at Paca Street where the discovery was made. Russell Riggs, an auxiliary policeman on duty in the area, said the plate was in an almost perfect state of preservation. On the back of the plate could be read the words "Baltimore Enamel and Novelty Company, Baltimore, Maryland." Riggs then compared the old plate with the present day issue on his car, noting the difference in the numbers. The figures on the old plate were considered high in those days but the present day issues run into far greater figures. The 1913 plate was black with large yellow letters and numbers, probably representative of Maryland's colors, black and orange.

Edward Murray Re-Elected Head VFW District

State Convention Set For June 22

Edward J. Murray, Mt. Savage, a World War II veteran was re-elected commander of District No. 3, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at a meeting yesterday in Henry Hart Post No. 1411, VFW home here.

Named to serve with him are Marion Dorsey, McCoole, junior vice commander; Vernon Crable, Cumberland, senior vice commander; John Neder, Mt. Savage, quartermaster; Russell Reynolds, city, chaplain; Peter Carpenti, Cumberland, judge advocate; and Dr. James P. Hallinan, Cumberland and Mt. Savage, surgeon.

Crable and Carpenti, along with Murray were re-elected to second terms.

Following the election, Frank Webb, state department junior vice commander installed the new officers and refreshments were served.

Murray said last night he has appointed Thomas K. Whalley of the Cumberland post to serve as district adjutant.

Murray congratulated posts of District No. 3, for the record made in 1951 memberships. This district, he explained is the only one of 16 in the state to reach its 100 per cent quota of membership. Compared with last year, the district membership hit the 102 per cent mark yesterday.

There are only 16 districts in the entire United States with a 100 per cent membership thus far this year, and Western Maryland's District No. 3 is one of these.

The district also has another unique membership record for 1951 Murray told the delegates. In each of five divisions, based upon the size of the posts, District No. 3 posts lead the state. Henry Hart Post is first in Division "A". Lonaconing's Alvin C. Neat Post leads Division "B". Old Rail Post, Mt. Savage tops division "C"; Friendsville Post leads Division "D" and Oakland Post heads Division "E".

The state department VFW convention will be held in Ocean City, Md., June 22-24, Murray announced.

Retired Mt. Savage Welder Is Stricken

Joseph P. Dickel, 66, Mt. Savage, was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday morning after suffering a stroke at his home. He is a retired welder of the Western Maryland Railway and was honored last week by members of the Machinists Local here for 42 years of service. Last night his condition was reported as "fair".

Today's Sermonette

If I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am become sounding brass, or clanging symbol. And if I have the gift of prophecy, and know all mysteries and all knowledge; and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing. 1 Cor. 13:1-2.

By REV. O. AFTON LINGER

The Greatest Thing In The World

Rev. Linger

In his famous essay, "The Greatest Thing in the World," Henry Drummond said, "Every one has asked himself the question of antiquity as of the modern world: What is the summum bonum — the supreme good? You have life before you. Once only can you live it. What is the noblest object of desire, the supreme gift to covet? . . . I have taken you, in the chapter which I have just read (1 Cor. 13) to Christianity as its source: and there we have seen, 'The greatest of these is love.'"

In a letter from one whom I consider the greatest Christian I know, J. Rufus Moseley, I received these words, "I saw with new authority that love is life and that we only live as we love, and we love because He is love and loves us and loves all. So it is vital union with Him (Christ) and the continuous receptivity and response to His love and the outgoing of His love that matters. This is the heart of the whole thing. This is what it is all about."

As we face the words of the Scriptures and the testimonies of great Christian men, let us ask ourselves, "Why is love the greatest thing in the world?"

Love is the greatest thing in the world, because God is love.

"Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God . . . He that loveth not knoweth not God: for God is love." (1 Jno. 4:7,8.)

"Love is of God!" So, we would not know love, even human love, if it were not by the mercy and love of God.

Since "God is love" and love is the very essence and nature of God, when we are converted, or come to know God and have the life of God within our hearts, we must have love.

While we seek to know the greatest things in the world through our own powers and superior intelligence, we may well listen to the simple words of the Master again: "I thank Thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that Thou didst hide these things from the wise and understanding and didst reveal them unto babes." (Matt. 11:25 ASV.)

Spiritual life, light, and enlightenment can come by God's way alone. John the beloved disciple said. "Herein was the love of God manifested in us, that God hath sent His only begotten Son into the world that we might live through Him." (1 Jno. 4:9.) Love is the greatest thing in the world because it is of God and is made known through God's revelation to us. God took the first step and the initiative in our salvation. If we have wandered, as prodigals, into the far country of sin, it will be His great love that will follow us. Though we feel that we have assumed the obligation and responsibility, when we say, "I will arise and go to my Father," it is not us, but God, the loving Father, who gives us that impulse. "For," as the Master said, "God sent not His Son into the world to judge the world; but that the world should be saved through Him." (John 3:17.)

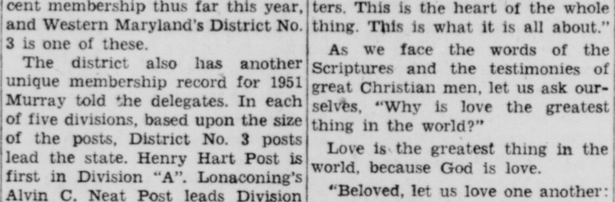
Love is the greatest thing in the world, because Jesus said so in His two great commandments.

A lawyer asked the Saviour, "Master, which is the great commandment of the law?" "Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord Thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment." But, "How," we ask, "can we come to know this great love?" Again, it is of God. "We love because he first loved us." When we were born into the world we knew neither love nor hate. We learned to love because the mother who gave us birth loved us. She smiled her love into our faces and we learned love through her love. "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us." (1 John 4:10). In the revealed Scriptures we have a recordd of that love of God. We read it and see what God has done for us and then we understand the statement of the Lord Jesus Christ, as he speaks of the great commandment.

This greatest thing in the world, the love of God, known in the New Testament by the Greek word "agape," has another side to it. Jesus in his answer to the lawyer did not hesitate to give expression to it, when he said: "And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." That no doubt inspired the words of John when he said, "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." (I John, 4-11). And also these words: "If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and His love is perfected in us." (1 Jno. 4:12). Then, climaxing all his statements about love, the "Apostle of Love" said, "If any man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen." (1 Jno. 4:20).

The world has witnessed many things in the lives of those who profess to be followers of Christ. The one thing which has been most conspicuous for its absence has been love. While it was said of the Christians of other days. "See how these Christians love one another!" we have missed the mark in many cases today.

As we near Memorial Day, let us remember that we can honor our dead in no better way than to enlist "for the duration" of our earthly lives in the services of Him who is the King of Love. If we wish to raise memorials, let us lift them in shafts bearing the words of Paul: "Love never fails . . . But now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; and the greatest of these is love."



Get Duke Degrees

Two Cumberland students are candidates for degrees at Duke University's 99th Commencement, Monday, June 4, at 10:30 in the Indoor Stadium, at Durham, N. C. Noyes T. Powers, (left), son of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Powers, 505 Washington Street, will receive an A. B. degree. Wheeler D. Weber, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Weber, 500 Oldtown Road will receive a B. S. M. Legion Outlines Boys State At District Confab

Program Scheduled June 22 To July 3

Annual Boys State program scheduled next month was outlined at a meeting of Mountain District, American Legion, yesterday at Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, Harrison Street.

Russell C. Paupe, department vice commander, will head a committee of three to take charge of the annual affair sponsored by the American Legion. This year's camp will be held at Fort George G. Meade, June 22 through July 3, Paupe said.

Members Named

Other members of the committee are Howard M. Spiker and J. Leslie Clark. Any organization in the district which wishes to sponsor a boy to attend Boys State may do so by securing an application blank from Howard Spiker at Fort Cumberland Post or from any commander of the nine posts in the district, the vice commander noted.

The program has been sponsored each year by the Legion for the past three or four years, Paupe said, and the youths who attend the encampment learn local, state and national government and elect mayor and council, a governor and two senators during the program.

Paupe pointed out that the youths who attend the program must be between 15 and 18 years of age, in junior high school, and physically fit. They should be leaders in their groups, such as camping units, debating teams, athletes and others.

All boys attending Boys State will be covered by insurance and will be provided meals, lodging, medical and dental attention. They will be given "T" shirts and text books during their 10-day stay. All are advised to take along toilet articles and enough school clothing for the trip. Also, athletic equipment and musical instruments may be taken along.

Cost Is Small

District organizations who wish to sponsor a boy to the camp are informed the cost for transportation and the program is about $30 per boy, Paupe said.

Delegates from the nine district posts attended the meeting. Posts in the district are Oakland, Accident, Lonaconing, Midland, Barton, Frostburg, Corriganville and Fort Cumberland and Fulton Myers posts in Cumberland.

News In Brief

The installation of officers of Local 26, United Rubber, Linoleum, Cork and Plastic Workers Union of America, will be held June 2 at the Midland Fire Hall. A dance will follow ceremonies.

W. Kenneth Crowe, Frostburg, was elected second vice president of the Maryland Moose Association yesterday at Salisbury.

The Allegany County Junior Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Martin Weisman will play its debut concert in Allegany High School auditorium Thursday at 8 p. m.

Colored movies of the construction of the ice skating area at Gephart Playground will be shown at a meeting of the playground association tonight at 8 o'clock.

An outdoor festival sponsored by the organizations of St. Mary's Catholic Church will be held June 5 and 6 at the school grounds. Andrew J. Saliga is general chairman.

Miss Eileen Twigg, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Twigg, 409 Laing Avenue, is recovering in Memorial Hospital from a tonsilectomy performed Wednesday.

The Allegany Hospital Aid Society will hold its regular meeting tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Nurses Home, Decatur Street.

Two Local Insurance Men Are Promoted By Company

Two Cumberland men have received promotions in the Baltimore Life Insurance Company with one advancing to the Hagerstown district of the organization and the other taking charge of the local branch office.

George H. Rhea was named manager of the newly formed Hagerstown district of the company which is comprised of branch offices in Cumberland, Frederick and Hagerstown.

Rhea, a member of the local Lions club, assumed his duties in Hagerstown May 14 and will make his residence in the Washington County city where the district main office will be located. He had been manager of the Cumberland office here since July 5, 1949 and prior to that date was staff superintendent for the company in Chambersburg, Pa.

Leo P. Peterson was elevated to the position of staff superintendent of the Cumberland office May 21, taking over the duties formerly handled by Rhea.

Peterson formerly was employed by the Celanese Corporation of America before becoming an agent for the insurance firm here January of last year. Peterson attended St. Mary's school here and recently qualified as a member of the organization's Honor Club for 1950.

Married to the former Rose Marie Kelly and the father of four children, Peterson makes his home at 210 Cumberland Street.

Twin Baby Deer Born To Bambi At Constitution Park

Something new has been added at Constitution Park, and in time for the formal opening Memorial Day.

According to Russell R. Golden, park superintendent, Bambi and Jasper, the park's pair of pet deer, have twins.

The two tiny fawn were born to Bambi Friday, and Jasper, like all proud fathers has been throwing his weight around ever since.

Consistent with the practice and instinct of male deer, Jasper won't let anyone near Bambi or the two little offspring, but yesterday several hundred visitors at the park, stopped by the deer pen to see the new arrivals.

According to Golden, "mother and twins are doing nicely, but Jaspar, for awhile at least, is expected to be quite a problem."

Allegany High Class Sermon Set For June 3

Rev. Seth C. Morrow, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, will deliver the sermon to the graduating class of Allegany High School Sunday, June 3, at 2:30 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Rev. Morrow's sermon will be "The American Dream," and will be the high point of the service, final ceremony for the 1951 graduates prior to commencement exercises.

The service program will begin with the processional "Pomp and Circumstance," by Elgar with Carole Reith at the organ. The class will sing the hymn "God of Our Fathers" by Warren and Rev. Morrow will give the invocation. A responsive reading, Psalm No. 1, will follow and the Allegany High School choir will sing "Open Our Eyes," by Macfarlane.

The Scripture Lesson will be read from Jeremiah 6:6-16 and the Octet will sing "He Is My Savior," by Bach-Sateren, prior to Rev. Morrow's sermon.

Following the sermon the choir will sing "Sing and Rejoice"—James, and the audience will participate with the hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers,"—Hemy-Walton. Rev. Morrow will give the benediction and the recessional "Recessional," by Thorne will be played by Miss Reith at the organ at the conclusion of the program.

One of the touching moments during the program will be when the graduating class surrenders its seats to the junior class who move up as seniors next year.

Allegany High's Commencement exercises will be held at the school auditorium, June 8, at 8 p. m.

District VFW Groups Elect New Officers

Grace Cross To Head Women's Auxiliaries

District No. 3, Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliaries elected officers at the annual encampment yesterday at Alvin C. Neat Post, Lonaconing.

Savage, junior vice president; Rosalie Everstine, Cumberland, treasurer; M. Bayton, Queen's Point Post, McCoole, chaplain; Nellie Hotchkiss, Mt. Savage, conductress; and J. Risler, William D. Byron Post, Hagerstown, guard.

The first official act of the newly-elected president was to appoint Mary Moore, Cumberland, secretary; Dellene Norris, Cumberland, patriotic instructress; Chloe Reynolds, Cumberland, musician; Grace Bosenberg, Cumberland, publicity chairman; R. Lease, Frostburg, T. Nixon, Clifford Sisler Post, Oldtown, D. Wilkes, McCoole and J. Perdew, Mr. Savage, as color bearers; I. Harbell, Frostburg, K. Zapf, Oldtown and P. Ballard, Hagerstown, as auditors and Helen Zimmerman, Cumberland, historian.

All officers except the president were installed yesterday by Grace Bosenberg. President Grace Cross will be installed to office at the department encampment at Ocean City next month.

Past state department president, Elsie Kilroy, Cumberland, attended yesterday's meeting and Henry Hart Post, Cumberland, draped the charter in honor of deceased members.

About 60 delegates from seven posts were present at the election and installation of officers.

Liquor Violation Hearing Set

A hearing has been set for this morning at Police Court involving violation of City Ordinance Chapter 10, Section 1, F. W. Bierman, 13 Harrison Street, was taken into custody yesterday afternoon for the unlawful sale of intoxicating beverages.

Five Injured In Accidents Over Weekend

Two Hitchhikers Hurt At Wright's Crossing

Five persons were injured, none seriously, in a serious of weekend accidents along the county highways. Early yesterday morning two trucks were involved in a mishap at Wright's Crossing. The driver of one truck, whom state police did not identify last night, ran into a milk truck operated by Robert William Flower, Meyersdale, Pa.

Ray Mayhew, about 21, Franklin, Md., a hitchhiker in the dairy truck was taken to Miners Hospital, Frostburg for treatment. Earl Beeman, Midland, a hitchhiker in the other truck was also treated at the hospital and later released.

According to State Police the truck ran into the dairy vehicle and spilled milk and bottles all along the highway. The roof fell in on the unidentified driver and the doors dropped off. The latter driver had no license and last night was still being sought by police.

Two automobiles were involved in an accident last night at Longhill about 6:30 o'clock and considerable damage, police say, was caused to the vehicles. A truck upset on Oldtown Road about 5:30 p. m. yesterday but no one was injured. Police were still investigating.

Automobile Demolished

Mrs. Edith S. Showalter, South George Street, was reported "resting well" at Memorial Hospital last night where she was admitted with facial lacerations early Friday morning. Her husband, James J. Showalter, driver of the car which was demolished in an accident with a tractor-trailer on Route 51 at Spring Gap, sustained a fractured left arm. Calvin C. Larch, Frame, W. Va. driver of the truck was uninjured. Police said the drivers blamed blindness from lights as the cause. Traffic was blocked from 1:40 a. m. until 5:30 a. m. in the $4,000 accident.

Student Injured

In another accident, several Ridgeley High School seniors were involved in an accident along Braddock Road when a car driven by Charles B. Baker, 2 Lyons Street, Ridgeley, W. Va.; struck a guard rail. A coupe driven by Charles D. Shaffer, 419 Fayette Street, ascending the mountain hit the Baker car in the side and struck Ronald Burgess, Virginia Avenue, knocking him over the guard rail. He was taken to Allegany Hospital for injuries but discharged Saturday. Blinding lights were also blamed in this accident.

Walter LeFevre, Ohio, was reported in satisfactory condition at Allegany Hospital last night. He was admitted Saturday night with back injuries sustained when his tractor-trailer jacknifed while ascending Polish Mountain. A tire blew out, LeFevre said, causing the mishap.

Investigating the car-tractor-trailer wreck was State Trooper Charles DeWitt and in investigating the Braddock Road mishap were City Police Officer Joseph Stitcher and J. W. Snyder.

No charges were filed in either accident.

Marriage Licenses

Joseph James Emerick and Margaret Susan Diehl, both Mt. Savage.

Harry Ellis Matthews, Pekin, and Neva Violet Berry, Barton.

WEATHER

Yesterday was one of the most changeable days thus far this year. Churchgoers scurried for cover during the morning. The sun tried to remain out but the cloudy skies intervened. A rainbow was seen over the Queen City last evening. The weather station at Constitution Park recorded a high of 64, a low of 49 and at 8:30 o'clock last night the thermometer stood at 55 degrees. Precipitation amounted to .03 of an inch, dew point was 46 and humidity 67 percent. Partly cloudy with scattered showers in the mountains is predicted for today.

Bedford Boy With Heart Of Big Leaguer Enters Shriner's Hospital For Operations

By HUGO FREAR
Managing Editor, Bedford Gazette

BEDFORD, Pa., May 25 (AP) — Young Jim Wise is a big leaguer at heart—and he's ready to go the route.

That's why Jim, the 13-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald (Nick) Wise of Bedford, is in Shriner's Hospital in Philadelphia for a series of three major operations.

Jim loves sports just like his dad, who is president of the Bedford County Baseball League. He's pretty good, too. He pitched for the Lions team in the Little League last summer and was one of its best hurlers.

One-Armed Catch

Jim also plays football. You should have seen him making a one-armed catch of a forward pass and scamper for a touchdown. And he's won his numerals in basketball.

Yes, Jim has the drive and ability and will to win. But Jim also has something which automatically would put most boys his age on the sidelines. Jim has a bad arm.

You don't notice it at first the way the kid scampers around making sensational one-arm catches, or the way he steams a fast ball in from the mound with a stance that is in the pattern of the big leaguers.

JIM WISE

Paralyzed Since Birth

Jim's left arm has been paralyzed since birth. He has to catch and throw a baseball with his one good arm. It's quite a trick—the way he catches the ball, flips the glove down on his wrist then throws the ball to a teammate.

Jim has licked his handicap. He's not only as good as kids his age but better than most. But that doesn't satisfy a fellow who's a big leaguer at heart—and that's Jim's driving ambition in life.

With a good left arm he knows he'll be better. With two good arms he can take part in athletics when the going gets tougher. Jim talked it over with his dad and mother and they talked it over with doctors.

Then came the big chance—to enter Shriner's Hospital. Jim is being sponsored there by two Shriners, Frederick Metzler of Philadelphia and W. Freeland Kendrick, chairman emeritus of the hospital's board.

It will take three operations and Jim will spend his summer vacation in bed. Even then the doctors have told him they can't guarantee a thing. Sometimes these operations work out—sometimes they don't.

"The kid knows the odds," says his auto mechanic father, "and he wants to go ahead. We're grateful he's been given the chance. We can only hope and pray it works out."

Back in his home town of Bedford, a lot of people hope so, too. They know a kid with a big leaguer's heart—and they're pulling for him as he starts out on the long route.

Rubber Workers Ratify Contract With Tire Plant

Union Shop Included In Chief Provisions

At a special meeting held yesterday afternoon members of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America ratified a new contract with the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

The membership gave the negotiating committee instructions to sign the agreement upon ratification by the International Union of Rubber Workers.

It is understood that the chief provisions of the pact, which will be effective until March 1, 1953, are a union shop and a change in the vacation clause.

At a NLRB election early this year, the workers of the tire plant voted ten-to-one to authorize the committee to negotiate for a union shop.

Actually, only a handful of the some 1,800 hourly paid workers will be affected by the provision, which requires that workers must join the union within a stipulated time in order to continue employment. They do not, however, have to be union members before they are employed.

The new vacation clause, it is reported, allows workers to schedule vacations two or three weeks at a time, based on a seniority preference, if they so desire. Previously, one week of the vacation had to be taken during a plant shutdown, when vacation shutdowns were scheduled.

Wage issues were not discussed during the current contract talks.

Hail Storms Injure Crops

Considerable damage was caused yesterday afternoon by hail storms which occurred throughout the Twiggtown and Flintstone area. Reports indicate stones large as "marbles" fell for about 10 minutes east of Cumberland although damage was not too great.

Motorists along the Martins Mountain Highway said last night the leaves of trees were beat off and much damage was seen along the route round 4 o'clock.

Hit hardest in the spotty storms were small truck farms, orchards and early plants. Locally the weatherman gave out with intermittent rainfall throughout the day.

Seven Complete Fire Course

Seven members of District 16 Volunteer Fire Company, North Branch, received qualifying cards yesterday evening at a dinner in the fire hall for completion of a Fire School Course sponsored by the Fire Extension, College of Engineering, University of Maryland.

Receiving the cards presented by William A. Wilson, Midland, treasurer of the Maryland Fire Association, were Robert C. Brown, Harold B. Chaney, Chester Delawder, J. W. MacDonald, Norman Twigg, Carl G. Valentine, Delbert R. Valentine.

C. C. Larrimore, senior instructor for the Extension, presented a certificate to the volunteer fire company in recognition of the members completing the course. Cromwell Zembower, instructor, president of La-Vale Volunteer Fire Company and vice president of the State Firemen Association, presented each fireman with an official arm insignia denoting successful completion of the course.

Dinner was prepared and served by the Firemen Auxiliary.

False Alarm Answered

South End Firemen answered a false alarm early yesterday morning. Box 634, corner of Massachusetts Avenue and Oldtown Road was pulled at 5:15 a. m.

Old License Plate Is Discovered

An old Maryland auto license plate, now a collector's item, was discovered last week during excavation work on the flood project on the West Side. The 38-year-old plate, dated 1913, was found by Ed Fort, Brooklyn, N. Y., foreman on the construction job at Paca Street where the discovery was made. Russell Riggs, an auxiliary policeman on duty in the area, said the plate was in an almost perfect state of preservation. On the back of the plate could be read the words "Baltimore Enamel and Novelty Company, Baltimore, Maryland." Riggs then compared the old plate with the present day issue on his car, noting the difference in the numbers. The figures on the old plate were considered high in those days but the present day issues run into far greater figures. The 1913 plate was black with large yellow letters and numbers, probably representative of Maryland's colors, black and orange.

Edward Murray Re-Elected Head VFW District

State Convention Set For June 22

Edward J. Murray, Mt. Savage, a World War II veteran was re-elected commander of District No. 3, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at a meeting yesterday in Henry Hart Post No. 1411, VFW home here.

Named to serve with him are Marion Dorsey, McCoole, junior vice commander; Vernon Crable, Cumberland, senior vice commander; John Neder, Mt. Savage, quartermaster; Russell Reynolds, city, chaplain; Peter Carpenti, Cumberland, judge advocate; and Dr. James P. Hallinan, Cumberland and Mt. Savage, surgeon.

Crable and Carpenti, along with Murray were re-elected to second terms.

Following the election, Frank Webb, state department junior vice commander installed the new officers and refreshments were served.

Murray said last night he has appointed Thomas K. Whalley of the Cumberland post to serve as district adjutant.

Murray congratulated posts of District No. 3, for the record made in 1951 memberships. This district, he explained is the only one of 16 in the state to reach its 100 per cent quota of membership. Compared with last year, the district membership hit the 102 per cent mark yesterday.

There are only 16 districts in the entire United States with a 100 per cent membership thus far this year, and Western Maryland's District No. 3 is one of these.

The district also has another unique membership record for 1951 Murray told the delegates. In each of five divisions, based upon the size of the posts, District No. 3 posts lead the state. Henry Hart Post is first in Division "A". Lonaconing's Alvin C. Neat Post leads Division "B". Old Rail Post, Mt. Savage tops division "C"; Friendsville Post leads Division "D" and Oakland Post heads Division "E".

The state department VFW convention will be held in Ocean City, Md., June 22-24, Murray announced.

So it is vital union with Him (Christ) and the continuous receptivity and response to His love and the outgoing of His love that matters. This is the heart of the whole thing. This is what it is all about."

As we face the words of the Scriptures and the testimonies of great Christian men, let us ask ourselves, "Why is love the greatest thing in the world?"

Love is the greatest thing in the world, because God is love.

"Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God . . . He that loveth not knoweth not God: for God is love." (1 Jno. 4:7,8.)

"Love is of God!" So, we would not know love, even human love, if it were not by the mercy and love of God.

Since "God is love" and love is the very essence and nature of God, when we are converted, or come to know God and have the life of God within our hearts, we must have love.

While we seek to know the greatest things in the world through our own powers and superior intelligence, we may well listen to the simple words of the Master again: "I thank Thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that Thou didst hide these things from the wise and understanding and didst reveal them unto babes." (Matt. 11:25 ASV.)

Spiritual life, light, and enlightenment can come by God's way alone. John the beloved disciple said, "Herein was the love of God manifested in us, that God hath sent His only begotten Son into the world that we might live through Him." (1 Jno. 4:9.) Love is the greatest thing in the world because it is of God and is made known through God's revelation to us. God took the first step and the initiative in our salvation. If we have wandered, as prodigals into the far country of sin, it will be His great love that will follow us. Though we feel that we have assumed the obligation and responsibility, when we say, "I will arise and go to my Father," it is not us, but God, the loving Father, who gives us that impulse. "For," as the Master said, "God sent not His Son into the world to judge the world; but that the world should be saved through Him." (John 3:17.)

Love is the greatest thing in the world, because Jesus said so in His two great commandments.

A lawyer asked the Saviour, "Master, which is the great commandment of the law?" "Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord Thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment." But, "How," we ask, "can we come to know this great love?" Again, it is of God. "We love because the first loved us." When we were born into the world we knew neither love nor hate. We learned to love because the mother who gave us birth loved us. She smiled her love into our faces and we learned love through her love. "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us." (1 John 4:10). In the revealed Scriptures we have a recordd of that love of God. We read it and see what God has done for us and then we understand the statement of the Lord Jesus Christ, as he speaks of the great commandment.

This greatest thing in the world, the love of God, known in the New Testament by the Greek word "agape," has another side to it. Jesus in his answer to the lawyer did not hesitate to give expression to it, when he said: "And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." That no doubt inspired the words of John when he said, "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." (I John, 4-11). And also these words: "If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and His love is perfected in us." (1 Jno. 4:12). Then, climaxing all his statements about love, the "Apostle of Love" said, "If any man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen." (1 Jno. 4:20).

The world has witnessed many things in the lives of those who profess to be followers of Christ. The one thing which has been most conspicuous for its absence has been love. While it was said of the Christians of other days, "See how these Christians love one another!" we have missed the mark in many cases today.

As we near Memorial Day, let us remember that we can honor our dead in no better way than to enlist "for the duration" of our earthly lives in the services of Him who is the King of Love. If we wish to raise memorials, let us lift them in shafts bearing the words of Paul: "Love never fails . . . But now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; and the greatest of these is love."

Get Duke Degrees

Two Cumberland students are candidates for degrees at Duke University's 99th Commencement, Monday, June 4, at 10:30 in the Indoor Stadium, at Durham, N. C. Noyes T. Powers, (left), son of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Powers, 505 Washington Street, will receive an A. B. degree. Wheeler D. Weber, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Weber, 500 Oldtown Road will receive a B. S. M. E. degree. Powers is a Phi Beta Kappa student and played on the football and baseball teams. He was also on the Dean's list for three years, a member of the Red Friars and president of the senior class, 1950.

Legion Outlines Boys State At District Confab

Program Scheduled June 22 To July 3

Annual Boys State program scheduled next month was outlined at a meeting of Mountain District, American Legion, yesterday at Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, Harrison Street.

Russell C. Paupe, department vice commander, will head a committee of three to take charge of the annual affair sponsored by the American Legion. This year's camp will be held at Fort George G. Meade, June 22 through July 3, Paupe said.

Members Named

Other members of the committee are Howard M. Spiker and J. Leslie Clark. Any organization in the district which wishes to sponsor a boy to attend Boys State may do so by securing an application blank from Howard Spiker at Fort Cumberland Post or from any commander of the nine posts in the district, the vice commander noted.

The program has been sponsored each year by the Legion for the past three or four years, Paupe said, and the youths who attend the encampment learn local, state and national government and elect mayor and council, a governor and two senators during the program.

Paupe pointed out that the youths who attend the program must be between 15 and 18 years of age, in junior high school, and physically fit. They should be leaders in their groups, such as camping units, debating teams, athletes and others.

All boys attending Boys State will be covered by insurance and will be provided meals, lodging, medical and dental attention. They will be given "T" shirts and text books during their 10-day stay. All are advised to take along toilet articles and enough school clothing for the trip. Also, athletic equipment and musical instruments may be taken along.

Cost Is Small

District organizations who wish to sponsor a boy to the camp are informed the cost for transportation and the program is about $30 per boy, Paupe said.

Delegates from the nine district posts attended the meeting. Posts in the district are Oakland, Accident, Lonaconing, Midland, Barton, Frostburg, Corriganville and Fort Cumberland and Fulton Myers posts in Cumberland.

News In Brief

The installation of officers of Local 26, United Rubber, Linoleum, Cork and Plastic Workers Union of America, will be held June 2 at the Midland Fire Hall. A dance will follow ceremonies.

W. Kenneth Crowe, Frostburg, was elected second vice president of the Maryland Moose Association yesterday at Salisbury.

The Allegany County Junior Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Martin Weisman will play its debut concert in Allegany High School auditorium Thursday at 8 p. m.

Colored movies of the construction of the ice skating area at Gephart Playground will be shown at a meeting of the playground association tonight at 8 o'clock.

An outdoor festival sponsored by the organizations of St. Mary's Catholic Church will be held June 5 and 6 at the school grounds, Andrew J. Saliga is general chairman.

Miss Eileen Twigg, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Twigg, 409 Laing Avenue, is recovering in Memorial Hospital from a tonsilectomy performed Wednesday.

The Allegany Hospital Aid Society will hold its regular meeting tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Nurses Home, Decatur Street.

Two Local Insurance Men Are Promoted By Company

Two Cumberland men have received promotions in the Baltimore Life Insurance Company with one advancing to the Hagerstown district of the organization and the other taking charge of the local branch office.

George H. Rhea was named manager of the newly formed Hagerstown district of the company which is comprised of branch offices in Cumberland, Frederick and Hagerstown.

Rhea, a member of the local Lions club, assumed his duties in Hagerstown May 14 and will make his residence in the Washington County city where the district main office will be located. He had been manager of the Cumberland office here since July 5, 1949 and prior to that date was staff superintendent for the company in Chambersburg, Pa.

Leo P. Peterson was elevated to the position of staff superintendent of the Cumberland office May 21, taking over the duties formerly handled by Rhea.

Peterson formerly was employed by the Celanese Corporation of America before becoming an agent for the insurance firm here January of last year. Peterson attended St. Mary's school here and recently qualified as a member of the organization's Honor Club for 1950.

Married to the former Rose Marie Kelly and the father of four children, Peterson makes his home at 210 Cumberland Street.

Twin Baby Deer Born To Bambi At Constitution Park

Something new has been added at Constitution Park, and in time for the formal opening Memorial Day.

According to Russell R. Golden, park superintendent, Bambi and Jasper, the park's pair of pet deer, have twins.

The two tiny fawn were born to Bambi Friday, and Jasper, like all proud fathers has been throwing his weight around ever since.

Consistent with the practice and instinct of male deer, Jasper won't let anyone near Bambi or the two little offspring, but yesterday several hundred visitors at the park, stopped by the deer pen to see the new arrivals.

According to Golden, "mother and twins are doing nicely, but Jaspar, for awhile at least, is expected to be quite a problem."

Allegany High Class Sermon Set For June 3

Rev. Seth C. Morrow, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, will deliver the sermon to the graduating class of Allegany High School Sunday, June 3, at 2:30 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Rev. Morrow's sermon will be "The American Dream," and will be the high point of the service, final ceremony for the 1951 graduates prior to commencement exercises.

The service program will begin with the processional "Pomp and Circumstance," by Elgar with Carole Reith at the organ. The class will sing the hymn "God of Our Fathers" by Warren and Rev. Morrow will give the invocation. A responsive reading, Psalm No. 1, will follow and the Allegany High School choir will sing "Open Our Eyes," by Macfarlane.

The Scripture Lesson will be read from Jeremiah 6:6-16 and the Octet will sing "He Is My Savior," by Bach-Sateren, prior to Rev. Morrow's sermon.

Following the sermon the choir will sing "Sing and Rejoice"—James, and the audience will participate with the hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers,"—Hemy-Walton. Rev. Morrow will give the benediction and the recessional "Recessional," by Thorne will be played by Miss Reith at the organ at the conclusion of the program.

One of the touching moments during the program will be when the graduating class surrenders its seats to the junior class who move up as seniors next year.

Allegany High's Commencement exercises will be held at the school auditorium, June 8, at 8 p. m.

District VFW Groups Elect New Officers

Grace Cross To Head Women's Auxiliaries

District No. 3, Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliaries elected officers at the annual encampment yesterday at Alvin C. Neat Post, Lonaconing.

Grace Cross, Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Cumberland, was elected president, succeeding retiring president, Jennie Smith of Lonaconing.

Other officers named were Vera Nave, John Fairgrieve Post, Frostburg, senior vice president; Iris Stowell, Old Rail Post, Mt. Savage, junior vice president; Rosalie Everstine, Cumberland, treasurer; M. Bayton, Queen's Point Post, McCoole, chaplain; Nellie Hotchkiss, Mt. Savage, conductress; and J. Risler, William D. Byron Post, Hagerstown, guard.

The first official act of the newly-elected president was to appoint Mary Moore, Cumberland, secretary; Dellene Norris, Cumberland, patriotic instructress; Chloe Reynolds, Cumberland, musician; Grace Bosenberg, Cumberland, publicity chairman; R. Lease, Frostburg, T. Nixon, Clifford Sisler Post, Oldtown, D. Wilkes, McCoole and J. Perdew, Mr. Savage, as color bearers; I. Harbell, Frostburg, K. Zapf, Oldtown and P. Ballard, Hagerstown, as auditors and Helen Zimmerman, Cumberland, historian.

All officers except the president were installed yesterday by Grace Bosenberg. President Grace Cross will be installed to office at the department encampment at Ocean City next month.

Past state department president, Elsie Kilroy, Cumberland, attended yesterday's meeting and Henry Hart Post, Cumberland, draped the charter in honor of deceased members.

About 60 delegates from seven posts were present at the election and installation of officers.

Liquor Violation Hearing Set

A hearing has been set for this morning at Police Court involving violation of City Ordinance Chapter 10, Section 1, F. W. Bierman, 13 Harrison Street, was taken into custody yesterday afternoon for the unlawful sale of intoxicating beverages.

Five Injured In Accidents Over Weekend

Two Hitchhikers Hurt At Wright's Crossing

Five persons were injured, none seriously, in a serious of weekend accidents along the county highways. Early yesterday morning two trucks were involved in a mishap at Wright's Crossing. The driver of one truck, whom state police did not identify last night, ran into a milk truck operated by Robert William Flower, Meyersdale, Pa.

Ray Mayhew, about 21, Franklin, Md., a hitchhiker in the dairy truck was taken to Miners Hospital, Frostburg for treatment. Earl Beeman, Midland, a hitchhiker in the other truck was also treated at the hospital and later released.

According to State Police the truck ran into the dairy vehicle and spilled milk and bottles all along the highway. The roof fell in on the unidentified driver and the doors dropped off. The latter driver had no license and last night was still being sought by police.

Two automobiles were involved in an accident last night at Longhill about 6:30 o'clock and considerable damage, police say, was caused to the vehicles. A truck upset on Oldtown Road about 5:30 p. m. yesterday but no one was injured. Police were still investigating.

Automobile Demolished

Mrs. Edith S. Showalter, South George Street, was reported "resting well" at Memorial Hospital last night where she was admitted with facial lacerations early Friday morning. Her husband, James J. Showalter, driver of the car which was demolished in an accident with a tractor-trailer on Route 51 at Spring Gap, sustained a fractured left arm. Calvin C. Larch, Frame, W. Va. driver of the truck was uninjured. Police said the drivers blamed blindness from lights as the cause. Traffic was blocked from 1:40 a. m. until 5:30 a. m. in the $4,000 accident.

Student Injured

In another accident, several Ridgeley High School seniors were involved in an accident along Braddock Road when a car driven by Charles B. Baker, 2 Lyons Street, Ridgeley, W. Va.; struck a guard rail. A coupe driven by Charles D. Shaffer, 419 Fayette Street, ascending the mountain hit the Baker car in the side and struck Ronald Burgess, Virginia Avenue, knocking him over the guard rail. He was taken to Allegany Hospital for injuries but discharged Saturday. Blinding lights were also blamed in this accident.

Walter LeFevre, Ohio, was reported in satisfactory condition at Allegany Hospital last night. He was admitted Saturday night with back injuries sustained when his tractor-trailer jacknifed while ascending Polish Mountain. A tire blew out, LeFevre said, causing the mishap.

Investigating the car-tractor-trailer wreck was State Trooper Charles DeWitt and in investigating the Braddock Road mishap were City Police Officer Joseph Stitcher and J. W. Snyder.

No charges were filed in either accident.

Marriage Licenses

Joseph James Emerick and Margaret Susan Diehl, both Mt. Savage.

Harry Ellis Matthews, Pekin, and Neva Violet Berry, Barton.

WEATHER

Yesterday was one of the most changeable days thus far this year. Churchgoers scurried for cover during the morning. The sun tried to remain out but the cloudy skies intervened. A rainbow was seen over the Queen City last evening. The weather station at Constitution Park recorded a high of 64, a low of 49 and at 8:30 o'clock last night the thermometer stood at 55 degrees. Precipitation amounted to .03 of an inch, dew point was 46 and humidity 67 percent. Partly cloudy with scattered showers in the mountains is predicted for today.

Bedford Boy With Heart Of Big Leaguer Enters Shriner's Hospital For Operations

By HUGO FREAR
Managing Editor, Bedford Gazette

BEDFORD, Pa., May 25 (AP) — Young Jim Wise is a big leaguer at heart—and he's ready to go the route.

That's why Jim, the 13-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald (Nick) Wise of Bedford, is in Shriner's Hospital in Philadelphia for a series of three major operations.

Jim loves sports just like his dad, who is president of the Bedford County Baseball League. He's pretty good, too. He pitched for the Lions team in the Little League last summer and was one of its best hurlers.

One-Armed Catch

Jim also plays football. You should have seen him making a one-armed catch of a forward pass and scamper for a touchdown. And he's won his numerals in basketball.

Yes, Jim has the drive and ability and will to win. But Jim also has something which automatically would put most boys his age on the sidelines. Jim has a bad arm.

You don't notice it at first the way the kid scampers around making sensational one-arm catches, or the way he steams a fast ball in from the mound with a stance that is in the pattern of the big leaguers.

JIM WISE

Paralyzed Since Birth

Jim's left arm has been paralyzed since birth. He has to catch and throw a baseball with his one good arm. It's quite a trick—the way he catches the ball, flips the glove down on his wrist then throws the ball to a teammate.

Jim has licked his handicap. He's not only as good as kids his age but better than most. But that doesn't satisfy a fellow who's a big leaguer at heart—and that's Jim's driving ambition in life.

With a good left arm he knows he'll be better. With two good arms he can take part in athletics when the going gets tougher. Jim talked it over with his dad and mother and they talked it over with doctors.

Then came the big chance—to enter Shriner's Hospital. Jim is being sponsored there by two Shriners, Frederick Metzler of Philadelphia and W. Freeland Kendrick, chairman emeritus of the hospital's board.

It will take three operations and Jim will spend his summer vacation in bed. Even then the doctors have told him they can't guarantee a thing. Sometimes these operations work out—sometimes they don't.

"The kid knows the odds," says his auto mechanic father, "and he wants to go ahead. We're grateful he's been given the chance. We can only hope and pray it works out."

Back in his home town of Bedford, a lot of people hope so, too. They know a kid with a big leaguer's heart—and they're pulling for him as he starts out on the long route.

Weather Forecast

ALLIES SEIZE STRATEGIC HWACHON

Plan For 2 Lamas Suggests Partition

TOKYO, May 27 (AP)—Red China announced with much fanfare today a sweeping treaty for the "liberation" of Tibet—but which, if effective, gives it a military stranglehold on that gateway to India.

The terms called for control of Tibet's national defenses by the Red army. They also featured a sly Red attempt to divide the country by establishment of a Chinese as a rival of the ruling Dalai Lama.

Peiping radio rolled out a flood-tide of words on just how Red China "will certainly help the Tibetan people in wiping out the influence of imperialism in Tibet."

A note of uncertainty on just how Tibet will accept its "liberation" was detected in a statement issued by China's army commander-in-chief, Chu Teh:

Treaty Signed May 23

"It is hoped that the local government of Tibet will carry out the agreement on the measures for the peaceful liberation of Tibet in earnest and do all it can to help the People's Liberation Army (Communist) march into Tibet."

By the treaty, Tibet became a military district of Red China under a Red general's command the moment the treaty was signed—May 23.

By Peiping's own account:

Red troops will stay in that "roof of the world" land—about the size of France and Germany — which they invaded last fall.

(As monitored in San Francisco, this treaty provision read bluntly: "The local government of Tibet shall actively assist the People's Liberation (Communist) Army to enter Tibet and consolidate the national defenses.")

Tibetan troops will be integrated in the Red army.

Red China takes over Tibet's foreign affairs and trade.

Tibet will banish "imperialistic influence and revert to Red China."

There also was a hint that Tibet would be partitioned between rival lamas.

Shrewd Attempt At Partition

One treaty provision was that the status and power of the Dalai Lama would continue unmodified. With his government of priests, the Dalai Lama fled Lhasa at the outset of the Communist invasion. He went to Yatung on the Indian border.

But the treaty promised to establish the Panchen Lama. The present claimant is a Chinese who has never been in Tibet.

Chinese Red plans for two lamas suggest a shrewd attempt at partition.

The Dalai Lama has long been the temporal and spiritual leader of all Tibet. The current Panchen Lama sought to take over spiritual leadership but never was able to gain power so long as the Dalai Lama remained in Lhasa.

Dollar Interests Slated To Reject Sawyer Proposal

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Sawyer proposed today that disputed stock in the $68,000,000 American President Lines be sold to the highest bidder; but the R. Stanley Dollar interests promptly indicated they would reject the suggestion.

Sawyer made his proposal in a personal letter to Dollar, on the eve of possible Supreme Court action in the case. Sawyer and eight other officials are appealing to the highest court from a contempt of court citation by the U. S. Court of Appeals here.

The lower court told Sawyer and the others to deliver the stock to Dollar, as it had ordered previously, or go to jail. Chief Justice Vinson has stayed the contempt order pending the appeal to the Supreme Court.

Both the government and the Dollar interests claim ownership of the stock.

Sawyer wrote Dollar today suggesting that the stock be sold, reducing a long and bitter court fight to the issue of who gets the cash from the sale. He said this would "free the practical business operation (of the big steamship line) from the annoyance, burden and handicap of the litigation."

Lincoln Ellsworth, Antarctic Explorer, Heart Attack Victim

NEW YORK, May 27 (AP)—Explorer Lincoln Ellsworth (above), who claimed 381,000 square miles of Antarctica for the United States in 1939, died at his hotel last night.

His attorney said Ellsworth, 71, died of "a sudden heart attack" at the Hotel Carlyle, where he lived.

Ellsworth's wife, Mary Louise, was with him when he died.

Ellsworth conquered both the North Pole and the Antarctic.

His last major trip of exploration was a flight into the interior of Antarctica in 1939, when he made the territorial claim for the United States.

Austin Rejects Appeal By Red Propagandists

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., May 27 (AP) — Warren Austin, chief U. S. delegate to the United Nations, advised Communist peace propagandists tonight to go peddle their papers in Moscow and Peiping.

He used more diplomatic language. But that was the main idea in a long letter he wrote to Frederick Joliot-Curie, French atom scientist and Communist leader. The U. S. delegation made the text public here at about the same time the letter was due to reach Joliot-Curie in Paris.

Austin's letter answered an appeal from the French scientist to support appearance of a delegation from the Communist-dominated world Peace Council before the U. N. to argue its program. The council recently framed a new Soviet-inspired "peace program" in Berlin.

"If your delegation honestly desires to make a contribution to peace," Austin wrote, "I suggest that it visit Moscow and urge the Soviet ruling circle to abide by the (U. N.) charter and the other international agreements to which it is pledged.

"Your delegation could then proceed to Peiping, and urge the ruling circle there to end the aggression in Korea, withdraw its forces, and let the Korean people organize the independent, unified and democratic nation the U. N. seeks for them.

"In Moscow, you could urge the leaders of World Communism to abandon their declared aims of taking over other people's countries by the well-known totalitrian tactics which led Hitler to disaster. x x x"

Worker Chopped To Bits, Cremated

EVERETT, Wash., May 27 (AP) — A 59-year-old pulp plant workman was chopped to bits and then cremated today in a gruesome industrial accident.

Coroner Ken Baker said the victim, Verner Emanuel Frisk, apparently lost his balance and fell to a moving conveyor which carried waste wood through a multiple-knived chopper and then into a furnace where the shredded wood was burned for fuel.

U.S. Air Force Chief Today's Probe Witness

Vandenberg Faces Close Questioning

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP) — Gen. Hoyt. Vandenberg comes up tomorrow as the fifth witness in the MacArthur investigation, to give an airman's view on the ouster of the Far East commander.

With the stand of the high command in general — and of the Army in particular — already in the huge record of the hearings, all signs point to close questioning of the Air Force chief of staff on the proposal to carry the aerial war across the Korean border into Manchuria.

That was a cardinal item in the war plan which Gen. Douglas MacArthur urged so openly and persistently he was fired for it.

MacArthur's contention was that more aggressive tactics — including air operations to deny the Communist aggressors "sanctuary" behind the frontier, use of Chinese Nationalist troops from Formosa for a second front, and a blockade of the China coast — were the way out of a "stalemate" to victory.

Truman Took Risk

The White House and Defense Department view is that such widening of the Korean war carries little if any promise of succeeding better than present strategy, and does carry a grave threat of bringing on World War III.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) said today that "President Truman took the risk of a third world war when he moved into Korea."

The Senate GOP policy leader disagreed with Gen. Omar Bradley's testimony that military disclosures in the investigation might incite Russia to war.

"If we are weak anywhere, the Russians know it already," he said on NBC's television program, "Meet The Press."

"I don't think the Russians will go to war," he stated, but added that he believes the administration's foreign policy "risks war at every moment."

Four Witnesses In 19 Days

While members of the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees, jointly investigating the MacArthur ouster, readied questions for Vandenberg's appearance (9 a. m. EST), some of them suggested the lawmakers ought to agree on a target before they shoot inquiries at many more witnesses.

Although the closed-door inquiry is on its 19th day, only four witnesses have been heard and Armed Services Chairman Russell (D-Ga) said committeemen have "asked that about 100 witnesses be heard."

All of this caused Sen. Hunt (D-Wyo), one of the 26 committeemen, to tell a reporter "so far, we have not even formally decided what we're trying to do."

"Apparently no one doubts the authority of President Truman to relieve Gen. MacArthur, including the General himself," Hunt said. "I doubt that anybody seriously believes we could put the General back in his various commands."

Woman And Young Boy Found Slain On Beach

GULFPORT, Miss., May 27 (AP) — The brutally beaten bodies of an expectant mother and a young boy were found on the Gulf of Mexico beach today.

Sheriff Laze Quave said the woman, an attractive brunette between 25 and 30, was found lying face down in the surf clad only in brassiere and panties. The body of a boy, about seven or eight years old, was 100 yards away.

A coroner's jury called the deaths homicide.

Lone Survivor Of British Lost Battalion Is Rescued

WESTERN FRONT, Korea, May 27 (AP)—Help reached Britain's lost First Battalion of the Gloucestershire Regiment — but it came a month too late for all but one dazed and unbelieving survivor.

He was Private Lionel Essex, English rifleman who crawled away from the scene of massacre the night of April 25 and hid with a kindly Korean family for 33 days. A Greek patrol found him last night in a pouring rainstorm.

With the exception of the 49 men who fought their way back from the trap last month, he is the only known survivor of some 600 Britishers who battled for two days after they were surrounded by two Chinese corps.

The rest of the battalion, except for some who must have been taken prisoner were also found today—still lying in the hill trap or scooped into shallow graves by the Chinese.

At the foot of the hill was the wreckage of the battalion—vehicles and equipment—burned trucks, wrecked bren gun carriers, scattered ammunition and smashed machine guns.

All over the area were the mute symbols that are found on any battlefield—the empty helmet and the crumpled cloth caps of the dead.

Private Essex, who had been shot in the arm and leg by the Chinese, was rushed into the medics for evacuation.

Family Of Marine Officer Rescued In Korea

Italians Swarm To Polls To Vote In City Elections

Heavy Early Turnout Hailed By Anti-Reds

ROME, May 27 (AP)—The first of ten million electors in 28 provinces trooped to the polls in large numbers today in Italy's crucial municipal elections — an out-and-out struggle between Communists and anti-Communists.

Calm and order marked the balloting. Not one incident was reported from the 2,735 cities and towns picking municipal and provincial councils in today's voting.

Despite cloudy skies, rain and threats of rain, a good early vote was reported from the workers' districts of the industrial north, including the metropolis of Milan, surrounding towns and the important port city of Genoa, Bologna and Venice. Communist administrations now run Venice, Bologna and Genoa. Italy's Communist Party, claiming 2,500,000 members, is the largest outside Russia.

Anti-Reds "Encouraged"

At Milan, a key city because of its size and importance, the forces of Premier Alcide De Gasperi, head of the majority Christian Democrat Party, viewed the early vote as "encouraging." The Christian Democrats are allied with the Republicans, Liberals and Free Socialists in an anti-Communist coalition in most of the municipalities.

In the election campaign, in which Premier De Gasperi took a leading part, the Christian Democrats called on the voters to oust the Communist municipal governments in the 1,170 cities and towns where they are in power and return these communities "to the Italians."

Basing their predictions on the parliamentary elections of April, 1948, when the Communists were soundly whipped, Christian Democrat forecasters have expected victory if there was a large turnout of voters.

Church Major Factor

The famous Italian conductor, Arturo Toscanini, and Ildefonso Cardinal Schuster were among the early voters in Milan.

As in Italy's 1948 elections, which held the attention of chancellories of the world for days, the Catholic church has been a major factor in the past campaign.

In a final campaign cry, the Communists—largest Red party outside of Russia — urged the electors to "beware of x x x clerical propaganda." The Communist paper L'Unita charged that although campaigning was forbidden in the 48 hours before the polls opened the final campaign meetings would be in the churches this morning.

Plane, Flipped Over By Wind Gust, Crashes

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 27 (AP) —A light plane, flipped over in the air by a guest of wind, crashed near Hulman airport today and killed an aeronautics instructor.

Sgt. Edwin L. Robb, 29, instructor at Rose Polytechnic Institute here, was found dead in the wreckage of the two-place plane.

Runaway Box Car Hits Parked Autos; One Killed, 13 Hurt

LOS ANGELES, May 27 (AP) —A runaway box car rammed into a line of parked automobiles today, killing a 26-year-old housewife and injuring 13 other persons.

Firemen worked three hours to free many of the injured from the tangled wreckage. Four cars were completely demolished.

The freight car broke loose at a railroad yard. Gathering speed, it careened more than two miles and narrowly missed accident time and again.

Brakeman Waldo A. Brown rode the runaway, yelling warnings. He tried to set the brakes but nothing happened.

Dr. Koerner, 78, Bitter Anti-Red, Wins In Austria

VIENNA, May 27 (AP)—Dr. Theodor Koerner, 78, a grandfatherly veteran Socialist who is a bitter anti-Communist, was elected president of the Austrian republic tonight.

Koerner was named president for six years in a neck-and-neck runoff election in which a Conservative opposed him. The tally announced by the interior ministry tonight was:

Koerner, 2,172,806 votes.

Dr. Heinrich Gleissner, 58, a civil servant and life-long member of the People's Party, 2,004,290.

Koerner is a white-haired former general in the old Austro-Hungarian Imperial Army. He has been a life-long Socialist and fighter for the working man. Since the war he has been lord mayor of Vienna.

He succeeds another Socialist, the late Dr. Karl Renner, who died last New Year's Eve. Like Renner, Koerner is pro-Western. He disowned the Communists, who decided to vote for him after their own candidate had failed to get more than five per cent in the first presidential election May 6.

Blamey, Australian War Hero, Dies At 67

SYDNEY, Australia, May 27 (AP)—Field Marshal Sir Thomas Blamey, mastermind of Australia's toughest military campaigns in two world wars, died today in Heidelberg military hospital after nearly a year of illness. He was 67.

During World War II, Blamey was commander in chief of Allied land forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur and gained much of the credit for stopping the Japanese armies at the very doorstep of Australia.

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies announced in Canberra that the late Field Marshal will be buried with full military honors in a state funeral Wednesday afternoon.

Conciliatory Gesture Is Made By Anglo-Iranian Oil Company

TEHRAN, Iran, May 27 (AP) — The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company made a conciliatory gesture today by offering to send its resident manager to listen in at one meeting only of the oil nationalization board.

The billion dollar British company thus replied by half measures to the Iranian ultimatum that it help carry out its own nationalization by Wednesday or be taken over without consultation.

Members of the oil board declared AIOC's appeal yesterday to the International Court of Justice to appoint an arbitrator in the world-shaking dispute was "ridiculous" and the "desperate act of a drowning man."

Mass Meetings Called

"The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company no longer exists," said one member.

Communist front organizations called mass meetings throughout the country for Tuesday "to fight imperialistic oil companies."

All these moves seemed to presage a new crisis for wispy Premier Mohammed Mossadegh — a crisis in which westerners here saw a possible coup d'etat growing out of the present instability as the greatest danger.

Supporting AIOC's appeal to the world court at the Hague, the British government reserved the right to take measures to preserve her present status in Iran. The government owns 53 per cent of AIOC. If Britain moved her parachute troops, presently destined for Cyprus in the Eastern Mediterranean, into Southern Iran to protect her property and nationals Russia might make a similar move in the north.

Premier Needs Finances

Mossadegh, holed up in the parliament building for 14 days for fear of the same assassination fate that met former Premier Ali Razmara, was in a precarious financial state. His government is living on a hand-to-mouth budget because its oil royalties stopped with passage of the nationalization law 25 days ago.

Meanwhile, some of his fanatical followers are getting uneasy and are pointing out that though he fathered the nationalization law and has been premier for four weeks the AIOC maintains its private operations unmolested.

PARIS, May 27 (AP)—Gen. J. Lawton Collins, U. S. Army Chief of Staff, arrived here today for a two-week inspection tour of Europe.

Yanks Land In Germany Amid Cheers

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, May 27 (AP)—A former German who survived Hitler's concentration camps led 1,300 American soldiers ashore here today to begin a big reinforcement of U. S. troops guarding Western Europe.

They were part of the Fourth Infantry Division, the first to arrive of four new American divisions being sent to Germany to bolster this Western defense line afainst the threat of Communist attack.

Top commanders of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's North Atlantic Command welcomed the troops as they marched off the U. S. transport General Patch to the cheers of a waiting crowd.

Grimly Earnest Air

"You come to preserve the peace," said Gen. Alphonse Juin of France, commander of all Allied army forces in the central sector of Europe.

The first enlisted man ashore was German-born Pvt. Edwin Sternberg, Richmond, Va. His Jewish birth cost him four years in a concentration camp. Emigrating to America after the war he was drafted and sent back to his homeland as a soldier.

Despite the blaring band and the glittering pennants which decorated the big U. S. port here, there was a grimly earnest air about the troops as they poured off the ship in a drizzling rain.

Greeted By Top Brass

They stood stiffly at attention in military formation before an imposing array of generals who flew here to greet them.

"We and our allies are here to maintain a secure military foundation for the protection of Germany and all Western Europe," they were told by Gen. Thomas T. Handy, commander of all U. S. forces in Europe.

Third Division Halted Reds After Dramatic Night Ride

TOKYO, May 27 (AP)—Now it can be told how the U. S. Third Division took a midnight ride and made the greatest flying tackle of the Korean war.

Two Republic of Korea divisions collapsed on the east-central front at the outset of the Reds' ill-fated mid-May offensive. The fighting Third, under Maj. Gen. Robert Soule, then put the flying tackle on 25,000 Chinese Communists racing southward.

Censorship today permitted identification of the Third as the division which prevented the Reds from making the most of a tremendous breakthrough.

Here's what happened:

On Wednesday May 16, the Chinese smacked into the east-central front with 125,000 men.

The biggest blow hit the U. S. Second Division, east of Chunchon, and two ROK divisions on the Second's right (east) flank.

The ROK divisions were routed. Chinese streamed southward.

An emergency call went out for the Third Division—in reserve on the western front.

The division answered with a dramatic, 70-mile ride across the peninsula.

The Third Division hit the line near Soksa, 18 miles inland from the east coast. Repeated bloody engagements completely stalled the amazed Reds. Members of the enemy units had fought the Third on the western front early in May and had not expected it to show up on the east.

Pincer Snaps Shut On Many Fleeing Reds

Hundreds Of Enemy Troops Surrender

TOKYO, Monday, May 28 (AP) — Allied forces surged back into Hwachon seven miles inside North Korea Sunday and seized two other road centers in lightning pincer thrusts. Central escape corridors were slammed shut on thousands of demoralized Communist troops.

Chinese abandoned huge supply dumps on both the central and east-central fronts as they ran for their lives.

Field dispatches said scores of disorganized groups of Reds surrendered in "unprecedented numbers" throughout the day to United Nations rear-line outfits.

The U. S. Eighth Army reported in its Monday mid-morning communique that more than 2,000 Chinese surrendered northwest of Chunchon on the central front.

Yanks Capture Inje

Two U. S. Second Division armored forces within one half hour bottled up both north and south ends of an important escape route into North Korea for thousands of Chinese. With only slight opposition they seized the road junction of Inje, four miles north of the 38th parallel and Hyon, four miles south of the prewar boundary.

The swift movement caught the tag end of a large Red column streaking north through Hyon. Allied artillery, machine guns and small arms slaughtered the trapped column, a pooled field dispatch reported.

The Red column was estimated to number between 5,000 and 10,000.

Inje is 28 miles inland from the east coast, Hyon 25 miles.

Farther east the U. S. Third Division was disclosed in action for the first time in the current offensive. Last week it had plugged a dangerous gap in Allied lines at Soksa and now was sweeping northward across the Naerichon River near the parallel.

On the extreme east coast South Korean Capitol Division troops were back in Yangyang, eight miles north of 38.

Pincer Arms Snap Shut

The mounting debacle to Chinese and North Korean troops across the entire 125-mile Korean front led some high officers to estimate it would take three months or more for the Reds to mount any new offensive.

American, Dutch and French troops, spearheaded by tanks and backed by mobile artillery, took after the retreating Reds.

The northern arm of the Second Division pincer closed in on Inje at 4 p. m., Sunday. The southern arm snapped shut at 4:30 p. m.

In the center of the slowly compressing trap, South Korean forces moved forward through a mountainous sector reported swarming with Communist stragglers in groups of three to 60.

Pact Gives Peiping Control Of Tibet

Plan For 2 Lamas Suggests Partition

TOKYO, May 27 (AP)—Red China announced with much fanfare today a sweeping treaty for the "liberation" of Tibet—but which, if effective, gives it a military stranglehold on that gateway to India.

The terms called for control of Tibet's national defenses by the Red army. They also featured a sly Red attempt to divide the country by establishment of a Chinese as a rival of the ruling Dalai Lama.

Peiping radio rolled out a flood-tide of words on just how Red China "will certainly help the Tibetan people in wiping out the influence of imperialism in Tibet."

A note of uncertainty on just how Tibet will accept its "liberation" was detected in a statement issued by China's army commander-in-chief, Chu Teh:

Treaty Signed May 23

"It is hoped that the local government of Tibet will carry out the agreement on the measures for the peaceful liberation of Tibet in earnest and do all it can to help the People's Liberation Army (Communist) march into Tibet."

By the treaty, Tibet became a military district of Red China under a Red general's command the moment the treaty was signed—May 23.

By Peiping's own account:

Red troops will stay in that "roof of the world" land—about the size of France and Germany — which they invaded last fall.

(As monitored in San Francisco, this treaty provision read bluntly: "The local government of Tibet shall actively assist the People's Liberation (Communist) Army to enter Tibet and consolidate the national defenses.")

Tibetan troops will be integrated in the Red army.

Red China takes over Tibet's foreign affairs and trade.

Tibet will banish "imperialistic influence and revert to Red China."

There also was a hint that Tibet would be partitioned between rival lamas.

Shrewd Attempt At Partition

One treaty provision was that the status and power of the Dalai Lama would continue unmodified. With his government of priests, the Dalai Lama fled Lhasa at the outset of the Communist invasion. He went to Yatung on the Indian border.

But the treaty promised to establish the Panchen Lama. The present claimant is a Chinese who has never been in Tibet.

Chinese Red plans for two lamas suggest a shrewd attempt at partition.

The Dalai Lama has long been the temporal and spiritual leader of all Tibet. The current Panchen Lama sought to take over spiritual leadership but never was able to gain power so long as the Dalai Lama remained in Lhasa.

Dollar Interests Slated To Reject Sawyer Proposal

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Sawyer proposed today that disputed stock in the $68,000,000 American President Lines be sold to the highest bidder; but the R. Stanley Dollar interests promptly indicated they would reject the suggestion.

Sawyer made his proposal in a personal letter to Dollar, on the eve of possible Supreme Court action in the case. Sawyer and eight other officials are appealing to the highest court from a contempt of court citation by the U. S. Court of Appeals here.

The lower court told Sawyer and the others to deliver the stock to Dollar, as it had ordered previously, or go to jail. Chief Justice Vinson has stayed the contempt order pending the appeal to the Supreme Court.

Both the government and the Dollar interests claim ownership of the stock.

Sawyer wrote Dollar today suggesting that the stock be sold, reducing a long and bitter court fight to the issue of who gets the cash from the sale. He said this would "free the practical business operation (of the big steamship line) from the annoyance, burden and handicap of the litigation."

Lincoln Ellsworth, Antarctic Explorer, Heart Attack Victim

NEW YORK, May 27 (AP)—Explorer Lincoln Ellsworth (above), who claimed 381,000 square miles of Antarctica for the United States in 1939, died at his hotel last night.

His attorney said Ellsworth, 71, died of "a sudden heart attack" at the Hotel Carlyle, where he lived.

Ellsworth's wife, Mary Louise, was with him when he died.

Ellsworth conquered both the North Pole and the Antarctic.

His last major trip of exploration was a flight into the interior of Antarctica in 1939, when he made the territorial claim for the United States.

Austin Rejects Appeal By Red Propagandists

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., May 27 (AP) — Warren Austin, chief U. S. delegate to the United Nations, advised Communist peace propagandists tonight to go peddle their papers in Moscow and Peiping.

He used more diplomatic language. But that was the main idea in a long letter he wrote to Frederick Joliot-Curie, French atom scientist and Communist leader. The U. S. delegation made the text public here at about the same time the letter was due to reach Joliot-Curie in Paris.

Austin's letter answered an appeal from the French scientist to support appearance of a delegation from the Communist-dominated world Peace Council before the U. N. to argue its program. The council recently framed a new Soviet-inspired "peace program" in Berlin.

"If your delegation honestly desires to make a contribution to peace," Austin wrote, "I suggest that it visit Moscow and urge the Soviet ruling circle to abide by the (U. N.) charter and the other international agreements to which it is pledged.

"Your delegation could then proceed to Peiping, and urge the ruling circle there to end the aggression in Korea, withdraw its forces, and let the Korean people organize the independent, unified and democratic nation the U. N. seeks for them.

"In Moscow, you could urge the leaders of World Communism to abandon their declared aims of taking over other people's countries by the well-known totalitrian tactics which led Hitler to disaster. x x x"

Worker Chopped To Bits, Cremated

EVERETT, Wash., May 27 (AP) — A 59-year-old pulp plant workman was chopped to bits and then cremated today in a gruesome industrial accident.

Coroner Ken Baker said the victim, Verner Emanuel Frisk, apparently lost his balance and fell to a moving conveyor which carried waste wood through a multiple-knived chopper and then into a furnace where the shredded wood was burned for fuel.

U. S. Air Force Chief Today's Probe Witness

Vandenberg Faces Close Questioning

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP) — Gen. Hoyt. Vandenberg comes up tomorrow as the fifth witness in the MacArthur investigation, to give an airman's view on the ouster of the Far East commander.

With the stand of the high command in general — and of the Army in particular — already in the huge record of the hearings, all signs point to close questioning of the Air Force chief of staff on the proposal to carry the aerial war across the Korean border into Manchuria.

That was a cardinal item in the war plan which Gen. Douglas MacArthur urged so openly and persistently he was fired for it.

MacArthur's contention was that more aggressive tactics — including air operations to deny the Communist aggressors "sanctuary" behind the frontier, use of Chinese Nationalist troops from Formosa for a second front, and a blockade of the China coast — were the way out of a "stalemate" to victory.

Truman Took Risk

The White House and Defense Department view is that such widening of the Korean war carries little if any promise of succeeding better than present strategy, and does carry a grave threat of bringing on World War III.

Sen. Tat (R-Ohio) said today that "President Truman took the risk of a third world war when he moved into Korea."

The Senate GOP policy leader disagreed with Gen. Omar Bradley's testimony that military disclosures in the investigation might incite Russia to war.

"If we are weak anywhere, the Russians know it already," he said on NBC's television program, "Meet The Press."

"I don't think the Russians will go to war," he stated, but added that he believes the administration's foreign policy "risks war at every moment."

Four Witnesses In 19 Days

While members of the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees, jointly investigating the MacArthur ouster, readied questions for Vandenberg's appearance (9 a. m. EST), some of them suggested the lawmakers ought to agree on a target before they shoot inquiries at many more witnesses.

Although the closed-door inquiry is on its 19th day, only four witnesses have been heard and Armed Services Chairman Russell (D-Ga) said committeemen have "asked that about 100 witnesses be heard."

All of this caused Sen. Hunt (D-Wyo), one of the 26 committeemen, to tell a reporter "so far, we have not even formally decided what we're trying to do."

"Apparently no one doubts the authority of President Truman to relieve Gen. MacArthur, including the General himself," Hunt said. "I doubt that anybody seriously believes we could put the General back in his various commands."

Woman And Young Boy Found Slain On Beach

GULFPORT, Miss., May 27 (AP) — The brutally beaten bodies of an expectant mother and a young boy were found on the Gulf of Mexico beach today.

Sheriff Laze Quave said the woman, an attractive brunette between 25 and 30, was found lying face down in the surf clad only in brassiere and panties. The body of a boy, about seven or eight years old, was 100 yards away.

A coroner's jury called the deaths homicide.

Lone Survivor Of British Lost Battalion Is Rescued

WESTERN FRONT, Korea, May 27 (AP)—Help reached Britain's lost First Battalion of the Gloucestershire Regiment — but it came a month too late for all but one dazed and unbelieving survivor.

He was Private Lionel Essex, English rifleman who crawled away from the scene of massacre the night of April 25 and hid with a kindly Korean family for 33 days. A Greek patrol found him last night in a pouring rainstorm.

With the exception of the 49 men who fought their way back from the trap last month, he is the only known survivor of some 600 Britishers who battled for two days after they were surrounded by two Chinese corps.

The rest of the battalion, except for some who must have been taken prisoner were also found today—still lying in the hill trap or scooped into shallow graves by the Chinese.

At the foot of the hill was the wreckage of the battalion—vehicles and equipment—burned trucks, wrecked bren gun carriers, scattered ammunition and smashed machine guns.

All over the area were the mute symbols that are found on any battlefield—the empty helmet and the crumpled cloth caps of the dead.

Private Essex, who had been shot in the arm and leg by the Chinese, was rushed into the medics for evacuation.

Family Of Marine Officer Rescued In Korea

Italians Swarm To Polls To Vote In City Elections

Heavy Early Turnout Hailed By Anti-Reds

ROME, May 27 (AP)—The first of ten million electors in 28 provinces trooped to the polls in large numbers today in Italy's crucial municipal elections — an out-and-out struggle between Communists and anti-Communists.

Calm and order marked the balloting. Not one incident was reported from the 2,735 cities and towns picking municipal and provincial councils in today's voting.

Despite cloudy skies, rain and threats of rain, a good early vote was reported from the workers' districts of the industrial north, including the metropolis of Milan, surrounding towns and the important port city of Genoa, Bologna and Venice. Communist administrations now run Venice, Bologna and Genoa. Italy's Communist Party, claiming 2,500,000 members, is the largest outside Russia.

Anti-Reds "Encouraged"

At Milan, a key city because of its size and importance, the forces of Premier Alcide De Gasperi, head of the majority Christian Democrat Party, viewed the early vote as "encouraging." The Christian Democrats are allied with the Republicans, Liberals and Free Socialists in an anti-Communist coalition in most of the municipalities.

In the election campaign, in which Premier De Gasperi took a leading part, the Christian Democrats called on the voters to oust the Communist municipal governments in the 1,170 cities and towns where they are in power and return these communities "to the Italians."

Basing their predictions on the parliamentary elections of April, 1948, when the Communists were soundly whipped, Christian Democrat forecasters have expected victory if there was a large turnout of voters.

Church Major Factor

The famous Italian conductor, Arturo Toscanini, and Ildefonso Cardinal Schuster were among the early voters in Milan.

As in Italy's 1948 elections, which held the attention of chancelleries of the world for days, the Catholic church has been a major factor in the past campaign.

In a final campaign cry, the Communists—largest Red party outside of Russia — urged the electors to "beware of x x x clerical propaganda." The Communist paper L'Unita charged that although campaigning was forbidden in the 48 hours before the polls opened the final campaign meetings would be in the churches this morning.

Plane, Flipped Over By Wind Gust, Crashes

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 27 (AP) —A light plane, flipped over in the air by a guest of wind, crashed near Hulman airport today and killed an aeronautics instructor.

Sgt. Edwin L. Robb, 29, instructor at Rose Polytechnic Institute here, was found dead in the wreckage of the two-place plane.

His companion, Ralph Clark, 31, was taken to St. Anthony Hospital and was reported in "very serious" condition.

With only slight opposition they seized the road junction of Inje, four miles north of the 38th parallel and Hyon, four miles south of the prewar boundary.

The Red column was estimated to number between 5,000 and 10,000.

Inje is 28 miles inland from the east coast, Hyon 25 miles.

Farther east the U. S. Third Division was disclosed in action for the first time in the current offensive. Last week it had plugged a dangerous gap in Allied lines at Soksa and now was sweeping northward across the Naerichon River near the parallel.

On the extreme east coast South Korean Capitol Division troops were back in Yangyang, eight miles north of 38.

Pincer Arms Snap Shut

The mounting debacle to Chinese and North Korean troops across the entire 125-mile Korean front led some high officers to estimate it would take three months or more for the Reds to mount any new offensive.

American, Dutch and French troops, spearheaded by tanks and backed by mobile artillery, took after the retreating Reds.

The northern arm of the Second Division pincer closed in on Inje at 4 p. m., Sunday. The southern arm snapped shut at 4:30 p. m.

In the center of the slowly compressing trap, South Korean forces moved forward through a mountainous sector reported swarming with Communist stragglers in groups of three to 60.

McKeldin Stand On Teacher Pay Hike Unchanged

HAGERSTOWN, Md., 27 (AP) — Addresses by Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin and Sen. Richard M. Nixon (R-Calif.) highlighted the annual convention of Maryland's Federation of Young Republicans.

Before concluding their meeting here yesterday, the group adopted a resolution endorsing McKeldin for the 1952 Republican presidential nomination.

In his talk, the Governor repeated his stand that counties are responsible for boosting the pay of school teachers. He supported his veto of a bill providing for an annual pay hike of $500 for Maryland school teachers by arguing that the state is responsible only for seeing that minimum salary standards are supported.

At their business meeting, the Young Republicans elected Paul Marshall, of Montgomery County, as state chairman. National committee posts went to William Kreyhenbohn, Hagerstown, and Grace Hildreth, Baltimore.

The federation also approved giving 18-year-olds voting privileges and holding congressional hearings in public. An amendment to except matters involving national security was referred to committee.

Sen. Nixon told the group that the administration has no policy to end the Korean war.

He called for the resignations of Secretary of State Dean Acheson and of "those persons in the State Department who first made a mistake in judging the character of the Chinese Communist movement."

Dual Mishap On Turnpike

Roland C. Herring, 26, U. S. Navy, of Mechanicsville, Iowa, is in critical condition in Dr. Timmons Hospital, Bedford, Pa., following a highway accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike about 12 miles east of Bedford. He suffered a possible fractured skull and lacerations. Pennsylvania State Police last night said the mishape occurred about 4 p. m.

Herring, on leave, was traveling east and ran into the left rear end of a tractor-trailer operated by Nick Mazzie, Easton, Pa. Police said he was thrown from the car which continued on down the turnpike about 100 feet crashing through a guard rail.

At about 2:45 p. m. yesterday another accident occurred in almost the same locale. Glenn R. Manevall, Newport, Pa., was treated at the scene by a passing physician. Police said the driver was caught in a heavy rainstorm and ran the car up the side of a bank, turned over and holled several times. About $1,000 damage was reported. He received lacerations. The same physician treated Herring prior to his admittance to the Bedford hospital.

New Haven Railroad President Succumbs

GROTON, Mass., May 27 (AP)—Frederic C. Dumaine, president of the New Haven Railroad and long one of New England's outstanding financial figures, died today at his home. He was 85.

Always moving behind the scenes and ever shy of publicity, the shrewd Yankee trader in millions played a vital role in three major phases of New England industry. He had been in good health, considering his years, and made three trips a week to his Boston office.

No bluestocking Bostonian, Dumaine was born in the little town of Hadley and when only 11 years old took a job to help support his widowed mother. He rose to front rank in the textiles, railroad and fishing industries.

Draft Test, On Whole, Fair, Students Agree

BALTIMORE, May 27 (AP)—Some thought it was a breeze, some thought it was a bit rough, but most thought it was, on the whole, a fair examination.

That seemed to be the range of reaction reported in Maryland today on the aptitude and knowledge test which will help determine which college students will continue in school and which will be drafted into the army.

Approximately 2,000 students in Maryland sweated over the 150 questions in the "Selective Service qualification" test yesterday.

Fourteen colleges acted as test centers.

Interracial Net Match Stopped At Baltimore

BALTIMORE, May 27 (AP)—Park board police today stopped a tennis meet between the Fort Meade and Baltimore Tennis Club teams when they learned it was to be an interracial event.

The meet was scheduled for 11 a. m. at Druid Hill Park, which has separate facilities for negroes and whites.

Charles A. Hook, superintendent of city parks, said it is park board policy not to permit mixed play. He added there was "nothing else for us to do" but order the teams not to play, under threat of arrest.

DiSalle Defends Beef Rollback

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP) — Price Director Michael V. DiSalle said today "we are bringing the price of beef back within the reach of people."

He defended his recent price rollback order and scoffed at a cattleman's charge that the whole program "is a hoax on the American people."

DiSalle appeared with Joe G. Montague, general counsel of the Texas South-Western Cattle Raiser's Association, on television.

Also putting DiSalle's rollback order on the pan was Herschel D. Newsom, master of the National Grange. The farm organization leader argued that price controls should be eliminated unless they are accompanied by rationing. Newsom and Sen. Maybank (D-SC) appeared in a radio interview.

"If we are going to have price stabilization, we have got to control the price of beef," DiSalle said. Beef, he added, increased 50 per cent in price since January, 1950.

$10,000 Suit Set For Trial

A $10,000 damage, resulting from a woman tenant's fall on the stairway in a Hagerstown apartment house, has been docketed for trial today in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Frances Gilpin Brown filed the suit last December 27 in Washington County Circuit Court against D. Webster Groh, Jr., Edison Y. Groh, Garland E. Groh and R. Eleanor Warrenfoltz, all of Hagerstown. She contended that on or about last November 28 she fell down a stairway in an apartment building owned by the defendants at 20 West Franklin Street. She said the hallway was in almost total darkness and she caught her heel in a rubber tread which was torn and shredded.

The suit was removed to Allegany County Circuit Court after defense attorneys made such a request March 20. The plaintiff is represented by Attorneys Paul Ottinger and Ernest V. Wachs, both of Hagerstown, and Edward J. Ryan. Attorneys for the defendants are Leo H. Miller and Edwin H. Miller, both of Hagerstown, and W. Earle Cobey.

Services will be conducted today at 3 p. m. (EST) in Kertz Chapel by Rev. George Simpson, pastor of Lock Lynn United Brethren Church. Interment will be in Tasker Cemetery.

EDWARD T. LYONS

A funeral service for Edward T. Lyons will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at Kight's Funeral Home with Rev. J. F. Zimmerman, pastor of Congregational Church, Frostburg, officiating.

Transit Strikers Vote To Stay Out

DETROIT, May 27 (AP) — Detroit transit drivers, facing a court showdown tomorrow in their record 37-day strike, voted today to stay out until their demands are met.

Approximately 1,000 of the 3,500 strikers, at a mass meeting, stood, shouted and stamped their feet when asked "how many of you want to stick this out until we win our demands?"

The speaker, Frank X. Martel, president of the Detroit and Wayne County Federation of Labor (AFL), earlier had asked a show of hands of men willing to go back to work. No hands were raised.

Presiding Circuit Judge Ira W. Jayne tomorrow is to conduct a show cause hearing on a request of the city for an injunction to prevent the union from interfering with a resumption of operations.

Dual Mishap On Turnpike

Roland C. Herring, 26, U. S. Navy, of Mechanicsville, Iowa, is in critical condition in Dr. Timmons Hospital, Bedford, Pa., following a highway accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike about 12 miles east of Bedford. He suffered a possible fractured skull and lacerations. Pennsylvania State Police last night said the mishape occurred about 4 p. m.

Herring, on leave, was traveling east and ran into the left rear end of a tractor-trailer operated by Nick Mazzie, Easton, Pa. Police said he was thrown from the car which continued on down the turnpike about 100 feet crashing through a guard rail.

At about 2:45 p. m. yesterday another accident occurred in almost the same locale. Glenn R. Manevall, Newport, Pa., was treated at the scene by a passing physician. Police said the driver was caught in a heavy rainstorm and ran the car up the side of a bank, turned over and holled several times. About $1,000 damage was reported. He received lacerations. The same physician treated Herring prior to his admittance to the Bedford hospital.

New Haven Railroad President Succumbs

GROTON, Mass., May 27 (AP)—Frederic C. Dumaine, president of the New Haven Railroad and long one of New England's outstanding financial figures, died today at his home. He was 85.

Always moving behind the scenes and ever shy of publicity, the shrewd Yankee trader in millions played a vital role in three major phases of New England industry. He had been in good health, considering his years, and made three trips a week to his Boston office.

No bluestocking Bostonian, Dumaine was born in the little town of Hadley and when only 11 years old took a job to help support his widowed mother. He rose to front rank in the textiles, railroad and fishing industries.

Draft Test, On Whole, Fair, Students Agree

BALTIMORE, May 27 (AP)—Some thought it was a breeze, some thought it was a bit rough, but most thought it was, on the whole, a fair examination.

That seemed to be the range of reaction reported in Maryland today on the aptitude and knowledge test which will help determine which college students will continue in school and which will be drafted into the army.

Approximately 2,000 students in Maryland sweated over the 150 questions in the "Selective Service qualification" test yesterday.

Fourteen colleges acted as test centers.

Interracial Net Match Stopped At Baltimore

BALTIMORE, May 27 (AP)—Park board police today stopped a tennis meet between the Fort Meade and Baltimore Tennis Club teams when they learned it was to be an interracial event.

The meet was scheduled for 11 a. m. at Druid Hill Park, which has separate facilities for negroes and whites.

Charles A. Hook, superintendent of city parks, said it is park board policy not to permit mixed play. He added there was "nothing else for us to do" but order the teams not to play, under threat of arrest.

DiSalle Defends Beef Rollback

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP) — Price Director Michael V. DiSalle said today "we are bringing the price of beef back within the reach of people."

He defended his recent price rollback order and scoffed at a cattleman's charge that the whole program "is a hoax on the American people."

DiSalle appeared with Joe G. Montague, general counsel of the Texas South-Western Cattle Raiser's Association, on television.

Also putting DiSalle's rollback order on the pan was Herschel D. Newsom, master of the National Grange. The farm organization leader argued that price controls should be eliminated unless they are accompanied by rationing. Newsom and Sen. Maybank (D-SC) appeared in a radio interview.

"If we are going to have price stabilization, we have got to control the price of beef," DiSalle said. Beef, he added, increased 50 per cent in price since January, 1950.

Jet Ace Heads Home

TOKYO, May 27 (AP)—Capt. James Jabara, the world's first jet ace, headed toward the United States and the arms of his wife tonight.

$10,000 Suit Set For Trial

A $10,000 damage, resulting from a woman tenant's fall on the stairway in a Hagerstown apartment house, has been docketed for trial today in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Frances Gilpin Brown filed the suit last December 27 in Washington County Circuit Court against D. Webster Groh, Jr., Edison Y. Groh, Garland E. Groh and R. Eleanor Warrenfoltz, all of Hagerstown. She contended that on or about last November 28 she fell down a stairway in an apartment building owned by the defendants at 20 West Franklin Street. She said the hallway was in almost total darkness and she caught her heel in a rubber tread which was torn and shredded.

The suit was removed to Allegany County Circuit Court after defense attorneys made such a request March 20. The plaintiff is represented by Attorneys Paul Ottinger and Ernest V. Wachs, both of Hagerstown, and Edward J. Ryan. Attorneys for the defendants are Leo H. Miller and Edwin H. Miller, both of Hagerstown, and W. Earle Cobey.

Housing Project Planned At Mapleside May Be Curtailed

The low-rent housing project planned for Mapleside is in serious danger of not being constructed in the event the Senate passes a bill similar to the one approved in the House on May 4 cutting the appropriations on public housing projects.

A time deadline faces the Cumberland Housing Authority, James B. Raines, director, explained yesterday. The project must have proceed orders by June 30 in order to come under the bill's provision.

This means that the Negro housing project of 30 apartments planned on Frederick Street could not possibly be ready by June 30, Raines said.

Yearly Limit Fixed

House Bill 3880 passed May 4 will limit future public housing construction to 5,000 dwelling units per year in the nation.

Exempted from this bill, if a similar one is passed by the Senate, will be those projects under construction or those that have proceed orders for construction.

Raines and Thomas B. Finan, attorney to the Housing Authority, said that plans are expected to be completed by June 6 by the engineers and architect.

Between then and June 30, much has to be done by the Housing Authority under the bill.

Bids are expected to be advertised on June 6 when the plans are ready. In all fairness, Raines pointed out, the bidders on the job in Mapleside should have at least two weeks to prepare their estimates.

Must Get Approval

The final bids then must be forwarded to the regional Public Housing Administration in Philadelphia for approval.

It was indicated that there is a chance that the local project will not meet the deadline because of a number of possible delays.

During the next fiscal year, starting July 1, only 5,000 units will be allotted in the United States. One project in a large city would take up this number.

The housing project picture nationwide shows 38,670 units under construction; 98,860 under final contract, of which sites have been purchased for 62,930 units; 140,580 under preliminary loan contract, and 23,421 units under reservation.

Beall Answered Protest

In answer to a protest by Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, Rep. J. Glenn Beall, who voted for the bill, stated he felt that the cut in appropriations for public housing "would in no way interfere with Cumberland or any other community whose authorization has been approved."

Housing authority spokesmen clarified the picture by pointing out that the preliminary studies on the Mapleside project have been made and approved, and authorization was given to go ahead with the acquisition of property.

However, the bill reads that "proceed orders" on actual construction after the contract has been awarded must be had by June 30.

"The Authority on Authorities"

WATCH THE CARDS FALL

ONE difference between the real expert and most pretty good players lies in the thoroughness of one as against the hastiness of the other. The average good player, when he sees that the success of a particular finesse would assure completion of his contract, goes after it right away, or right after removing trumps, if he is in a suit contract. The star, when in doubt about the finesse, is likely to run his sure tricks first and watch the fall of the cards to see if he can obtain information that will tell him whether to finesse or not. Sometimes this develops a squeeze or throw-in play which wins, whereas the finesse would have failed.

Charles H. Goren, great Philadelphia exponent of "Point Count Bidding" and leading Master Point winner of the country, is a top-line coach who can exemplify his instruction. In a game at one of his big courses for teachers and others, similar to that he has arranged in the LaSalle hotel, Chicago, for next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, he gave an exhibition of conscientious declarer play on this deal.

After the spade 9 was led, East playing low to keep his tenace over the K, he saw the possibility of two losers in that suit. An ordinary declarer would have felt that, if he cleared trumps successfully, his contract would then depend on winning the club finesse in order to discard one of the spade losers. But he first probed for facts.

Going to dummy with the diamond Q to the A, he led the heart J, felling the K with the A and clearing trumps then with the Q. Now he went to dummy with the club 3 to the A, scored three more hearts and the diamond K, then his last heart, discarding on it the spade K. He had watched East discard on hearts the spade 3, spade 10, club 8, diamond 10 and spade J, and West the club 2, diamond 3 and 4, club 6 and diamond 8. With East counted now for the spade A and club Q-10, he threw the latter in with a spade lead and the return had to be from the clubs into the dummy's K-J. Note that the finesse would have lost.

Housing Project Planned At Mapleside May Be Curtailed

The low-rent housing project planned for Mapleside is in serious danger of not being constructed in the event the Senate passes a bill similar to the one approved in the House on May 4 cutting the appropriations on public housing projects.

A time deadline faces the Cumberland Housing Authority, James B. Raines, director, explained yesterday. The project must have proceed orders by June 30 in order to come under the bill's provision.

This means that the Negro housing project of 30 apartments planned on Frederick Street could not possibly be ready by June 30, Raines said.

Yearly Limit Fixed

House Bill 3880 passed May 4 will limit future public housing construction to 5,000 dwelling units per year in the nation.

Exempted from this bill, if a similar one is passed by the Senate, will be those projects under construction or those that have proceed orders for construction.

Raines and Thomas B. Finan, attorney to the Housing Authority, said that plans are expected to be completed by June 6 by the engineers and architect.

Between then and June 30, much has to be done by the Housing Authority under the bill.

Bids are expected to be advertised on June 6 when the plans are ready. In all fairness, Raines pointed out, the bidders on the job in Mapleside should have at least two weeks to prepare their estimates.

Must Get Approval

The final bids then must be forwarded to the regional Public Housing Administration in Philadelphia for approval.

It was indicated that there is a chance that the local project will not meet the deadline because of a number of possible delays.

During the next fiscal year, starting July 1, only 5,000 units will be allotted in the United States. One project in a large city would take up this number.

The housing project picture nationwide shows 38,670 units under construction; 98,860 under final contract, of which sites have been purchased for 62,930 units; 140,580 under preliminary loan contract, and 23,421 units under reservation.

Beall Answered Protest

In answer to a protest by Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, Rep. J. Glenn Beall, who voted for the bill, stated he felt that the cut in appropriations for public housing "would in no way interfere with Cumberland or any other community whose authorization has been approved."

Housing authority spokesmen clarified the picture by pointing out that the preliminary studies on the Mapleside project have been made and approved, and authorization was given to go ahead with the acquisition of property.

However, the bill reads that "proceed orders" on actual construction after the contract has been awarded must be had by June 30.

Visiting the Cumberland Housing Authority today to review and expedite plans was John G. Gardner, of the PHA regional office in Philadelphia.

WATCH THE CARDS FALL

ONE difference between the real expert and most pretty good players lies in the thoroughness of one as against the hastiness of the other. The average good player, when he sees that the success of a particular finesse would assure completion of his contract, goes after it right away, or right after removing trumps, if he is in a suit contract. The star, when in doubt about the finesse, is likely to run his sure tricks first and watch the fall of the cards to see if he can obtain information that will tell him whether to finesse or not. Sometimes this develops a squeeze or throw-in play which wins, whereas the finesse would have failed.

Charles H. Goren, great Philadelphia exponent of "Point Count Bidding" and leading Master Point winner of the country, is a top-line coach who can exemplify his instruction. In a game at one of his big courses for teachers and others, similar to that he has arranged in the LaSalle hotel, Chicago, for next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, he gave an exhibition of conscientious declarer play on this deal.

After the spade 9 was led, East playing low to keep his tenace over the K, he saw the possibility of two losers in that suit. An ordinary declarer would have felt that, if he cleared trumps successfully, his contract would then depend on winning the club finesse in order to discard one of the spade losers. But he first probed for facts.

Going to dummy with the diamond Q to the A, he led the heart J, felling the K with the A and clearing trumps then with the Q. Now he went to dummy with the club 3 to the A, scored three more hearts and the diamond K, then his last heart, discarding on it the spade K. He had watched East discard on hearts the spade 3, spade 10, club 8, diamond 10 and spade J, and West the club 2, diamond 3 and 4, club 6 and diamond 8. With East counted now for the spade A and club Q-10, he threw the latter in with a spade lead and the return had to be from the clubs into the dummy's K-J. Note that the finesse would have lost.

Commissions Of Inquiry

Congress faces a decision before September 1 on whether to continue the current investigation of interstate crime and if so under what auspices. Three alternative methods of pursuing the inquiry have been suggested. They are further extension of the present Senate investigating committee, which expires three months hence; creation of a new joint Senate-House committee for surveillance of crime conditions; enactment of legislation to establish a permanent Federal Crime Commission in the executive branch of the government.

Transfer of the inquiry to a presidentially-appointed commission is the method preferred by the present Crime Investigating Committee. In a report, May 1, it recommended creation of such a commission, which, in addition to keeping track of criminal operations, would have the duty of suggesting legislation for better law enforcement at all levels of government, conducting social studies in these fields, and maintaining a clearing house of information on criminal activities.

All except one of the five members of the committee joined in this recommendation. The lone dissenter, Sen. Wiley (R., Wis.), is opposed to both an executive commission and a congressional watchdog committee. He sees the proposed watchdog committee only as an instrument for harrassing such agencies as the FBI, the Secret Service, and the Narcotics Bureau in the performance of their duties, and believes there is no need to put any "super-duper crime commission" over them.

The question whether inquiry into a given national problem can be better conducted by a congressional committe or by an executive commission has often been raised in the past. It again arises both in the crime investigation and in troubles of the commission appointed by the President, with Admiral Nimitz at its head, to investigate and report on questions of internal security and individual rights.

Eight members of the Nimitz commission resigned in a body after a House-passed resolution to exempt it from the "conflict of interest" laws was shelved by the Senate Judiciary Committee. These laws forbid any person employed by the government to do business with it until two years after termination of his service. This prohibition has customarily been lifted both for presidential commissions and for staff members of congressional investigating committees. But the Senate Judiciary Committee has established a subcommittee of its own members to investigate internal security, with an appropriation of $75,000, and does not look with favor on competition from a presidentially-appointed commission.

Like the royal commissions used in Great Britain and Canada to study and recommend solutions to national problems, presidential commissions in the United States have frequently rendered valuable service. Yet many of them have encountered obstruction from the Legislative Branch.

A denial of further appropriations brought an end to the work of President Taft's Commission on Economy and Efficiency in 1913. The Taft commission is credited, among other things, with laying foundations for the present federal budget system. One of the most notable commissions of American history—Theodore Roosevelt's National Conservation Commission, headed by Gifford Pinchot— had similarly been terminated in 1909.

Two commissions which were less successful in winning public acceptance of their recommendations were the Commission on Law Enforcement and Observance, appointed by President Hoover in 1929, and the Committee on Civil Rights, appointed by President Truman in 1946. Hoover himself voiced "serious objections" to recommendations on prohibition of his Law Enforcement commission when submitting them to Congress.

The recent Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch, under Hoover's chairmanship, has had about half its recommendations accepted and put into effect. It was a mixed legislative-executive body of the type which may ultimately be accepted as successor to the Senate's Crime Investigating Committee.

What Next?

Considering the confused state of the government's economic controls program and the uncertain manner in which it is being administered, it is not strange that Congress cannot decide what to do about it. The present law expires June 30—and at the moment it is a toss-up whether Congress will abandon the whole thing or pass a new bill which will be either broader or more narrow than the law now in force.

Because the American people are constitutionally opposed to regimentation, it is perhaps natural that every group should have a complaint to make against the system under which the nation's economy has been operating for several months. Labor, industry, farmers, stock raisers and just ordinary consumers are all in a fault-finding mood and are putting all possible heat on members of Congress.

Labor is seeking further cracks in the wage ceiling, industry wants changes in the distribution of scarce materials, farmers demand higher prices for their produce and householders are fretting under a steadily mounting cost of living. To reconcile these conflicting viewpoints is now the job before Congress.

It is a job that is becoming more difficult day by day. The public remains unconvinced that if the more drastic controls advocated by President Truman are applied, a day will ever arrive that will see the Administration consent to their removal.

Fight On Cancer Gains

There is a paradox in the report of the American Cancer Society on progress of the fight on cancer last year. The report estimates 70,000 persons were saved from cancer and possibly cured. An additional 70,000 persons might have been saved had their cancers been detected and treated earlier, according to the report. The fight on cancer definitely is making progress.

But cancer deaths numbering 210,000 reached a new high last year, which is not so good. But the increase in cancer deaths is attributed largely to the fact that more people are living to the ages when cancer becomes more common—that is, to increased longevity—and to more accurate diagnosis which lists deaths as caused by cancer which might have been attributed to other causes in former years.

Progress in the fight on cancer is being made in the fields of X-ray, radium and surgery. The 70,000 persons saved from cancer last year probably will not have a recurrence of cancer, society officials said, basing their opinion on past experience. But five years must go by without a recurrence before cancer is considered cured.

How To Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Procaine Eases Pain

Procaine, an anesthetic, came into being more than 40 years ago and owes its fame to the fact that it can be introduced under the skin or into the gums and within a few moments the nerves will be deadened. The area becomes so numb that the surgeon or dentist is able to work without producing pain.

Ten years ago physicians began to experiment with the intravenous use of this drug. They injected the solution into a vein and found it was nontoxic and left no unpleasant after effects. This is unusual because most pain relievers and anesthetics are followed by a hangover, interfere with breathing, or fail to relax the muscles. This is not true of procaine. Furthermore, the substance is eliminated rapidly from the system, which is an additional safety measure in case too much is administered.

Pain from an injury such as a sprain or blow subsides within a few moments after the material is injected. One group of industrial surgeons, for example, employed it in 463 cases and were more than pleased with the results. Many of the patients had fractures, joint pains, sprains, sore back, mild fascitis [inflammation], or other disturbances brought on thru trauma. The procaine in the blood has a tendency to leak into the damaged tissues so that the concentration is seven or eight times greater than in normal tissues. In fractures, procaine relieved distress immediately and helped reduce swelling within a day or two. The parts were not completely deadened; the physician could reduce the fracture without resorting to other anesthetics.

In dislocations and sprains there was dramatic improvement and many sufferers were able to bear their weight without wincing. Relief may not be permanent and the injection can be repeated if necessary after 24 to 48 hours. Many do well with one "shot"; should pain return it usually is tolerable. Procaine also has been helpful in certain types of arthritis.

Intravenous procaine has eased itching of the skin and pain of a burn. Here again the involved tissues are more permeable and allow the procaine to diffuse freely into the tissues and anesthetize the nerve endings. In a few instances, the compound has led to temporary relief of muscle spasm in such conditions as cerebral palsy and paralysis agitans. Procaine, combined with tetanus antitoxin, has given good results in experimental work.

Procaine rarely is given intravenously as a substitute for ether or nitrous oxide in surgical operations, but has been utilized in appendicitis and hernia repair. The quantity required for this purpose is too much for routine use. Anesthetists have employed it in conjunction with a general anesthetic. The combination has a tendency to depress the coughing reflex, keep the entire respiratory tract dry, and eliminate the possibility of nausea and vomiting on coming out of the anesthetic. Procaine also has a good influence upon the heart, preventing irregularities. Tho the preparation has toxic effects that are related to the rate of injection, slow administration will avert this difficulty. Furthermore, if a barbituric compound is given prior to the procaine, discomfort of this nature will be combated.

TOMORROW: Dr. Van Dellen discusses mumps.

ARTERIOSCLEROSIS

F. G. writes: What foods and drinks are bad for hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

None to my knowledge except those that add weight. There is considerable talk about the role of cholesterol-rich foods in the production of arteriosclerosis but most of this work is based on animal experimentation which is done under unnatural conditions. It is unfair to draw too heavily on these conclusions.

SOME WE DO

H. L. writes: Why can't we have most diseases more than once?

REPLY

Many diseases, such as polio and mumps, confer immunity. Others, like the common cold, often give repeat performances. Still others occur only once but persist because we have no remedy for them. Multiple sclerosis is an example of the chronic type of disease.

SALT BATHS

H. F. writes: Are Epsom salt baths good to remove pus from a finger?

REPLY

Yes, but I have more faith in the hot water than the Epsom salts. Much of the magic power attributed to magnesium sulfate is due to the heat of the bath.

NOISY TUMMY

Mrs. R. writes: My stomach is always grumbling. What can I do?

REPLY

RFC Scandal Faces Symington; Case Involves B. & O. Railroad And Jesse Jones; Railroad Paid Private Debts But Not Government Loan

WASHINGTON — Stuart Symington, the Truman trouble-shooter, has made a good start toward cleaning the barnacles from the politics-ridden Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He may not know it, however, but the most scandalous case in his files involves one of the major railroads of the United States and a member of the Roosevelt Cabinet.

It also involves some of the worst wire-pulling and deliberate deception which this observer has ever seen in Washington.

The railroad is the Baltimore and Ohio, which borrowed $87,000,000 of the taxpayers' money in 1939 with the obligation to pay it back in 1944. Instead, the B. &. O. arranged a deal, with the RFC as a collaborator, by which it went into receivership under the McLaughlin Act.

The Roosevelt Cabinet member was Jesse Jones, onetime Sesretary of Commerce and Federal Loan Administrator.

One of the most interesting aspects of the B. & O. case is that forthright GOP Senator Tobey of New Hampshire, then chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, conducted an investigation of the loan in 1947, but for some strange reason a final report was never published — even though the Republicans were then in control of Congress.

However, the facts are all on record, both before a federal court in Baltimore and in the files of the Banking and Currency Committee

Jesse Takes A Ride

They show that the Baltimore and Ohio took Jesse Jones on a private car to St. Louis while he was returning to Texas for the Christmas holidays in 1943, and on this trip B. & O. Vice President Russell Snodgrass suggested a plan to put the railroad into receivership. Snodgrass even wrote the draft of a letter which he wanted the RFC to send him — a letter which would be the excuse for putting the railroad into a receivership.

And Jesse Jones, sitting back in the private B. & O. car, clicking over the rails to St. Louis, obviously agreed. For the letter was sent, signed by one of Jones' RFC directors, and the railroad thereafter was able to postpone payment of its huge $87,000,000 loan to Uncle Sam.

At that time, the B. & O. was making money. In fact, between 1939 and 1944, it cleared $110,000,000 net profit after taxes.

Siphoning Off Profits

Furthermore, the railroad deliberately paid off $31,000,000 from its net profits in 1943-44 to to buy up B. & O. bonds that didn't mature until between the years 1948 and 2000. The goverment loan meanwhile matured in 1944. Yet the B. & O. management siphoned off money which could have reduced its indebtedness to Uncle Sam, in order to pay private debts not due until much later.

This diversion of money also was done with the consent of Jesse Jones, despite the fact he was then charged with protecting the best interests of the United States government.

Putting these private debts ahead of the government loan, commented the Senate Banking and Currency investigation, "tended to minimize the actual and prospective resources of the B. & O. and thus served to justify the receivership.

"It seems fair to conclude," the senators added, "that without straining, B. & O. could have cut its debt to RFC to about $25,000,000 had it chosen to treat first things first, and to meet its 1944 debt to RFC from the resources it had available."

Part of this inside finagling between Jesse Jones and the B. & O. leaked out when Cassius Clay, a former RFC official, joined the B. & O. as solicitor, then became disgusted with what was going on and supplied information to the Senate committee.

Clay's Confidential Memo

It was Clay who wrote a confidential memo, dated Aug. 1944, telling of the Jesse Jones conversation on the private B. & O. car at which the plot was hatched. Clay, then general solicitor of the railroad, wrote to John Cornwell, a director and general counsel, as follows:

"When Mr. Jesse H. Jones went to Texas for the Christmas holidays, Mr. Snodgrass took him out to St. Louis on one of the B. & O. business cars for the purpose, so I understand, of discussing the matter with Mr. Jones. Not long thereafter Mr. Snodgrass asked me to come to his office to confer. He said that in his view it was necessary for the company to resort to the McLaughlin Act in 1944-45, particularly for the following reasons:

"(1) The fact that the McLaughlin Act expired on November 1, 1945, and the uncertainty as to whether it would be renewed by Congress.

"(2) The second reason which he gave was expressed in this way: 'If we wait beyond 1944, we might lose control of the situation.'

"With regard to Point 1, I said I was not impressed since it seemed to me that it was likely that the McLaughlin Act would be extended regardless of what party was in power after the next election . . . . With regard to Point 2, I said that I did not appreciate that the control of the B. & O. was involved. In expanding his remarks, Mr. Snodgrass said he meant after the election, Mr. Jesse Jones might leave the RFC and the RFC might pass into hands that were less friendly to the B. & O."

Shortly afterward, Clay resigned in disgust. He charged that the petition for receivership was a "fraud" and a "frame-up."

"Fragrant" Deal

Another interesting letter in the B. & O. files was written by Snodgrass exactly four days before the B. & O. filed its second receivership petition in district court in Baltimore in July 1945. The letter was written to Arthur Dean, special counsel for the railroad in handling the receivership. It read:

"Dear Arthur: I am enclosing a copy of a plant and of the bud which we grafted on it with a view to producing a flower, lily white in color, bold in design and seductive in fragrance, instead of the burs and beggar lice which the plant was intended to bear."

Though written in parables, the letter apparently referred to the impending petition. It would seem that Snodgrass was describing the fictitious bankruptcy as "bold in design," yet "producing a flower, lily white in color . . . and seductive in fragrance."

Under testimony, Snodgrass admitted that he was not a botanist and had written the letter in "hyperbole." Presumably Vice President Snodgrass felt that the deal he was putting across was so carefully camouflaged that it would have a fragrant odor to the public, not the nauseating smell which it deserved if all the facts were published.

This is only a part of the history of the second largest loan in RFC history, which has been gathering dust in RFC files, and which new RFC Director Symington now must wrestle with. More on this amazing operation will follow soon.

Opportunities Today

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., May 27—During the past winter many young people have complained to me saying: "There are not as many good opportunities today for young people as there were 50 years ago." Let me answer by saying this complaint is all wrong so far as it applies to those willing to do a good day's work. Here are eight reasons to prove it.

Free Educational Opportunities

(1) Although our United States population has increased from 75,994,575 in 1900 (when I got my first job at $10 per week) to 153,490,000 today, the demand for workers has increased much more. Hence, population figures are in favor of today's young people.

(2) There are many more opportunities for free advanced education than ever before. These include free degree scholarships in all good colleges, very cheap extension correspondence courses in most subjects, and excellent public libraries where one can get a good education by merely systematic reading.

(3) The average young person today will not work hard or for long hours. He wants an "easy job." This gives those few who are glad to work hard and long much better jobs and faster promotions.

What Employers Want

(4) Employers want young workers to have good habits—those who let liquor alone and don't smoke during business hours. As each year fewer job applicants appear to qualify for good habits, those few who do possess them have an advantage.

(5) Those who belong to no labor union also have an advantage in getting good jobs and fast promotions. This gives another opportunity to young people not possessed by elders.

(6) Another advantage young people have today is the ability to borrow money for a home. When I got married it was necessary to put 40 per cent cash down. We could borrow only 60 per cent and only for three to five years. Now, any good couple can borrow 80 per cent or more with payments extended over 20 years. In addition, they today have social security, accident insurance and other benefits which Mrs. Babson and I never had.

(7) As a statistician, I must remind readers of how the country's birth rate will help graduates this coming June. If you were born during the early "thirties" when there was great unemployment and few marriages and babies, you now have not so many to compete with.

(8) The pension plans which are now rapidly increasing not only eliminate the oldsters more rapidly, thus making promotions easier for you, but they also furnish you security in your latter days.

Don't Have Draft Worries

I repeat my previous advice that you go ahead with your plans for college or for getting a job the same as if no war were possible. Congress is acting on universal military training just as I forecast. Moreover, those who are drafted are about as safe as those who stay at home; while the 85 per cent who return will have benefits as veterans, which the non-drafted boys will not have.

One more thought. The question as to whether you will become an employer some day instead of always remaining a wageworker will largely be determined by this simple rule: If you save some money each week, you can some day become an employer. If you don't save money each week, you will always remain a wageworker.

Matter Of Fact

What Do We Want In Korea?

WASHINGTON

The National Security Council, with the concurrence of President Truman, has now at last arrived at a decision of the greatest importance. After endless travail, the National Security Council has decided precisely what the American government wants to achieve in Korea.

What the American government wants is a negotiated settlement of the Korean War, based on the partition of Korea at the 38th Parallel. This is, of course, a minimum objective. And to this objective certain conditions are attached.

One condition is that such a settlement must involve no commitment whatsoever on the status of Formosa or on Communist China's admission into the United Nations. Another condition is that United Nations observers must be freely admitted into North Korea, to make certain that Chinese Communist troops are actually withdrawn. A third probable condition is the establishment of a demilitarized buffer zone along the 38th Parallel.

This National Security Council decision is of the utmost significance in a great many ways. For one thing, such a settlement would be far short of the "victory" which Gen. MacArthur demands, a fact which has all sorts of domestic political implications. But although a settlement on the 38th Parallel would not mean victory for this country, it would certainly mean defeat for the Soviet effort to seize all Korea by force.

Evidence Inconclusive

This raises the obvious question—whether there is any real chance at all of negotiating such a settlement. Here the evidence, while certainly not conclusive, is at least interesting.

About two weeks ago, as first reported in this space, there came the first exceedingly veiled hints of a Soviet willingness to negotiate on Korea. Despite denials, one such hint came from Soviet United Nations delegate Jacob Malik. Another, stronger hint, which carried the implication that the British might act as intermediaries, was conveyed to British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison. And at the same time, the Soviet propaganda line underwent an abrupt change, which has received remarkably little attention in this country.

Previously, the universal Communist line had been that the "American imperialists" must be driven into the sea. Then the Kremlin's Moscow mouthpiece, the newspaper "Pravda," suddenly gave much space to an obscure Senate resolution introduced by Colorado's Sen. Edwin Johnson. This resolution proposed a negotiated ceasefire on the 38th Parallel. Instantly the Western Communist press, and especially the New York "Daily Worker," obviously acting on urgent orders from the Kremlin, began beating the drums for the Johnson resolution.

It is true that the other Kremlin mouthpiece, "Izvestia," mildly disputed "Pravda," asserting that the Johnson resolution was no more than "imperialist camouflage." The Chinese Communist propaganda apparatus had adhered rigidly and exclusively to this line.

Two Stages Required

Even so, the best of the experts take the signs and portents listed above very seriously indeed. These signs and portents at least might mean that the Soviet rulers, since the defeat of the Communist spring offensive, have concluded that Soviet victory in Korea is impossible without world war, and have therefore decided to cut their losses. If so, a settlement will require two stages.

The first stage will be that of secret negotiation with the Soviets —which one official has described as "a process both as clumsy and as delicate as the mating of whales." If—an enormous if—this process is successful, it will then be up to the Soviet rulers to force their Chinese satellites into line. Rightly or wrongly, none of the experts believes that there is the slightest doubt about the Soviet ability to do this. The second, formal stage of negotiation will then start, in which a settlement already arrived at will be publicly ratified.

No one in his senses will predict that anything like the foregoing will actually come to pass. The Soviet hints and the Soviet propaganda switch may be no more than a trap for the unwary. Any one of a number of events, notably an explosion in Iran, or a new Soviet-inspired aggression elsewhere, could rule out the slightest chance of a settlement. Yet, in trying to understand what lies behind all the sound and fury emanating from Washington, it is worth bearing in mind that the most experienced policy makers seriously believe that there is a real chance of a negotiated settlement of the Korean war; and that American policy in Asia is now squarely based on this chance, however slim it may be.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Bipartisanship

The theory of bipartisan commissions and committees in the American system of government is that no one political party, no matter how extensive its majority, shall have sole control. Ours is a two-party system with a recognition by acts of Congress of the rights of minority parties.

The President of the United States is often required by law to appoint members of the minority party to serve on commissions and such bodies. It has become increasingly a habit for the Democratic Administration to select its own Republicans, even some whose relationship to the minority party is remote or dubious.

Now along comes Donald Dawson, presidential secretary, whose explanation to the Fulbright Committee is fascinating:

"Senator Bennett. If the Republican National Committee had known that its recommendations would have received 'every consideration,' can you explain why it was necessary for the two Republicans who by law had to be appointed to the RFC board of directors to receive recommendations from the Democratic National Committee?

"Mr. Dawson. This is a Democratic Administration, Senator. Of course we go to the Democratic National Committee."

That is not the law. The President is not required by law to go to the Democratic National Committee or the Republican National Committee when he needs to choose a Republican. He can find his own. He might even create a Republican. This violates the theory of bipartisanship, but Mr. Dawson, does not. For note this colloquy:

"Senator Bennett. . . . There is this interesting situation: under the law, two of these men must be Republicans. The purpose of the law is to get bipartisanship, true bipartisanship in the management of RFC, but under the circumstances can you have true bipartisanship if the Republican nominees must be cleared with the Democratic National Committee?

"Mr. Dawson. Certainly.

"Senator Bennett. Do you say your idea of bipartisanship is control by the Democratic National Committee?

"Mr. Dawson. That is not what I said at all, and it is not my idea, Senator.

"Senator Bennett. Would you enlighten me a little further, please.

"Mr. Dawson. When you have the Congress setting up an agency to carry out a program of the Administration, it is necessary that the that purpose that the Congress has people that run that agency be for intended the agency, and naturally you could not expect a man to head an agency if he were antagonistic to it."

The queer thing about this statement is that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which is the agency under discussion, is not under the President, but should report to Congress. Its members should not by law, be concerned with the policies of the Administration but should form their own policies independently. This, Donald Dawson, in spite of the fact that he is one of the President's secretaries, apparently did not understand. Senator Bennett put him through the paces:

"Senator Bennett. Is the Administration responsible for administering the RFC?

"Mr. Dawson. I think the President is held responsible for its success.

"Senator Bennett. I understand this is an independent agency, and the President's powers are limited to the appointment of members of the board, subject to confirmation by the Senate. I may be mistaken about that.

"Mr. Dawson. I don't know about those technical features.

"Senator Bennett. But your impression is that it is an Administration agency; and, therefore, the President is responsible.

"In other words, there is no such thing as an independent agency.

"Mr. Dawson. My impression is that the President is held accountable for its success."

This may seem unbelievable to a student of government who knows why the independent agencies were organized and how they are supposed to function. Yet here is the shocking instance of the presidential secretary in charge of personnel, through whose hands pass the names of those whom the President appoints to office, not knowing the difference between a public body that is under the executive branch of government and a public body that is independent of the executive.

I would suggest to the White House that it purchase for the sum of $1 the "United States Government Organization Manual," prepared by the Federal Register Division, National Archives and Records Service of the General Services Administration. This book is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. Beginning on Page 286 and running to Page 457, Donald Dawson will find a detailed account of the independent agencies. It could aid his understanding of our government.

Commissions Of Inquiry

Congress faces a decision before September 1 on whether to continue the current investigation of interstate crime and if so under what auspices. Three alternative methods of pursuing the inquiry have been suggested. They are further extension of the present Senate investigating committee, which expires three months hence; creation of a new joint Senate-House committee for surveillance of crime conditions; enactment of legislation to establish a permanent Federal Crime Commission in the executive branch of the government.

Transfer of the inquiry to a presidentially-appointed commission is the method preferred by the present Crime Investigating Committee. In a report, May 1, it recommended creation of such a commission, which, in addition to keeping track of criminal operations, would have the duty of suggesting legislation for better law enforcement at all levels of government, conducting social studies in these fields, and maintaining a clearing house of information on criminal activities.

All except one of the five members of the committee joined in this recommendation. The lone dissenter, Sen. Wiley (R., Wis.), is opposed to both an executive commission and a congressional watchdog committee. He sees the proposed watchdog committee only as an instrument for harrassing such agencies as the FBI, the Secret Service, and the Narcotics Bureau in the performance of their duties, and believes there is no need to put any "super-duper crime commission" over them.

The question whether inquiry into a given national problem can be better conducted by a congressional committe or by an executive commission has often been raised in the past. It again arises both in the crime investigation and in troubles of the commission appointed by the President, with Admiral Nimitz at its head, to investigate and report on questions of internal security and individual rights.

Eight members of the Nimitz commission resigned in a body after a House-passed resolution to exempt it from the "conflict of interest" laws was shelved by the Senate Judiciary Committee. These laws forbid any person employed by the government to do business with it until two years after termination of his service. This prohibition has customarily been lifted both for presidential commissions and for staff members of congressional investigating committees. But the Senate Judiciary Committee has established a subcommittee of its own members to investigate internal security, with an appropriation of $75,000, and does not look with favor on competition from a presidentially-appointed commission.

Like the royal commissions used in Great Britain and Canada to study and recommend solutions to national problems, presidential commissions in the United States have frequently rendered valuable service. Yet many of them have encountered obstruction from the Legislative Branch.

A denial of further appropriations brought an end to the work of President Taft's Commission on Economy and Efficiency in 1913. The Taft commission is credited, among other things, with laying foundations for the present federal budget system. One of the most notable commissions of American history—Theodore Roosevelt's National Conservation Commission, headed by Gifford Pinchot— had similarly been terminated in 1909.

Two commissions which were less successful in winning public acceptance of their recommendations were the Commission on Law Enforcement and Observance, appointed by President Hoover in 1929, and the Committee on Civil Rights, appointed by President Truman in 1946. Hoover himself voiced "serious objections" to recommendations on prohibition of his Law Enforcement commission when submitting them to Congress.

The recent Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch, under Hoover's chairmanship, has had about half its recommendations accepted and put into effect. It was a mixed legislative-executive body of the type which may ultimately be accepted as successor to the Senate's Crime Investigating Committee.

What Next?

Considering the confused state of the government's economic controls program and the uncertain manner in which it is being administered, it is not strange that Congress cannot decide what to do about it. The present law expires June 30—and at the moment it is a toss-up whether Congress will abandon the whole thing or pass a new bill which will be either broader or more narrow than the law now in force.

Because the American people are constitutionally opposed to regimentation, it is perhaps natural that every group should have a complaint to make against the system under which the nation's economy has been operating for several months. Labor, industry, farmers, stock raisers and just ordinary consumers are all in a fault-finding mood and are putting all possible heat on members of Congress.

Labor is seeking further cracks in the wage ceiling, industry wants changes in the distribution of scarce materials, farmers demand higher prices for their produce and householders are fretting under a steadily mounting cost of living. To reconcile these conflicting viewpoints is now the job before Congress.

It is a job that is becoming more difficult day by day. The public remains unconvinced that if the more drastic controls advocated by President Truman are applied, a day will ever arrive that will see the Administration consent to their removal.

Fight On Cancer Gains

There is a paradox in the report of the American Cancer Society on progress of the fight on cancer last year. The report estimates 70,000 persons were saved from cancer and possibly cured. An additional 70,000 persons might have been saved had their cancers been detected and treated earlier, according to the report. The fight on cancer definitely is making progress.

But cancer deaths numbering 210,000 reached a new high last year, which is not so good. But the increase in cancer deaths is attributed largely to the fact that more people are living to the ages when cancer becomes more common—that is, to increased longevity—and to more accurate diagnosis which lists deaths as caused by cancer which might have been attributed to other causes in former years.

Progress in the fight on cancer is being made in the fields of X-ray, radium and surgery. The 70,000 persons saved from cancer last year probably will not have a recurrence of cancer, society officials said, basing their opinion on past experience. But five years must go by without a recurrence before cancer is considered cured.

How To Keep Well

Procaine Eases Pain

Procaine, an anesthetic, came into being more than 40 years ago and owes its fame to the fact that it can be introduced under the skin or into the gums and within a few moments the nerves will be deadened. The area becomes so numb that the surgeon or dentist is able to work without producing pain.

Ten years ago physicians began to experiment with the intravenous use of this drug. They injected the solution into a vein and found it was nontoxic and left no unpleasant after effects. This is unusual because most pain relievers and anesthetics are followed by a hangover, interfere with breathing, or fail to relax the muscles. This is not true of procaine. Furthermore, the substance is eliminated rapidly from the system, which is an additional safety measure in case too much is administered.

Pain from an injury such as a sprain or blow subsides within a few moments after the material is injected. One group of industrial surgeons, for example, employed it in 463 cases and were more than pleased with the results. Many of the patients had fractures, joint pains, sprains, sore back, mild fascitis [inflammation], or other disturbances brought on thru trauma. The procaine in the blood has a tendency to leak into the damaged tissues so that the concentration is seven or eight times greater than in normal tissues. In fractures, procaine relieved distress immediately and helped reduce swelling within a day or two. The parts were not completely deadened; the physician could reduce the fracture without resorting to other anesthetics.

In dislocations and sprains there was dramatic improvement and many sufferers were able to bear their weight without wincing. Relief may not be permanent and the injection can be repeated if necessary after 24 to 48 hours. Many do well with one "shot"; should pain return it usually is tolerable. Procaine also has been helpful in certain types of arthritis.

Intravenous procaine has eased itching of the skin and pain of a burn. Here again the involved tissues are more permeable and allow the procaine to diffuse freely into the tissues and anesthetize the nerve endings. In a few instances, the compound has led to temporary relief of muscle spasm in such conditions as cerebral palsy and paralysis agitans. Procaine, combined with tetanus antitoxin, has given good results in experimental work.

Procaine rarely is given intravenously as a substitute for ether or nitrous oxide in surgical operations, but has been utilized in appendicitis and hernia repair. The quantity required for this purpose is too much for routine use. Anesthetists have employed it in conjunction with a general anesthetic. The combination has a tendency to depress the coughing reflex, keep the entire respiratory tract dry, and eliminate the possibility of nausea and vomiting on coming out of the anesthetic. Procaine also has a good influence upon the heart, preventing irregularities. Tho the preparation has toxic effects that are related to the rate of injection, slow administration will avert this difficulty. Furthermore, if a barbituric compound is given prior to the procaine, discomfort of this nature will be combated.

ARTERIOSCLEROSIS

F. G. writes: What foods and drinks are bad for hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

None to my knowledge except those that add weight. There is considerable talk about the role of cholesterol-rich foods in the production of arteriosclerosis but most of this work is based on animal experimentation which is done under unnatural conditions. It is unfair to draw too heavily on these conclusions.

SOME WE DO

H. L. writes: Why can't we have most diseases more than once?

Many diseases, such as polio and mumps, confer immunity. Others, like the common cold, often give repeat performances. Still others occur only once but persist because we have no remedy for them. Multiple sclerosis is an example of the chronic type of disease.

RFC Scandal Faces Symington; Case Involves B. & O. Railroad And Jesse Jones; Railroad Paid Private Debts But Not Government Loan

WASHINGTON — Stuart Symington, the Truman trouble-shooter, has made a good start toward cleaning the barnacles from the politics-ridden Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He may not know it, however, but the most scandalous case in his files involves one of the major railroads of the United States and a member of the Roosevelt Cabinet.

It also involves some of the worst wire-pulling and deliberate deception which this observer has ever seen in Washington.

The railroad is the Baltimore and Ohio, which borrowed $87,000,000 of the taxpayers' money in 1939 with the obligation to pay it back in 1944. Instead, the B. &. O. arranged a deal, with the RFC as a collaborator, by which it went into receivership under the McLaughlin Act.

The Roosevelt Cabinet member was Jesse Jones, onetime Sesretary of Commerce and Federal Loan Administrator.

One of the most interesting aspects of the B. & O. case is that forthright GOP Senator Tobey of New Hampshire, then chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, conducted an investigation of the loan in 1947, but for some strange reason a final report was never published — even though the Republicans were then in control of Congress.

However, the facts are all on record, both before a federal court in Baltimore and in the files of the Banking and Currency Committee

Jesse Takes A Ride

They show that the Baltimore and Ohio took Jesse Jones on a private car to St. Louis while he was returning to Texas for the Christmas holidays in 1943, and on this trip B. & O. Vice President Russell Snodgrass suggested a plan to put the railroad into receivership. Snodgrass even wrote the draft of a letter which he wanted the RFC to send him — a letter which would be the excuse for putting the railroad into a receivership.

And Jesse Jones, sitting back in the private B. & O. car, clicking over the rails to St. Louis, obviously agreed. For the letter was sent, signed by one of Jones' RFC directors, and the railroad thereafter was able to postpone payment of its huge $87,000,000 loan to Uncle Sam.

At that time, the B. & O. was making money. In fact, between 1939 and 1944, it cleared $110,000,000 net profit after taxes.

Siphoning Off Profits

Furthermore, the railroad deliberately paid off $31,000,000 from its net profits in 1943-44 to to buy up B. & O. bonds that didn't mature until between the years 1948 and 2000. The goverment loan meanwhile matured in 1944. Yet the B. & O. management siphoned off money which could have reduced its indebtedness to Uncle Sam, in order to pay private debts not due until much later.

This diversion of money also was done with the consent of Jesse Jones, despite the fact he was then charged with protecting the best interests of the United States government.

Putting these private debts ahead of the government loan, commented the Senate Banking and Currency investigation, "tended to minimize the actual and prospective resources of the B. & O. and thus served to justify the receivership.

"It seems fair to conclude," the senators added, "that without straining, B. & O. could have cut its debt to RFC to about $25,000,000 had it chosen to treat first things first, and to meet its 1944 debt to RFC from the resources it had available."

Part of this inside finagling between Jesse Jones and the B. & O. leaked out when Cassius Clay, a former RFC official, joined the B. & O. as solicitor, then became disgusted with what was going on and supplied information to the Senate committee.

Clay's Confidential Memo

It was Clay who wrote a confidential memo, dated Aug. 1944, telling of the Jesse Jones conversation on the private B. & O. car at which the plot was hatched. Clay, then general solicitor of the railroad, wrote to John Cornwell, a director and general counsel, as follows:

"When Mr. Jesse H. Jones went to Texas for the Christmas holidays, Mr. Snodgrass took him out to St. Louis on one of the B. & O. business cars for the purpose, so I understand, of discussing the matter with Mr. Jones. Not long thereafter Mr. Snodgrass asked me to come to his office to confer. He said that in his view it was necessary for the company to resort to the McLaughlin Act in 1944-45, particularly for the following reasons:

"(1) The fact that the McLaughlin Act expired on November 1, 1945, and the uncertainty as to whether it would be renewed by Congress.

"(2) The second reason which he gave was expressed in this way: 'If we wait beyond 1944, we might lose control of the situation.'

"With regard to Point 1, I said I was not impressed since it seemed to me that it was likely that the McLaughlin Act would be extended regardless of what party was in power after the next election . . . . With regard to Point 2, I said that I did not appreciate that the control of the B. & O. was involved. In expanding his remarks, Mr. Snodgrass said he meant after the election, Mr. Jesse Jones might leave the RFC and the RFC might pass into hands that were less friendly to the B. & O."

Shortly afterward, Clay resigned in disgust. He charged that the petition for receivership was a "fraud" and a "frame-up."

"Fragrant" Deal

Another interesting letter in the B. & O. files was written by Snodgrass exactly four days before the B. & O. filed its second receivership petition in district court in Baltimore in July 1945. The letter was written to Arthur Dean, special counsel for the railroad in handling the receivership. It read:

"Dear Arthur: I am enclosing a copy of a plant and of the bud which we grafted on it with a view to producing a flower, lily white in color, bold in design and seductive in fragrance, instead of the burs and beggar lice which the plant was intended to bear."

Though written in parables, the letter apparently referred to the impending petition. It would seem that Snodgrass was describing the fictitious bankruptcy as "bold in design," yet "producing a flower, lily white in color . . . and seductive in fragrance."

Under testimony, Snodgrass admitted that he was not a botanist and had written the letter in "hyperbole." Presumably Vice President Snodgrass felt that the deal he was putting across was so carefully camouflaged that it would have a fragrant odor to the public, not the nauseating smell which it deserved if all the facts were published.

This is only a part of the history of the second largest loan in RFC history, which has been gathering dust in RFC files, and which new RFC Director Symington now must wrestle with. More on this amazing operation will follow soon.

Opportunities Today

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., May 27—During the past winter many young people have complained to me saying: "There are not as many good opportunities today for young people as there were 50 years ago." Let me answer by saying this complaint is all wrong so far as it applies to those willing to do a good day's work. Here are eight reasons to prove it.

Free Educational Opportunities

(1) Although our United States population has increased from 75,994,575 in 1900 (when I got my first job at $10 per week) to 153,490,000 today, the demand for workers has increased much more. Hence, population figures are in favor of today's young people.

(2) There are many more opportunities for free advanced education than ever before. These include free degree scholarships in all good colleges, very cheap extension correspondence courses in most subjects, and excellent public libraries where one can get a good education by merely systematic reading.

(3) The average young person today will not work hard or for long hours. He wants an "easy job." This gives those few who are glad to work hard and long much better jobs and faster promotions.

What Employers Want

(4) Employers want young workers to have good habits—those who let liquor alone and don't smoke during business hours. As each year fewer job applicants appear to qualify for good habits, those few who do possess them have an advantage.

(5) Those who belong to no labor union also have an advantage in getting good jobs and fast promotions. This gives another opportunity to young people not possessed by elders.

(6) Another advantage young people have today is the ability to borrow money for a home. When I got married it was necessary to put 40 per cent cash down. We could borrow only 60 per cent and only for three to five years. Now, any good couple can borrow 80 per cent or more with payments extended over 20 years. In addition, they today have social security, accident insurance and other benefits which Mrs. Babson and I never had.

(7) As a statistician, I must remind readers of how the country's birth rate will help graduates this coming June. If you were born during the early "thirties" when there was great unemployment and few marriages and babies, you now have not so many to compete with.

(8) The pension plans which are now rapidly increasing not only eliminate the oldsters more rapidly, thus making promotions easier for you, but they also furnish you security in your latter days.

Don't Have Draft Worries

I repeat my previous advice that you go ahead with your plans for college or for getting a job the same as if no war were possible. Congress is acting on universal military training just as I forecast. Moreover, those who are drafted are about as safe as those who stay at home; while the 85 per cent who return will have benefits as veterans, which the non-drafted boys will not have.

One more thought. The question as to whether you will become an employer some day instead of always remaining a wageworker will largely be determined by this simple rule: If you save some money each week, you can some day become an employer. If you don't save money each week, you will always remain a wageworker.

What Do We Want In Korea?

WASHINGTON

The National Security Council, with the concurrence of President Truman, has now at last arrived at a decision of the greatest importance. After endless travail, the National Security Council has decided precisely what the American government wants to achieve in Korea.

What the American government wants is a negotiated settlement of the Korean War, based on the partition of Korea at the 38th Parallel. This is, of course, a minimum objective. And to this objective certain conditions are attached.

One condition is that such a settlement must involve no commitment whatsoever on the status of Formosa or on Communist China's admission into the United Nations. Another condition is that United Nations observers must be freely admitted into North Korea, to make certain that Chinese Communist troops are actually withdrawn. A third probable condition is the establishment of a demilitarized buffer zone along the 38th Parallel.

This National Security Council decision is of the utmost significance in a great many ways. For one thing, such a settlement would be far short of the "victory" which Gen. MacArthur demands, a fact which has all sorts of domestic political implications. But although a settlement on the 38th Parallel would not mean victory for this country, it would certainly mean defeat for the Soviet effort to seize all Korea by force.

Evidence Inconclusive

This raises the obvious question—whether there is any real chance at all of negotiating such a settlement. Here the evidence, while certainly not conclusive, is at least interesting.

About two weeks ago, as first reported in this space, there came the first exceedingly veiled hints of a Soviet willingness to negotiate on Korea. Despite denials, one such hint came from Soviet United Nations delegate Jacob Malik. Another, stronger hint, which carried the implication that the British might act as intermediaries, was conveyed to British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison. And at the same time, the Soviet propaganda line underwent an abrupt change, which has received remarkably little attention in this country.

Previously, the universal Communist line had been that the "American imperialists" must be driven into the sea. Then the Kremlin's Moscow mouthpiece, the newspaper "Pravda," suddenly gave much space to an obscure Senate resolution introduced by Colorado's Sen. Edwin Johnson. This resolution proposed a negotiated ceasefire on the 38th Parallel. Instantly the Western Communist press, and especially the New York "Daily Worker," obviously acting on urgent orders from the Kremlin, began beating the drums for the Johnson resolution.

It is true that the other Kremlin mouthpiece, "Izvestia," mildly disputed "Pravda," asserting that the Johnson resolution was no more than "imperialist camouflage." The Chinese Communist propaganda apparatus had adhered rigidly and exclusively to this line.

Two Stages Required

Even so, the best of the experts take the signs and portents listed above very seriously indeed. These signs and portents at least might mean that the Soviet rulers, since the defeat of the Communist spring offensive, have concluded that Soviet victory in Korea is impossible without world war, and have therefore decided to cut their losses. If so, a settlement will require two stages.

The first stage will be that of secret negotiation with the Soviets —which one official has described as "a process both as clumsy and as delicate as the mating of whales." If—an enormous if—this process is successful, it will then be up to the Soviet rulers to force their Chinese satellites into line. Rightly or wrongly, none of the experts believes that there is the slightest doubt about the Soviet ability to do this. The second, formal stage of negotiation will then start, in which a settlement already arrived at will be publicly ratified.

No one in his senses will predict that anything like the foregoing will actually come to pass. The Soviet hints and the Soviet propaganda switch may be no more than a trap for the unwary. Any one of a number of events, notably an explosion in Iran, or a new Soviet-inspired aggression elsewhere, could rule out the slightest chance of a settlement. Yet, in trying to understand what lies behind all the sound and fury emanating from Washington, it is worth bearing in mind that the most experienced policy makers seriously believe that there is a real chance of a negotiated settlement of the Korean war; and that American policy in Asia is now squarely based on this chance, however slim it may be.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Bipartisanship

The theory of bipartisan commissions and committees in the American system of government is that no one political party, no matter how extensive its majority, shall have sole control. Ours is a two-party system with a recognition by acts of Congress of the rights of minority parties.

The President of the United States is often required by law to appoint members of the minority party to serve on commissions and such bodies. It has become increasingly a habit for the Democratic Administration to select its own Republicans, even some whose relationship to the minority party is remote or dubious.

Now along comes Donald Dawson, presidential secretary, whose explanation to the Fulbright Committee is fascinating:

"Senator Bennett. If the Republican National Committee had known that its recommendations would have received 'every consideration,' can you explain why it was necessary for the two Republicans who by law had to be appointed to the RFC board of directors to receive recommendations from the Democratic National Committee?

"Mr. Dawson. This is a Democratic Administration, Senator. Of course we go to the Democratic National Committee."

That is not the law. The President is not required by law to go to the Democratic National Committee or the Republican National Committee when he needs to choose a Republican. He can find his own. He might even create a Republican. This violates the theory of bipartisanship, but Mr. Dawson, does not. For note this colloquy:

"Senator Bennett. . . . There is this interesting situation: under the law, two of these men must be Republicans. The purpose of the law is to get bipartisanship, true bipartisanship in the management of RFC, but under the circumstances can you have true bipartisanship if the Republican nominees must be cleared with the Democratic National Committee?

"Mr. Dawson. Certainly.

"Senator Bennett. Do you say your idea of bipartisanship is control by the Democratic National Committee?

"Mr. Dawson. That is not what I said at all, and it is not my idea, Senator.

"Senator Bennett. Would you enlighten me a little further, please.

"Mr. Dawson. When you have the Congress setting up an agency to carry out a program of the Administration, it is necessary that the that purpose that the Congress has people that run that agency be for intended the agency, and naturally you could not expect a man to head an agency if he were antagonistic to it."

The queer thing about this statement is that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which is the agency under discussion, is not under the President, but should report to Congress. Its members should not by law, be concerned with the policies of the Administration but should form their own policies independently. This, Donald Dawson, in spite of the fact that he is one of the President's secretaries, apparently did not understand. Senator Bennett put him through the paces:

"Senator Bennett. Is the Administration responsible for administering the RFC?

"Mr. Dawson. I think the President is held responsible for its success.

"Senator Bennett. I understand this is an independent agency, and the President's powers are limited to the appointment of members of the board, subject to confirmation by the Senate. I may be mistaken about that.

"Mr. Dawson. I don't know about those technical features.

"Senator Bennett. But your impression is that it is an Administration agency; and, therefore, the President is responsible.

"In other words, there is no such thing as an independent agency.

"Mr. Dawson. My impression is that the President is held accountable for its success."

This may seem unbelievable to a student of government who knows why the independent agencies were organized and how they are supposed to function. Yet here is the shocking instance of the presidential secretary in charge of personnel, through whose hands pass the names of those whom the President appoints to office, not knowing the difference between a public body that is under the executive branch of government and a public body that is independent of the executive.

I would suggest to the White House that it purchase for the sum of $1 the "United States Government Organization Manual," prepared by the Federal Register Division, National Archives and Records Service of the General Services Administration. This book is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. Beginning on Page 286 and running to Page 457, Donald Dawson will find a detailed account of the independent agencies. It could aid his understanding of our government.

Children Hold "Circus Day" In Lonaconing

Parade Is Feature Of Gala Attraction

LONACONING — It was "circus day" here Saturday afternoon. A group of young children paraded the streets prior to their "circus," with a sign, "M M M Circus" carried by Marvin and Mary Catherine McGregor.

Harold "Sonny" McGregor led his goat, "Nancy", in the line of march which resulted in the parade going where the "stubborn" goat led them. Billy and Bobby McGregor, twins, were attired as boxers, with robes and gloves.

Jimmy Fazenbaker wore a comical negro mask. A collie dog, "Pal", walked along dressed in a large polo shirt. Circus music was provided by Mackay McKenzie and Dale Wilson, trumpets; Billy Rooney, trombone; and Melvin Klipstein, clarinet.

The circus then tented in the McGregor yard where the band played and Mackay McKenzie put on a "floating man" act dressed in cap, sheet and high top boots making it appear that his feet were off the ground and he was floating.

The side show including the "Wild Bamboon" tent where you entered and saw yourself in the mirror; the "for men only," which housed a man's belt; the "for women only" disclosed a lady's hair curler.

Dog tricks were performed by "Pal"; Mackay McKenzie performed as the comical balloon clown with big trousers; the McGregor twins put on boxing matches and there was dancing, acting, balloon sales, and refreshments.

Children Hold "Circus Day" In Lonaconing

Parade Is Feature Of Gala Attraction

LONACONING — It was "circus day" here Saturday afternoon. A group of young children paraded the streets prior to their "circus," with a sign, "M M M Circus" carried by Marvin and Mary Catherine McGregor.

Harold "Sonny" McGregor led his goat, "Nancy", in the line of march which resulted in the parade going where the "stubborn" goat led them. Billy and Bobby McGregor, twins, were attired as boxers, with robes and gloves.

Jimmy Fazenbaker wore a comical negro mask. A collie dog, "Pal", walked along dressed in a large polo shirt. Circus music was provided by Mackay McKenzie and Dale Wilson, trumpets; Billy Rooney, trombone; and Melvin Klipstein, clarinet.

The circus then tented in the McGregor yard where the band played and Mackay McKenzie put on a "floating man" act dressed in cap, sheet and high top boots making it appear that his feet were off the ground and he was floating.

The side show including the "Wild Bamboon" tent where you entered and saw yourself in the mirror; the "for men only," which housed a man's belt; the "for women only" disclosed a lady's hair curler.

Dog tricks were performed by "Pal"; Mackay McKenzie performed as the comical balloon clown with big trousers; the McGregor twins put on boxing matches and there was dancing, acting, balloon sales, and refreshments.

Rockets Away!

Ada Lu Snyder holds the huge rocket up as Betty Bishop lights the fuse that will send it away with a roar. And if Ada Lu forgets to let go she may take a long ride on the man-made missle. However, it's all in fun as the two Allegany High School students demonstrate on the lawn of the school the types of fireworks which will be used in the gala display planned Memorial Day at Cumberland Fairgrounds by the local Optimist Club. The pyrotechnic program will start at 9:15 p.m. preceded by a band concert by Frostburg's Arion Band and the Fort Hill High School Senior Band. The band concert will begin at 8:15 o'clock with the grounds being opened at 6 p.m.

The Old Second Guesser

The Acrobatic Horse

My uncle ran a livery stable in Yonkers, when I was a boy, and a very high-class establishment is was with shiny coaches, liveried drivers, and slick animals. It was a great place to learn to pitch horseshoes, which proved to be profitable in my later years, and to find out about horses.

Whenever I could get away from home. I visited this headquarters and soon had the job of delivering boarders as we called them to their owners which yielded an occasional tip. William G. McAdoo, later Secretary of the Treasury and President Wilson's sonin-law, kept an old nag and phaeton at the barn, and I used to drive up to his house and sometimes had to wait for half an hour. A very important man he was in those days as always. Unless it has slipped my memory, I don't remember ever receiving a gratuity from the gent, and I had a pretty retentive memory about such matters, but boy, he gave me a world of advice.

It was customary for ladies to ride sidesaddle then, so I was ambidextrous you might say and would deliver steeds dressed that way, doing the best I could to stay on. My mother was afraid it might make me effeminate, so she hired a man to give me lessons on the cornet, because she thought I was narrow-chested, and it would expand my lungs. This only lasted a short time, since the neighbors, being unappreciative of music, complainned of the noise and requested I shift to the jew's harp.

There was one horse in the stable which belonged to a lady with an affectionate regard for him, although why I never understood. He had a peculiar habit of rearing up without warning and throwing himself over backwards which was hard on the rider if not agile. She never got on him herself, and I was the boy to exercise him. His eccentricity reminds me of the story of the man who bought a horse with the assurance he was sound in wind and limb. The first day when he was out driving with his wife and going through a narrow creek, the animal plunked down, and they couldn't get him up for half an hour. He went to the former owner and complained.

"Oh, I forgot to tell you," explained the latter. "He has one bad habit. Keep him out of brooks. He likes to sit on fish."

The name of the Yonkers horse was Saxon, and he liked to sit on anything, particularly his rider. However, I got used to him and was light, so he made such a good impression that the head of the carpet works in town decided to try him with the idea of buying, as his horse had gone lame. This rather bulky man made the mistake of mounting in the stable, and the animal promptly turned over and his rider went through the front of a glass harness cabinet, which was his first stop on the way to the hospital. He survived, but was bandaged pretty good for a couple of weeks. He also had a broken arm and just missed getting his throat cut.

After a reasonable lapse of time while I restored Saxon's reputation, a man in south Yonkers with eight or nine children bought him as a carriage horse, forgetting the old saying "caveat emptor." He hitched him up all right and then he and three of four of his offspring got into the surrey. As he clucked to old Saxon to start, he decided to sit in the lap of the new owner, thereby busting the carriage and the harness and generally scaring the daylights out of the family. The last I heard of him he had been sent down the chute to an auction. At that he had only one bad habit.

Now I live in Ridgefield, Conn., on the fringe of the horsey set, and some newcomers were invited for cocktails not long ago by one of the social leaders. There was a lot of talk about horses, but the strangers held back. Finally the hostess, referring to riding, turned to the wife and said,

"Do you jump?"

"Only when I'm pinched in certain places," she answered. I wonder who was kidding who.

Get-Acquainted Day Is Planned At City Schools

A total of 660 elementary students who next fall enter junior high school will visit Fort Hill and Allegany High Schools tomorrow for a get-acquainted program.

Fort Hill will play host to 385, including 50 seventh graders from Pennsylvania Avenue School who will enter the Eighth Grade. The remainder are Sixth-Grade students and come from Pennsylvania Avenue, John Humbird, Johnson Heights, East Side, Gephart, West Side and Columbia Street.

Victor D. Heisey, Fort Hill principal, said the group will meet in the auditorium from 1 to 1:45 p. m. where a program will be presented by the Junior High School Band, choir, Art Club, Dramatic Club and other organizations. The new students will visit English, social studies, science and mathematics classes where they will be made acquainted with class routines and instructors.

Later, students will go to the boys' and girls' gymnasiums for a get-acquainted period with the instructors who will deliver safety and health talks to be remembered during the summer vacation months.

At Fort Hill, Ardell Haines, director of guidance, and the Seventh Grade teachers, are conducting the program.

Allegany, which will be host to 275 students has instigated a novel introduction into junior high school life, according to Ralph R. Webster, principal. New students will ask questions about various activities offered and will be answered by a seventh grader. These may concern membership in the band, how to become cheerleader or any other subject.

A play, written and directed by Miss Betsy Ross Rankin, will portray opportunities offered in activities in junior high. The group at Allegany is scheduled to meet at 12:45 p. m.

Later this group will visit classes.

The new students at Allegany will come from Centre Street School, Columbia Street, Corriganville, Ellerslie, Gephart, LaVale, Mt. Royal and West Side.

Wear your stole with finesse! It takes a polished technique to manage this glamor item with grace!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

Because the stole is such a glamorizer on anything from a bathing suit to an evening dress it takes a little more art to wear it than any other current fashion.

However, it's better to leave it alone than to let it tempt you into an appearance of gaucherie. But you'll have nothing to fear, if you adopt these Powers Girl techniques in handling stoles. Just try them before your mirror and you'll see what grace they add to your appearance.

Draping Your Stole

The first and most important rule is never to pull a stole around you so tightly that it loses all line. If you do, you'll look plain prim—and your stole plain skimpy. Half the beauty of a stole lies in the way it is draped.

When you want warmth from your stole, place it around the back of your shoulders, letting the left side ripple across your chest; sling the right side over your left shoulder, forming a cowl around the front of your throat. Another way to beauty and warmth, unless your stole is cape-shaped, is to wear the center section draped across your chest with the ends crossed behind your back and then returned forward so that they fall over your shoulders.

A second invaluable rule is never to let the ends of your stole dangle like limp, shapeless strings. The result of so doing is a dumpy-looking figure and an unlovely-looking stole.

A graceful effect is assured if you let one end of your stole fall lower than the other. Drape the short end in some graceful fashion—over your wrist, in the curve of your elbow, or under your belt. You will then create diagonal lines that give shape to both your figure and the fashion.

Model Adroitness

Don't expect the back view to take care of itself. Make sure that the fabric drapes prettily. For the utmost drama in an evening dress, let the back of the stole slide to your waistline and catch the sides lightly in the elbow curves.

Only practice will make these techniques come natural to you. You should see the Powers Girls rehearsing them for a big fashion show. But, once on the runway, the models look as though they were born knowing how. A few turns before your mirror, and you will too!

Tomorrow: Toning up to bathing beauty condition!

16 Boy Scouts Pass District Board Of Review

Court Of Honor Planned May 29

Sixteen Boy Scouts, an assistant scoutmaster and a scoutmaster received advancements or merit badges at a Cumberland District Board of Reviews last week at Scout Headquarters, Union Street building.

Advanced from Tenderfoot Scout to Second Class Scout were George Hast, George Eskin and Gary William, all of Troop No. 1, sponsored by St. Luke's Lutheran Church; Vincent Martin, Donald Murray, John Michael Lyons and Charles W. Kiser, all of Troop No. 14, St. Patrick's Catholic Church; Tommy Matlick, Willer Roller and Kenneth Reiber, Troop No. 17, Kelly Springfield Tire Company.

Receiving advancement to Star Scouts were Kent Smith, Troop No. 7, Cumberland Rotary Club, and Robert Parker, Troop No. 4, Centre Street Methodist Church.

Merit badges were approved for First Class Scout Jerry Huff, Troop No. 1, for Bugling, Carpentry, Music and Home Repair; Second Class Bill Spoerl, Troop No. 1, Bookbinding; Second Class Scout Frederick Williams, Troop No. 1, Bookbinding and Home Repair; Star Scout Kent Smith, Troop No. 4, First Aid and Cooking; Star Scout Eugene Kenny, Troop No. 7, Home Repair and First Aid; Assistant Scoutmaster Fern Kenny, Troop No. 7, First Aid; and Scoutmaster Ralph Wigger, Troop No. 14, First Aid.

The badges and awards which were approved by the local district board at Tuesday's review will be formally presented to the scouts at a Cumberland District Court of Honor in Constitution Park beginning at 8 p. m. In the event of inclemet weather next week the Court of Honor will be held at the same time in the Central YMCA.

John L. Towler, chairman, presided at the Board of Review, along with board members Edward T. Jones and R. E. Hollandsworth. Willis V. Smith, scout executive, also was present at the review.

Cumberland Chaplain Is May 30th Speaker

Captain Raymond F. Coleman, native of Cumberland, now serving as Catholic chaplain at Scott Air Force Base, Illinois, will deliver the Memorial Day address at Belleville, Ill., eight miles from the Air Base.

During World War II, Chaplain Coleman served with the 19th Bomber Group on Guam. He entered the service in 1943, served until 1946 and re-entered the service in 1948. Father Coleman has been stationed at the Illinois Air Base since October of last year. He is a son of Joseph A. Coleman, Davidson street.

The Dartmouth College Library has acquired an important collection of letters and manuscripts of Daniel Webster. Another outstanding addition to the Library is a Stephen Crane collection, donated by George Matthew Adams, New York bibliophile.

Rockets Away!

Ada Lu Snyder holds the huge rocket up as Betty Bishop lights the fuse that will send it away with a roar. And if Ada Lu forgets to let go she may take a long ride on the man-made missle. However, it's all in fun as the two Allegany High School students demonstrate on the lawn of the school the types of fireworks which will be used in the gala display planned Memorial Day at Cumberland Fairgrounds by the local Optimist Club. The pyrotechnic program will start at 9:15 p.m. preceded by a band concert by Frostburg's Arion Band and the Fort Hill High School Senior Band. The band concert will begin at 8:15 o'clock with the grounds being opened at 6 p.m.

Get-Acquainted Day Is Planned At City Schools

A total of 660 elementary students who next fall enter junior high school will visit Fort Hill and Allegany High Schools tomorrow for a get-acquainted program.

Fort Hill will play host to 385, including 50 seventh graders from Pennsylvania Avenue School who will enter the Eighth Grade. The remainder are Sixth-Grade students and come from Pennsylvania Avenue, John Humbird, Johnson Heights, East Side, Gephart, West Side and Columbia Street.

Victor D. Heisey, Fort Hill principal, said the group will meet in the auditorium from 1 to 1:45 p. m. where a program will be presented by the Junior High School Band, choir, Art Club, Dramatic Club and other organizations. The new students will visit English, social studies, science and mathematics classes where they will be made acquainted with class routines and instructors.

Later, students will go to the boys' and girls' gymnasiums for a get-acquainted period with the instructors who will deliver safety and health talks to be remembered during the summer vacation months.

At Fort Hill, Ardell Haines, director of guidance, and the Seventh Grade teachers, are conducting the program.

Allegany, which will be host to 275 students has instigated a novel introduction into junior high school life, according to Ralph R. Webster, principal. New students will ask questions about various activities offered and will be answered by a seventh grader. These may concern membership in the band, how to become cheerleader or any other subject.

A play, written and directed by Miss Betsy Ross Rankin, will portray opportunities offered in activities in junior high. The group at Allegany is scheduled to meet at 12:45 p. m.

Later this group will visit classes.

The new students at Allegany will come from Centre Street School, Columbia Street, Corriganville, Ellerslie, Gephart, LaVale, Mt. Royal and West Side.

The Old Second Guesser

The Acrobatic Horse

My uncle ran a livery stable in Yonkers, when I was a boy, and a very high-class establishment is was with shiny coaches, liveried drivers, and slick animals. It was a great place to learn to pitch horseshoes, which proved to be profitable in my later years, and to find out about horses.

Whenever I could get away from home. I visited this headquarters and soon had the job of delivering boarders as we called them to their owners which yielded an occasional tip. William G. McAdoo, later Secretary of the Treasury and President Wilson's sonin-law, kept an old nag and phaeton at the barn, and I used to drive up to his house and sometimes had to wait for half an hour. A very important man he was in those days as always. Unless it has slipped my memory, I don't remember ever receiving a gratuity from the gent, and I had a pretty retentive memory about such matters, but boy, he gave me a world of advice.

It was customary for ladies to ride sidesaddle then, so I was ambidextrous you might say and would deliver steeds dressed that way, doing the best I could to stay on. My mother was afraid it might make me effeminate, so she hired a man to give me lessons on the cornet, because she thought I was narrow-chested, and it would expand my lungs. This only lasted a short time, since the neighbors, being unappreciative of music, complainned of the noise and requested I shift to the jew's harp.

There was one horse in the stable which belonged to a lady with an affectionate regard for him, although why I never understood. He had a peculiar habit of rearing up without warning and throwing himself over backwards which was hard on the rider if not agile. She never got on him herself, and I was the boy to exercise him. His eccentricity reminds me of the story of the man who bought a horse with the assurance he was sound in wind and limb. The first day when he was out driving with his wife and going through a narrow creek, the animal plunked down, and they couldn't get him up for half an hour. He went to the former owner and complained.

"Oh, I forgot to tell you," explained the latter. "He has one bad habit. Keep him out of brooks. He likes to sit on fish."

The name of the Yonkers horse was Saxon, and he liked to sit on anything, particularly his rider. However, I got used to him and was light, so he made such a good impression that the head of the carpet works in town decided to try him with the idea of buying, as his horse had gone lame. This rather bulky man made the mistake of mounting in the stable, and the animal promptly turned over and his rider went through the front of a glass harness cabinet, which was his first stop on the way to the hospital. He survived, but was bandaged pretty good for a couple of weeks. He also had a broken arm and just missed getting his throat cut.

After a reasonable lapse of time while I restored Saxon's reputation, a man in south Yonkers with eight or nine children bought him as a carriage horse, forgetting the old saying "caveat emptor." He hitched him up all right and then he and three of four of his offspring got into the surrey. As he clucked to old Saxon to start, he decided to sit in the lap of the new owner, thereby busting the carriage and the harness and generally scaring the daylights out of the family. The last I heard of him he had been sent down the chute to an auction. At that he had only one bad habit.

Now I live in Ridgefield, Conn., on the fringe of the horsey set, and some newcomers were invited for cocktails not long ago by one of the social leaders. There was a lot of talk about horses, but the strangers held back. Finally the hostess, referring to riding, turned to the wife and said,

"Do you jump?"

"Only when I'm pinched in certain places," she answered. I wonder who was kidding who.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 27 (INS)—Tony Martin actually killed 'em in San Francisco MCing the stage show at the "Hard, Fast and Beautiful" premiere junket. I get this straight from my undercover agent on the tip who is not given to overstatement.

Tony Martin

As good as he was, I happen to know that Howard Hughes decided before Tony went away to take up his option at RKO, and that he sent out an order to find another musical pronto for the handsome singer. Hughes was delighted with Tony's singing (to be expected) and the new warmth he brings to his emoting in "Two Tickets To Broadway."

Tony's radio, TV shows, and recordings have made him extremely popular but he hasn't done too well in motion pictures until now.

With his happy marriage to Cyd Charisse and their new baby—well, life can be beautiful and is, these days, for Tony.

• — • — •

If you're up in your movie history you'll know that almost the first motion picture ever made was "The Great Train Robbery." That was even before I started in the movies.

Now we're going to have a 1951 movie called "The First Train Robbery." This one will have all the trimmings and will be made by Warner Brothers with Randy Scott as the star.

Just in case you don't know, the first train robbery was pulled off in 1864 on the Central Pacific Railroad just outside Reno by Big Jack Davis. Randy's not playing Big Jack. He'll play "the law" who brings the holdup men to justice. David Weisbart, Warner's newest producer, is in charge of the job.

• — • — •

What surprised me most about Shelley Winters is her really serious intentions toward her career as an actress. While in New York she has been attending classes three times a week at the actor's studio. Formerly under the direction of Elia Kazan, it is now guided by Lee Strasburg.

Shelley has even inveigled Farley Granger into attending classes with her. Her graduation test is a meaty scene from "Rose Tattoo," while Farley will display his talents in "Country Girl."

As for Shelley's suspension for refusing to play opposite Frank Sinatra in "Meet Danny Wilson." It's not that she doesn't want to do the picture with Frankie—it's just that she wants more to go to Europe with Farley Granger.

• — • — •

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Robert Preston has been beauing Peggy Lee about New York—a new duo. Peggy and her husband, Dave Barbour, recently parted. Bob and Mrs. Preston are also separated.

My old friend, Charles MacArthur, is eagerly waiting to have his wife of many years, Helen Hayes, back home. Charlie hasn't been feeling well and when these boys aren't well they want their best girls with them. So, Helen is hurrying to finish her picture so she can go back to Charlie.

Helen's picture, "My Son, John" went on location here at Black-Foxe School. Robert Walker's two sons, Bobby and Michael, go to school there and when they heard their dad was on the grounds they obtained permission to watch him work.

Tony Romano, patriotic guitar player and Frances Langford's accompanist, becomes a father tomorrow. Mrs. Romano undergoes a Caesarean.

The understatement of the week came from Marie Wilson who said when someone telephoned her, "You know, I've been a little sick.". Marie goes away for two weeks to get in shape to start her picture at RKO.

It is said Fighter Joe Louis will marry Angele De Lavalade Stratton, wealthy Detroit woman.

A personal invitation from Jack Warner to take an advance look at "Streetcar Named Desire" brought out a group of our top stars. So great was the emotional effect that for at least five minutes after the last scene no one spoke. The picture is definitely better than the play.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

32 Guardsmen Are Qualified

Lt. John Hensell, commander of Headquarters and Headquarters Company of the First Battalion, 115th Infantry, Saturday praised area guardsmen for accuracy on the firing range at Camp Ritchie over two recent weekends.

City Makes Effort To Get Plane Company Subcontract

Initial steps in a program to get some Fairchild Aviation Corporation subcontracts for the Cumberland area will be taken this week.

It was announced Saturday that the Air Force has approved plans for spending an estimated $7,000,000 to enlarge the Fairchild plant at Hagerstown.

Even before the expansion was approved, William C. Walsh, president of the Cumberland and Allegany Industrial Promotion Corporation, had conferred with Senator Herbert R. O'Conor relative to having some of the subcontract work for the Hagerstown operation allotted to Cumberland.

Walsh said Saturday he contacted A. F. Flood, executive vice president of Fairchild, and arranged for a meeting in Hagerstown, this week if possible. Walsh said it is planned to have a small committee of the local corporation, which is seeking new industry for the area, to meet with Flood to outline the facilities of this section.

The president of the local promotion group said at this stage it is impossible to even estimate the possibilities of getting some of the subcontracts.

Senator O'Conor said the Fairchild plant will be enlarged and hangar space increased to care for the upped production of the company's battle-tested transport plane, the C-119.

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 27 (INS)—Tony Martin actually killed 'em in San Francisco MCing the stage show at the "Hard, Fast and Beautiful" premiere junket. I get this straight from my undercover agent on the tip who is not given to overstatement.

Tony Martin

As good as he was, I happen to know that Howard Hughes decided before Tony went away to take up his option at RKO, and that he sent out an order to find another musical pronto for the handsome singer. Hughes was delighted with Tony's singing (to be expected) and the new warmth he brings to his emoting in "Two Tickets To Broadway."

Tony's radio, TV shows, and recordings have made him extremely popular but he hasn't done too well in motion pictures until now.

With his happy marriage to Cyd Charisse and their new baby—well, life can be beautiful and is, these days, for Tony.

• — • — •

If you're up in your movie history you'll know that almost the first motion picture ever made was "The Great Train Robbery." That was even before I started in the movies.

Now we're going to have a 1951 movie called "The First Train Robbery." This one will have all the trimmings and will be made by Warner Brothers with Randy Scott as the star.

Just in case you don't know, the first train robbery was pulled off in 1864 on the Central Pacific Railroad just outside Reno by Big Jack Davis. Randy's not playing Big Jack. He'll play "the law" who brings the holdup men to justice. David Weisbart, Warner's newest producer, is in charge of the job.

• — • — •

What surprised me most about Shelley Winters is her really serious intentions toward her career as an actress. While in New York she has been attending classes three times a week at the actor's studio. Formerly under the direction of Elia Kazan, it is now guided by Lee Strasburg.

Shelley has even inveigled Farley Granger into attending classes with her. Her graduation test is a meaty scene from "Rose Tattoo," while Farley will display his talents in "Country Girl."

As for Shelley's suspension for refusing to play opposite Frank Sinatra in "Meet Danny Wilson." It's not that she doesn't want to do the picture with Frankie—it's just that she wants more to go to Europe with Farley Granger.

• — • — •

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Robert Preston has been beauing Peggy Lee about New York—a new duo. Peggy and her husband, Dave Barbour, recently parted. Bob and Mrs. Preston are also separated.

My old friend, Charles MacArthur, is eagerly waiting to have his wife of many years, Helen Hayes, back home. Charlie hasn't been feeling well and when these boys aren't well they want their best girls with them. So, Helen is hurrying to finish her picture so she can go back to Charlie.

Helen's picture, "My Son, John" went on location here at Black-Foxe School. Robert Walker's two sons, Bobby and Michael, go to school there and when they heard their dad was on the grounds they obtained permission to watch him work.

Tony Romano, patriotic guitar player and Frances Langford's accompanist, becomes a father tomorrow. Mrs. Romano undergoes a Caesarean.

The understatement of the week came from Marie Wilson who said when someone telephoned her, "You know, I've been a little sick.". Marie goes away for two weeks to get in shape to start her picture at RKO.

It is said Fighter Joe Louis will marry Angele De Lavalade Stratton, wealthy Detroit woman.

A personal invitation from Jack Warner to take an advance look at "Streetcar Named Desire" brought out a group of our top stars. So great was the emotional effect that for at least five minutes after the last scene no one spoke. The picture is definitely better than the play.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

32 Guardsmen Are Qualified

Lt. John Hensell, commander of Headquarters and Headquarters Company of the First Battalion, 115th Infantry, Saturday praised area guardsmen for accuracy on the firing range at Camp Ritchie over two recent weekends.

Qualifying on the M-1 rifle, he said, were:

Experts—Master Sgt. William Radar, Sgts. John Divico, Carl Steirstorfer and Kenneth Roby, Cpls. Garland Eckard, William Hartman, Samuel Cope and Franklin Hinze and Pfcs. Elmo Nixon and Eldon Crowe.

Sharpshooters—Sgt. Gary Brant, Cpl. Thomas Mulligan and Pfc. Raymond Twigg; Marksmen—Cpl. John Wagner and Pvt. James Allman.

Guardsman firing the carbine on Course A, included:

Experts—Master Sgt. Graydon S. Dunlap, Sgt. First Class Jack Malone, Sgt. Charles Griffith, Cpl. Richard Lowry and Pfcs. William Shipway and William Earl; Sharpshooters—Master Sgt. Warren Nichols, Cpl. James Roby, Pfcs. James Mullenax and Daryl Tewell, and Pvt. William Martin.

Marksmen—Master Sgt. Robert Wade, Sr., Sgt. George Kirby, Cpl. Robert See, Pfc. Elmo Nixon and Pvts. Robert Wade, Jr., and Herbert Mock.

City Makes Effort To Get Plane Company Subcontract

Initial steps in a program to get some Fairchild Aviation Corporation subcontracts for the Cumberland area will be taken this week.

It was announced Saturday that the Air Force has approved plans for spending an estimated $7,000,000 to enlarge the Fairchild plant at Hagerstown.

Even before the expansion was approved, William C. Walsh, president of the Cumberland and Allegany Industrial Promotion Corporation, had conferred with Senator Herbert R. O'Conor relative to having some of the subcontract work for the Hagerstown operation allotted to Cumberland.

Walsh said Saturday he contacted A. F. Flood, executive vice president of Fairchild, and arranged for a meeting in Hagerstown, this week if possible. Walsh said it is planned to have a small committee of the local corporation, which is seeking new industry for the area, to meet with Flood to outline the facilities of this section.

The president of the local promotion group said at this stage it is impossible to even estimate the possibilities of getting some of the subcontracts.

Senator O'Conor said the Fairchild plant will be enlarged and hangar space increased to care for the upped production of the company's battle-tested transport plane, the C-119.

3 Korean War Casualties Are Being Returned Home

The bodies of three more Cumberland area soldiers killed in Korea are being returned to the United States for reburial.

Two dead heroes from Cumberland already have reached this country, bringing the total number to five.

Enroute are Pvt. Richard K. Cook, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lon D. Cook, Route 5, Cresap Park; Cpl. Floyd R. Whiteman, 32, son of Ray M. Whiteman, Route 6, Cumberland, and husband of Mrs. Martha P. Whiteman, Romney, W. Va., and Sgt. Herbert L. VanMeter, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. VanMeter, Luke.

Second County Fatality

Pvt. Cook was Allegany County's second fatality of the Korean war. He died August 6, 1950, from wounds suffered while fighting Communist forces. Before entering the Army September 15, 1949, he attended Cresaptown School and worked in the Public Service Market there.

The young soldier received basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., and arrived in Japan in February, 1950, to serve with American occupation troops. In addition to his parents, he leaves four brothers, Lou Denver, Roger, William and Raymond Cook, and a sister, Mrs. Marian Hause.

Cpl. Whiteman, native of Cumberland and former student at Allegany High School, was killed in action last September 16. He worked for the B. and O. Railroad prior to enlisting in the Army about six years ago and served 24 months in Europe during World War II.

Cpl. Whiteman reported September 1, 1950, at Camp Stoneman, Calif., for shipment overseas while attached to a medical unit. Besides his father and widow, he is survived by a daughter, Barbara Ann Whiteman; two sisters, Mildred and June E. Whiteman; three brothers, Maurice, Ralph J. and Dane O. Whiteman; his step-mother, Mrs. Emma F. (Arnold) Whiteman, and two step-children.

First Tri-Towns Casualty

Sgt. VanMeter's death July 20, 1950, marked the first war fatality in the Tri-Towns section. A veteran of ten years service, he had been fighting with the Seventh Infantry Division.

He participated in the invasion of Africa, Sicily and Italy during the last war and was injured in Rome. Following his discharge from service, he was employed at the Celanese plant for five months but enlisted again in January, 1946. Later he was sent to Germany and Austria.

Sgt. VanMeter attended Bruce High School, Westernport. Survivors include two brothers, Bernard and Roy L. VanMeter, and three sisters, Louise, Jean and Janey VanMeter.

Veterans Due Home

However, 17 living veterans of combat in Korea from the tri-state area will be home with their families this week as the rotation plan comes into being.

They are Cpl. Thomas G. Giles, of Frostburg; and Pfc. Clarence A. Stuckey, who arrived aboard the Transport Marine Adler at San Francisco Monday.

From nearby West Virginia are Sfc. Paul Keplinger, Route 2, Keyser; Sgt. Edwin H. Parrack, Mill Creek, Randolph County; Sfc. Harold E. Rhodes, Emoryville, Mineral County.

Sfc. James D. Ramos, Elkins; Cpl. Phillip Thompson, Whitmer, Randolph County; Pvt. Edwin J. Saylor, Route 1, Morgantown; Cpl. Herbert W. Barker, Mannington; Cpl. Harry Harris, Jr., of Junior, Barbour County.

Sgt. Harry W. Johnson, Morgantown; Pfc. James F. Hing, Keyser; Sgt. Robert F. Mills, Martinsburg; Cpl. Kenneth E. Montos, Grafton; Sgt. Arros E. Summerfield, Elkins; Sgt. Elvin M. Wagner, Belington, and Cpl. Albert Welch, Shaw, Mineral County.

Linger Will Speak

Rev. O. Afton Linger, pastor of First Baptist Church, will be guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Rotary Club, Tuesday at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA. His topic of discussion is "Sacrifice, The Law of Life."

Bank To Operate Eichhorn's

The Second National Bank of Cumberland yesterday was appointed receiver pendentelite of M. Eichhorn Furniture and Funeral Store in Lonaconing by Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris in Allegany County Circuit Court and was given power to operate the firm as an active going business.

Judge Harris' order also designated George Eichhorn, Jr., as manager of business; John A. Eichhorn as assistant manager and George A. Eichhorn, III, as general employe.

The judge's action was on an equity suit filed yesterday by Attorney Charles Z. Heskett on behalf of certain relatives of Miss Minnie Eichhorn, 81, who died May 15. Miss Eichhorn's will, admitted to probate in Orphans Court May 18, gave no person or firm power to operate the Lonaconing business which she had owned for years. Other uncertainties have arisen concerning her estate, not all of which is included in her will.

The climate in the "central basins" of Ecuador is springlike the year around.

Ridgeley High Senior Class Receive Diplomas Tonight

The seventeenth annual sermon to the graduating class of Ridgeley High School was delivered last night at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium by the Rev. J. E. McDonald, pastor of the Calvary Methodist Church, Ridgeley.

His topic was "Have Dominion."

The Rev. S. R. Neel, Cumberland, gave the invocation and benediction, the senior chorus sang "The Lord's Prayer" (Malotte) and Mrs. Thurmond Cassell '38 played the processional and the recessional.

Donovan H. Bond, assistant Professor of Journalism, West Virginia University, will be the speaker in the commencement to be held at 8 p. m. tonight.

Honor students, Betty Collins and Elizabeth McDonald, will give short addresses and the senior chorus will sing two numbers.

Principal M. M. Heiskell will present the awards and A. G. Springer, assistant Mineral County Superintendent of Schools, will present the diplomas to the 36 members of the class of '51.

Those scheduled to receive the high school diploma are: Betty Irene Collins, Elizabeth Eve McDonald, Ruby Madeline Morris, William Edgar Phillips, Jr., Phyllis Lee Campbell, Carolyn June Lambert, Carolyn Ann Kerns, John Patrick Sirna, Joyce Loretta Comer, Regina Mae Rohrbaugh, Carl Lee Hartman, Robert DeWayne Maxson, Norma Jean Mellon, Anota Eileen Chaney, Betty Jean Brinkman, Willa Mae Brant, Julia Louise Giovinali, Bernice Rosalie Blewitt, Mary Cecelia Giovinali, Irma Jean Bender, Phyllis Jean Comer, William Edwin Ellifritz, Roberta Delores Burkhart, Barbara June Grim, Earl James Long, Garland Willis Whitacre, Lawrence Homer Williams, Oscar Marvin Carder, Joyce Lee Ogden, Virginia Leah Simpson, Jack Edward Abe, Mary Elizabeth Ayers, Roscoe Leon Lantz, Richard Lee Lloyd, Nancy Joan Hershberger, Walter Eugene Robinette.

The young soldier received basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., and arrived in Japan in February, 1950, to serve with American occupation troops. In addition to his parents, he leaves four brothers, Lou Denver, Roger, William and Raymond Cook, and a sister, Mrs. Marian Hause.

Cpl. Whiteman, native of Cumberland and former student at Allegany High School, was killed in action last September 16. He worked for the B. and O. Railroad prior to enlisting in the Army about six years ago and served 24 months in Europe during World War II.

Cpl. Whiteman reported September 1, 1950, at Camp Stoneman, Calif., for shipment overseas while attached to a medical unit. Besides his father and widow, he is survived by a daughter, Barbara Ann Whiteman; two sisters, Mildred and June E. Whiteman; three brothers, Maurice, Ralph J. and Dane O. Whiteman; his step-mother, Mrs. Emma F. (Arnold) Whiteman, and two step-children.

First Tri-Towns Casualty

Sgt. VanMeter's death July 20, 1950, marked the first war fatality in the Tri-Towns section. A veteran of ten years service, he had been fighting with the Seventh Infantry Division.

He participated in the invasion of Africa, Sicily and Italy during the last war and was injured in Rome. Following his discharge from service, he was employed at the Celanese plant for five months but enlisted again in January, 1946. Later he was sent to Germany and Austria.

Sgt. VanMeter attended Bruce High School, Westernport. Survivors include two brothers, Bernard and Roy L. VanMeter, and three sisters, Louise, Jean and Janey VanMeter.

Veterans Due Home

However, 17 living veterans of combat in Korea from the tri-state area will be home with their families this week as the rotation plan comes into being.

They are Cpl. Thomas G. Giles, of Frostburg; and Pfc. Clarence A. Stuckey, who arrived aboard the Transport Marine Adler at San Francisco Monday.

From nearby West Virginia are Sfc. Paul Keplinger, Route 2, Keyser; Sgt. Edwin H. Parrack, Mill Creek, Randolph County; Sfc. Harold E. Rhodes, Emoryville, Mineral County.

Sfc. James D. Ramos, Elkins; Cpl. Phillip Thompson, Whitmer, Randolph County; Pvt. Edwin J. Saylor, Route 1, Morgantown; Cpl. Herbert W. Barker, Mannington; Cpl. Harry Harris, Jr., of Junior, Barbour County.

Sgt. Harry W. Johnson, Morgantown; Pfc. James F. Hing, Keyser; Sgt. Robert F. Mills, Martinsburg; Cpl. Kenneth E. Montos, Grafton; Sgt. Arros E. Summerfield, Elkins; Sgt. Elvin M. Wagner, Belington, and Cpl. Albert Welch, Shaw, Mineral County.

Linger Will Speak

Rev. O. Afton Linger, pastor of First Baptist Church, will be guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Cumberland Rotary Club, Tuesday at 12:15 p. m. in Central YMCA. His topic of discussion is "Sacrifice, The Law of Life."

Bank To Operate Eichhorn's

The Second National Bank of Cumberland yesterday was appointed receiver pendentelite of M. Eichhorn Furniture and Funeral Store in Lonaconing by Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris in Allegany County Circuit Court and was given power to operate the firm as an active going business.

Judge Harris' order also designated George Eichhorn, Jr., as manager of business; John A. Eichhorn as assistant manager and George A. Eichhorn, III, as general employe.

The judge's action was on an equity suit filed yesterday by Attorney Charles Z. Heskett on behalf of certain relatives of Miss Minnie Eichhorn, 81, who died May 15. Miss Eichhorn's will, admitted to probate in Orphans Court May 18, gave no person or firm power to operate the Lonaconing business which she had owned for years. Other uncertainties have arisen concerning her estate, not all of which is included in her will.

Hornick Hits 100 Straight At Ridgeley

McDonald Is Winner Of Doubles; Bostwick Cops Handicap Event

Paul Hornick, Jr., of Johnstown, Pa., turned in the best performance of the current season at the Ridgeley Rod and Gun Club traps yesterday when he broke 100 straight 16-yard targets to top a field of 20 gunners in the West Virginia club's registered trapshooting tournament.

Tony Francis, Westernport, was the runner-up with a score of 97 while John Lohr, Johnstown, took third place with a 96.

Gunners from Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland participated in the program.

The second perfect score of the day was credited to Edgar S. McDonald, of Headsville, West Virginia doubles champion, who broke 24 straight in his favorite event. John Lighter, Cumberland, and Sherwood Bostwick, Waynesboro, Pa., were tied for second place with scores of 23.

Bostwick romped off with high gun in the handicap by breaking 48 out of 50 from the 20 yard mark. Four tied for second place with 45s. They were Tony Francis, Charles "Lefty" Jordan, Cumberland; Dr. C. A. Brown and J. B. Powell, both of Hagerstown.

Oakland Bags 5th Straight

Terra Alta Keeps Record Unblemished

Oakland and Terra Alta kept their records unblemished in the Mountain Top Baseball League by scoring victories on Sunday.

Bob Glaze notched his fifth straight win of the campaign as Oakland blanked Bittinger on the latter's field by the score of 5-0 in a game halted in the 6th by rain.

Glaze yielded only two hits and fanned seven.

Ted James homered and tripled and Gary Baker doubled and singled twice to pace the Oakland swatsmiths. Bob Buckel made both of Bittinger's bingles.

Terra Alta marked up its 5th victory at the expense of Aurora, grabbing a 13-4 decision behind Bob Fraley who now has a 4-0 record. The Terra Alta pitcher fanned 10. Rain halted this game in the top of the 9th.

Richard "Skip" Fraley with a double and two singles and Mike Root with a pair of two-baggers and a single led the Terra Alta hitters. Boyle Bolyard banged a homer and single for Aurora.

Swanton's Dodgers took the measure of Friendsville by the score of 10-3 behind the two-hit pitching of Ross who fanned 10. Swanton racked up a dozen hits, including "Bud" Sanders' triple with two aboard and a pair of singles and three one-base knocks by Bob Mitter.

No reports were made on the Kitzmiller-Salisbury and Loch Lynn-Accident games. Scores:

Centerville defeated the Hyndman V.F.W., 5-1 and Moorefield took the measure of Romney, 7-5, to remain tied for first place in the Interstate Baseball League.

In a wild game at Penn Avenue Field, the Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose edged the Cumberland Black Sox, 20-19.

Glenn Deremer posted his third straight victory of the season at Centerville when he turned back Hyndman with six hits and fanned 10 batsmen. Emerick's triple and Cliff Clites' single in the 4th robbed Deremer of a shutout victory. Harclerode rapped a triple and single for the losers.

Dwight Rose headed the Reds' 16-hit assault on Ed Shaffer and May with a double, three singles and a walk in five trips to the plate. Glentis Street had a double and two singles and Deremer garnered a two-bagger and single.

Singles by Roy Mickey and Streett, Lou Evans' triple, Deremer's double and Dwight Rose's one-base knock netted Centerville four runs in the 2nd frame. Deremer, Dwight Rose and Veryl Nave rapped singles for another tally in the 4th.

Lefty Garrett gained the decision over "Pete" Elliott in the contest at Moorefield. Moorefield's 12-hit attack was punctuated by homers by Warden Hott in the 5th and Bob Keller in the 6th, the latter coming with one aboard. Courtney Tusing, "Huck" Seymour and Garrett registered two hits each. Blaine Turner was Romney's "big gun" with four hits in five trips.

Twenty-eight hits were chalked up and 12 errors made in the affair at Penn Avenue Field. Errors produced the Moose team's winning marker in the last of the 9th. Wheeler of the Sox and Jim Gaffney of the Moose had four hits each. Homers were blasted by Wheeler, Perry and B. Smith of the Sox and Gaffney. The scores:

Charles Defends Title 8th Time On Wednesday

Figured To Defeat Maxim For 4th Time

CHICAGO, May 27 (AP) — World heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles defends his title against light-heavyweight champion Joey Maxim at Chicago Stadium Wednesday night in a 15-round bout that pits the two sharp boxers for the fourth time since 1942.

Charles out-pointed Maxim in all three of their previous meetings, two 10-rounders in 1942 and a 15-rounder in 1949. However, that was before either had acquired the title he now holds.

It will be 29-year-old Charles' eighth defense since he inherited Joe Louis' vacated crown with a June, 1949 win over Jersey Joe Walcott here. Maxim, 29-year-old Italian from Cleveland whose real name is Giuseppe Antonio Berardinelli, won the light-heavy title by a 10th round knockout of England's Freddie Mills at London in January, 1950.

The sharpies who lately pegged Charles a 5 to 2 favorite think the bout will follow the pattern of the three previous matches.

I.B.C. president Jim Norris is satisfied everyone concerned will be well rewarded. Although Chicago Stadium is scaled for a $246,000 net and advance ticket sales indicate about a $125,000 gross, the IBC has sold video rights for $100,000 .

Charles gets 40 per cent of both the net gate and the video swag, probably accruing $80,000 for his night's work. Maxim's 20 per cent take from both melons means about $40,000.

It will be Charles' first start since his seventh title defense and second meeting with Walcott at Detroit March 7. Charles took a 15-round decision from Walcott but suffered a battered ear, now reported completely mended.

Wednesday night's bout puts Charles four months ahead of Louis' pace as a battling champion. The now rusted Brown Bomber made his eighth title defense 27 months after he dethroned Jimmy Braddock for the heavyweight title.

Frostburg's Demons pounded the offerings of three pitchers for 13 hits and a 12 to 0 triumph over Westvaco in a Bi-State Baseball League game yesterday in the Mountain City.

John Waltman, who pitched for a St. Louis Browns' farm team several years ago, but was forced out of minor league ball with a dead arm last season, made his first start of 1951, twirled six innings, yielded two hits and fanned seven. He gave way to Jack Kauffman with the score 12-0 in his favor in the 7th frame.

The victory tied Frostburg with Westvaco for first place, each team having 5-3 records.

Ted Durbin, leadoff man and top hitter in the league, started the Demons on the road to victory in the first inning when he belted a home run. He got a single later in the game. Jimmy Eckard had two singles, Danny Drew a double and single and Scott two singles.

Inskeep obtained two of the four hits yielded by Frostburg pitchers.

Cook Masters 'Coney

Bob Cook made his initial start of the campaign and pitched the Hyndman Firemen to a 10-3 triumph over Lonaconing at Hyndman.

Cook gave up five hits, whiffed nine and blasted a two-run homer and single who share batting honors with Manager William "McKinley" Scarpelli who hammered a triple and double, Gene Stair who racked up three singles and Alton Nave who garnered a pair of two-base wallops. Scarpelli and Cook batted in three runs each. Marble accounted for two of 'Coney's hits, one being a double.

Old Germans Win, 2-1

Cumberland's Old Germans gained a 2-1 decision over Keyser at Stitcher Field where Bob Gordon outpitched Al Swick and "Lefty" Kuhn.

The home team put the game on ice in the second stanza when it scored two runs on "Buck" Cowher's double and singles by "Buddy" Gray, Bill Kirk and Garland Cooper. See's single and two errors gave Keyser its unearned run in the final inning.

Gordon fanned ten batsmen and stopped Keyser cold in the 5th after Symons tripled by firing the third strike past Lauer and Swick.

Garland Cooper collected three hits and a walk to pace the Brewers at the plate. Cage had a double, single and base on balls and Cowher smacked a pair of two-baggers. R. Hess collected two of Keyser's eight blows. The scores:

Cary Middlecoff Scores In Texas, Pockets $3,000

Noses Out Jack Burke By Stroke In Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 27 (AP) —Cary Middlecoff was hottest when the chips were down today to win the $15,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

Tall, black-haired Cary shot a three-over-par 73 on the final 18 holes to capture his second tournament of the year and pocket $3,000. His 72-hole total over the 7,035-yard par 35-35—70 Colonial Country Club course was 282.

A sweating throng of 12,000 swayed and rocked as Ben Hogan, the Hershey, Pa., mite, put on what then appeared a typical finish for him to draw within a stroke of Middlecoff at seven holes. But the man from Memphis, Tenn., rallied for birdies on seven and nine and at 63 holes pushed his lead to three strokes.

From then on, he could coast in.

Middlecoff came into No. 18 two over par. He was on the green 25 feet away. He stroked five feet past the cup and took two more putts to get down.

Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., shot the low score of the day—a 67—to finish in second place with 283.

Third was Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago with 284. Mangrum had an even par 70 on the last 18.

Ed Oliver of Seattle, Wash., Byron Nelson of Roanoke, Tex., and Hogan tied for fourth at 285.

Mt. Savage's first place team handed the winless Klondyke Colts their 5th straight setback in a Pen-Mar Baseball League game yesterday at Klondyke. The score was 13-4.

A nine-run outburst in the 6th inning settled the issue after Klondyke had scored four times to take a 4-1 lead in the fourth frame.

George Shaffer sparked the league leaders with two doubles and a single in four trips while Deffenbaugh smashed a triple with the bases loaded. Dave Norris had a perfect day at the plate for the Colts, obtaining four hits, while Gary Adams banged three hits in four trips. Bill Best who pitched the first five innings was the winner.

Wellersburg rallied for three runs in the 8th inning to eke out an 8-7 decision over Eckhart. The visitors made things interesting in the 9th inning when "Moose" Arnone, in the role of pinch hitter, drove in two runs with a triple. Charley Robinette and Kerr Kennell belted home runs for Wellersburg. Cessna, Valentine, Petenbrink and C. Robinette of Wellersburg and Duncan of Eckhart had two hits each. Glenn Ford limited Eckhart to six safeties.

Ellerslie grouped four hits with a walk and two errors for six runs in the 7th innings and defeated Zihlman at Ellerslie by the score of 7-5. Bob See posted win No. 3 and fanned seven batsmen. Merle, Fred, and Bob See of Ellerslie and Byrnes, Stevens, Robertson, Dunn and Thomas of Zihlman collected two hits each. Haberlein, replaced by Robeson in the 7th, was the losing pitcher. Ted Williams Stars, Boston Captures Pair

Washington Beaten By 9-3, 7-1 Scores

BOSTON, May 27 (INS) — Ted Williams powdered the ball like his old self today to pace the Boston Red Sox to a double triumph over the skidding Washington Senators before 24,659 fans at Fenway Park.

Williams had a perfect day at the plate in the first game as the Bosox won out, 9 to 3, and he collared a grand-slammer in the nightcap to pave the way for a 7 to 1 triumph.

The double win gave the rebounding Sox seven in a row and made it eight losses in a row for the Nats.

Williams' grand-slammer, his tenth round-tripper, was part of a seven-run outburst that gave Harry Taylor his third win of the season. Bobby Doerr also connected for a three-run homer in that same inning.

The Big Thumper, who had seven runs-batted-in for the day, raised his average over the .300 mark with his first game belting.

Oakland Bags 5th Straight

Terra Alta Keeps Record Unblemished

Oakland and Terra Alta kept their records unblemished in the Mountain Top Baseball League by scoring victories on Sunday.

Bob Glaze notched his fifth straight win of the campaign as Oakland blanked Bittinger on the latter's field by the score of 5-0 in a game halted in the 6th by rain.

Glaze yielded only two hits and fanned seven.

Ted James homered and tripled and Gary Baker doubled and singled twice to pace the Oakland swatsmiths. Bob Buckel made both of Bittinger's bingles.

Terra Alta marked up its 5th victory at the expense of Aurora, grabbing a 13-4 decision behind Bob Fraley who now has a 4-0 record. The Terra Alta pitcher fanned 10. Rain halted this game in the top of the 9th.

Richard "Skip" Fraley with a double and two singles and Mike Root with a pair of two-baggers and a single led the Terra Alta hitters. Boyle Bolyard banged a homer and single for Aurora.

Swanton's Dodgers took the measure of Friendsville by the score of 10-3 behind the two-hit pitching of Ross who fanned 10. Swanton racked up a dozen hits, including "Bud" Sanders' triple with two aboard and a pair of singles and three one-base knocks by Bob Mitter.

In a wild game at Penn Avenue Field, the Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose edged the Cumberland Black Sox, 20-19.

Glenn Deremer posted his third straight victory of the season at Centerville when he turned back Hyndman with six hits and fanned 10 batsmen. Emerick's triple and Cliff Clites' single in the 4th robbed Deremer of a shutout victory. Harclerode rapped a triple and single for the losers.

Dwight Rose headed the Reds' 16-hit assault on Ed Shaffer and May with a double, three singles and a walk in five trips to the plate. Glentis Street had a double and two singles and Deremer garnered a two-bagger and single.

Singles by Roy Mickey and Streett, Lou Evans' triple, Deremer's double and Dwight Rose's one-base knock netted Centerville four runs in the 2nd frame. Deremer, Dwight Rose and Veryl Nave rapped singles for another tally in the 4th.

Lefty Garrett gained the decision over "Pete" Elliott in the contest at Moorefield. Moorefield's 12-hit attack was punctuated by homers by Warden Hott in the 5th and Bob Keller in the 6th, the latter coming with one aboard. Courtney Tusing, "Huck" Seymour and Garrett registered two hits each. Blaine Turner was Romney's "big gun" with four hits in five trips.

Twenty-eight hits were chalked up and 12 errors made in the affair at Penn Avenue Field. Errors produced the Moose team's winning marker in the last of the 9th. Wheeler of the Sox and Jim Gaffney of the Moose had four hits each. Homers were blasted by Wheeler, Perry and B. Smith of the Sox and Gaffney. The scores:

Charles Defends Title 8th Time On Wednesday

Figured To Defeat Maxim For 4th Time

CHICAGO, May 27 (AP) — World heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles defends his title against light-heavyweight champion Joey Maxim at Chicago Stadium Wednesday night in a 15-round bout that pits the two sharp boxers for the fourth time since 1942.

Charles out-pointed Maxim in all three of their previous meetings, two 10-rounders in 1942 and a 15-rounder in 1949. However, that was before either had acquired the title he now holds.

It will be 29-year-old Charles' eighth defense since he inherited Joe Louis' vacated crown with a June, 1949 win over Jersey Joe Walcott here. Maxim, 29-year-old Italian from Cleveland whose real name is Giuseppe Antonio Berardinelli, won the light-heavy title by a 10th round knockout of England's Freddie Mills at London in January, 1950.

The sharpies who lately pegged Charles a 5 to 2 favorite think the bout will follow the pattern of the three previous matches.

I.B.C. president Jim Norris is satisfied everyone concerned will be well rewarded. Although Chicago Stadium is scaled for a $246,000 net and advance ticket sales indicate about a $125,000 gross, the IBC has sold video rights for $100,000 .

Charles gets 40 per cent of both the net gate and the video swag, probably accruing $80,000 for his night's work. Maxim's 20 per cent take from both melons means about $40,000.

It will be Charles' first start since his seventh title defense and second meeting with Walcott at Detroit March 7. Charles took a 15-round decision from Walcott but suffered a battered ear, now reported completely mended.

Wednesday night's bout puts Charles four months ahead of Louis' pace as a battling champion. The now rusted Brown Bomber made his eighth title defense 27 months after he dethroned Jimmy Braddock for the heavyweight title.

Chicago Makes It 11 In Row, 5-2 And 6-4

CLEVELAND, May 27 (AP) —Chicago's White Sox made a clean sweep of their road trip today, registering their tenth and eleventh straight victories with a double win off the Cleveland Indians, 5 to 2 and 6 to 4.

That added up to four in a row off the Indians, after seven wins from the four eastern clubs. The double bill, interrupted frequently by showers, ran more than seven hours.

Frostburg's Demons pounded the offerings of three pitchers for 13 hits and a 12 to 0 triumph over Westvaco in a Bi-State Baseball League game yesterday in the Mountain City.

John Waltman, who pitched for a St. Louis Browns' farm team several years ago, but was forced out of minor league ball with a dead arm last season, made his first start of 1951, twirled six innings, yielded two hits and fanned seven. He gave way to Jack Kauffman with the score 12-0 in his favor in the 7th frame.

The victory tied Frostburg with Westvaco for first place, each team having 5-3 records.

Ted Durbin, leadoff man and top hitter in the league, started the Demons on the road to victory in the first inning when he belted a home run. He got a single later in the game. Jimmy Eckard had two singles, Danny Drew a double and single and Scott two singles.

Inskeep obtained two of the four hits yielded by Frostburg pitchers.

Cook Masters 'Coney

Bob Cook made his initial start of the campaign and pitched the Hyndman Firemen to a 10-3 triumph over Lonaconing at Hyndman.

Cook gave up five hits, whiffed nine and blasted a two-run homer and single who share batting honors with Manager William "Bee" Scarpelli who hammered a triple and double, Gene Stair who racked up three singles and Alton Nave who garnered a pair of two-base wallops. Scarpelli and Cook batted in three runs each. Marble accounted for two of 'Coney's hits, one being a double.

Old Germans Win, 2-1

Cumberland's Old Germans gained a 2-1 decision over Keyser at Stitcher Field where Bob Gordon outpitched Al Swick and "Lefty" Kuhn.

The home team put the game on ice in the second stanza when it scored two runs on "Buck" Cowher's double and singles by "Buddy" Gray, Bill Kirk and Garland Cooper. See's single and two errors gave Keyser its unearned run in the final inning.

Gordon fanned ten batsmen and stopped Keyser cold in the 5th after Symons tripled by firing the third strike past Lauer and Swick.

Garland Cooper collected three hits and a walk to pace the Brewers at the plate. Cage had a double, single and base on balls and Cowher smacked a pair of two-baggers. R. Hess collected two of Keyser's eight blows. The scores:

Cary Middlecoff Scores In Texas, Pockets $3,000

Noses Out Jack Burke By Stroke In Colonial

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 27 (AP) —Cary Middlecoff was hottest when the chips were down today to win the $15,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

Tall, black-haired Cary shot a three-over-par 73 on the final 18 holes to capture his second tournament of the year and pocket $3,000. His 72-hole total over the 7,035-yard par 35-35—70 Colonial Country Club course was 282.

A sweating throng of 12,000 swayed and rocked as Ben Hogan, the Hershey, Pa., mite, put on what then appeared a typical finish for him to draw within a stroke of Middlecoff at seven holes. But the man from Memphis, Tenn., rallied for birdies on seven and nine and at 63 holes pushed his lead to three strokes.

From then on, he could coast in.

Middlecoff came into No. 18 two over par. He was on the green 25 feet away. He stroked five feet past the cup and took two more putts to get down.

Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., shot the low score of the day—a 67—to finish in second place with 283.

Third was Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago with 284. Mangrum had an even par 70 on the last 18.

Ed Oliver of Seattle, Wash., Byron Nelson of Roanoke, Tex., and Hogan tied for fourth at 285.

Mt. Savage's first place team handed the winless Klondyke Colts their 5th straight setback in a Pen-Mar Baseball League game yesterday at Klondyke. The score was 13-4.

A nine-run outburst in the 6th inning settled the issue after Klondyke had scored four times to take a 4-1 lead in the fourth frame.

George Shaffer sparked the league leaders with two doubles and a single in four trips while Deffenbaugh smashed a triple with the bases loaded. Dave Norris had a perfect day at the plate for the Colts, obtaining four hits, while Gary Adams banged three hits in four trips. Bill Best who pitched the first five innings was the winner.

Wellersburg rallied for three runs in the 8th inning to eke out an 8-7 decision over Eckhart. The visitors made things interesting in the 9th inning when "Moose" Arnone, in the role of pinch hitter, drove in two runs with a triple. Charley Robinette and Kerr Kennell belted home runs for Wellersburg. Cessna, Valentine, Petenbrink and C. Robinette of Wellersburg and Duncan of Eckhart had two hits each. Glenn Ford limited Eckhart to six safeties.

Ellerslie grouped four hits with a walk and two errors for six runs in the 7th innings and defeated Zihlman at Ellerslie by the score of 7-5. Bob See posted win No. 3 and fanned seven batsmen. Merle, Fred, and Bob See of Ellerslie and Byrnes, Stevens, Robertson, Dunn and Thomas of Zihlman collected two hits each. Haberlein, replaced by Robeson in the 7th, was the losing pitcher. Ted Williams Stars, Boston Captures Pair

Washington Beaten By 9-3, 7-1 Scores

BOSTON, May 27 (INS) — Ted Williams powdered the ball like his old self today to pace the Boston Red Sox to a double triumph over the skidding Washington Senators before 24,659 fans at Fenway Park.

Williams had a perfect day at the plate in the first game as the Bosox won out, 9 to 3, and he collared a grand-slammer in the nightcap to pave the way for a 7 to 1 triumph.

The double win gave the rebounding Sox seven in a row and made it eight losses in a row for the Nats.

Williams' grand-slammer, his tenth round-tripper, was part of a seven-run outburst that gave Harry Taylor his third win of the season. Bobby Doerr also connected for a three-run homer in that same inning.

The Big Thumper, who had seven runs-batted-in for the day, raised his average over the .300 mark with his first game belting.

Five Schools To Vie In Fort Hill Invitation Meet Tonight

Fifth Track And Field Meet At Stadium Will Start At 8

Sentinels Are Hosts To Martinsburg, Beall, Frederick And A. H. S.

Fort Hill High School's fifth annual invitational track and field meet is set for tonight at 8 o'clock at the Fort Hill Stadium.

The Sentinels, victorious in five out of six meets this season, have been installed the favorites after their impressive showings in the city, county, state and University of Maryland meets, which they won along with a dual meet with Keyser. Fort Hill finished second to Handley High in the latter's invitational held at Winchester, Va., early in the season.

William P. Hahn, Fort Hill mentor, and director of the meet, announced last night that five schools will vie tonight in the program of 16 events. Battling it out with the Fort Hillians will be Martinsburg (W. Va.), Frederick (Md.), Beall of Frostburg and Allegany High.

Among The Visitors

Among the visiting stars will be Kibler, Martinsburg, who has hurled the 12 pound shot over 50 feet and has thrown the discus 144 feet; Haugh, of Frederick, sprint specialist who has won the 100 in several meets this year; Netoskie, Martinsburg dash star, and Glenn Workman, Beall's crack quarter miler, who recently hung up a new record in the Allegany County Senior High School meet.

Fort Hill has won the past four invitationals and is the team to beat tonight.

Foy A. Curry, assistant principal at Allegany High School and former AHS track and field mentor, will be the official starter for the track events.

Time For Each Event

The track events will be run off on the following time schedule:

8:00—100 dash trials. 8:10—High hurdles trials. 8:20—880 yard run. 8:30—100 yard dash finals. 8:40—High hurdles finals. 8:50—220 dash trials. 9:00—440 yards run. 9:10—180 low hurdles trials. 9:20—mile run. 9:30—220 dash finals. 9:40—180 low hurdles finals. 9:50—440 relay. 10:00—880 relay. 10:10—medley relay. 10:20—mile relay.

Time for the field events:

8:00—High jump and discus. 8:30—Pole Vault. 8:45—Shot Put. 9:00—Broad jump.

Here Are Past Records

Handley, which was unable to compete, shares eight meet records with Fort Hill. Allegany holds three, Hagerstown and East Palestine, Ohio, two each, and Ridgeley (W. Va.) High one.

Here are the meet records the boys will shoot at tonight:

Average Now Is .543; Arnone Has 9-0 Mark

Clay Leydig now holds a 63-point lead over Ronnie Cage, 1950 champion, in the race for the batting championship in the Bi-State Baseball Conference which concludes its season next week.

The Hyndman High Schol third sacker is now hitting .543 while Cage of Fort Hill boasts an average of .480.

George Miller of Beall High is third with .467 while Emory Wilson, who has hit safely in 10 games for Barton High, is smacking the pill at a .455 clip.

Cage copped the batting crown last year with an all-time high of .613.

Lefty Arnone of Beall High is showing the way in pitching with a 9-0 record and 16 consecutive wins in the league over two seasons. Bobby Raines of Bruce (7-1) holds a 115-109 edge over Arnone in the strikeout race. Doug Connolly, LaSalle, is third among the moundsmen with five wins and two defeats. The averages:

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should children be taught respect?

Answer: Yes, but not primarily in words, and still less by punishment for being "disrespectful." A child's manners are acquired by imitation, and he will tend to show respect to his parents if they are respectful to each other and to him. His attitude towards his father in particular is largely based upon the tone of voice in which his mother uses the word: "Daddy." And of course, respecting a child's feeling and dignity will help teach him to respect you. If you treat him rudely or contemptuously, do not be surprised if he is disrespectful to you as he dares, especially as he grows older.

Can a blind person be hypnotized?

Answer: Just as readily as someone who can see, I am told by Dr. Lewis R. Wolberg, eminent authority and author of "Medical Hypnosis." The once common practice of asking a person who was to be hypnotized to stare at a bright object or into the eyes of the hypnotist, is largely outdated.. Nowadays he is more often merely asked to relax, or even told "Your eyes are so heavy that you cannot keep them open!" The voice and words of the hypnotist are the main vehicles of the suggestion that induces the hypnotic trance, just as it is spoken command to which the subject responds while hypnotized, or afterards.

Is the "hard-boiled" boss scared?

Answer: Yes, though as a rule he doesn't know it and would "take your head off" if you even hinted at such an idea. His "hard-boiledness" actually is his defense against recognizing the inner insecurity which he cannot bear to face. The more secure and self-assured a person feels, the less he will resent a minor deviation from his orders or will feel that he must scold or punish the offender. The one difficulty about working for a person who is sure of himself is that he may not bother to scold you until after he has made up his mind that you are unfitted for your job, and may dismiss you on "short notice."

Five Schools To Vie In Fort Hill Invitation Meet Tonight

Fifth Track And Field Meet At Stadium Will Start At 8

Sentinels Are Hosts To Martinsburg, Beall, Frederick And A. H. S.

Fort Hill High School's fifth annual invitational track and field meet is set for tonight at 8 o'clock at the Fort Hill Stadium.

The Sentinels, victorious in five out of six meets this season, have been installed the favorites after their impressive showings in the city, county, state and University of Maryland meets, which they won along with a dual meet with Keyser. Fort Hill finished second to Handley High in the latter's invitational held at Winchester, Va., early in the season.

William P. Hahn, Fort Hill mentor, and director of the meet, announced last night that five schools will vie tonight in the program of 16 events. Battling it out with the Fort Hillians will be Martinsburg (W. Va.), Frederick (Md.), Beall of Frostburg and Allegany High.

Among The Visitors

Among the visiting stars will be Kibler, Martinsburg, who has hurled the 12 pound shot over 50 feet and has thrown the discus 144 feet; Haugh, of Frederick, sprint specialist who has won the 100 in several meets this year; Netoskie, Martinsburg dash star, and Glenn Workman, Beall's crack quarter miler, who recently hung up a new record in the Allegany County Senior High School meet.

Fort Hill has won the past four invitationals and is the team to beat tonight.

Foy A. Curry, assistant principal at Allegany High School and former AHS track and field mentor, will be the official starter for the track events.

Time For Each Event

The track events will be run off on the following time schedule:

8:00—100 dash trials. 8:10—High hurdles trials. 8:20—880 yard run. 8:30—100' yard dash finals. 8:40—High hurdles finals. 8:50—220 dash trials. 9:00—440 yards run. 9:10—180 low hurdles trials. 9:20—mile run. 9:30—220 dash finals. 9:40—180 low hurdles finals. 9:50—440 relay. 10:00—880 relay. 10:10—medley relay. 10:20—mile relay.

Time for the field events:

8:00—High jump and discus. 8:30—Pole Vault. 8:45—Shot Put. 9:00—Broad jump.

Here Are Past Records

Handley, which was unable to compete, shares eight meet records with Fort Hill. Allegany holds three, Hagerstown and East Palestine, Ohio, two each, and Ridgeley (W. Va.) High one.

Here are the meet records the boys will shoot at tonight:

Corriganville Plays At Ellerslie Today

The front-running Corriganville team with a 7-1 record will play Ellerslie (5-3), tied for second place with LaVale, in today's top game in the County Softball League.

Ellerslie will be the scene of action.

Wellersburg plays at LaVale and Stringtown at Potomac Valley in other games on tap for today.

Average Now Is .543; Arnone Has 9-0 Mark

Clay Leydig now holds a 63-point lead over Ronnie Cage, 1950 champion, in the race for the batting championship in the Bi-State Baseball Conference which concludes its season next week.

The Hyndman High Schol third sacker is now hitting .543 while Cage of Fort Hill boasts an average of .480.

George Miller of Beall High is third with .467 while Emory Wilson, who has hit safely in 10 games for Barton High, is smacking the pill at a .455 clip.

Cage copped the batting crown last year with an all-time high of .613.

Lefty Arnone of Beall High is showing the way in pitching with a 9-0 record and 16 consecutive wins in the league over two seasons. Bobby Raines of Bruce (7-1) holds a 115-109 edge over Arnone in the strike-out race. Doug Connolly, LaSalle, is third among the moundsmen with five wins and two defeats. The averages:

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Should children be taught respect?

Answer: Yes, but not primarily in words, and still less by punishment for being "disrespectful." A child's manners are acquired by imitation, and he will tend to show respect to his parents if they are respectful to each other and to him. His attitude towards his father in particular is largely based upon the tone of voice in which his mother uses the word: "Daddy." And of course, respecting a child's feeling and dignity will help teach him to respect you. If you treat him rudely or contemptuously, do not be surprised if he is disrespectful to you as he dares, especially as he grows older.

Can a blind person be hypnotized?

Answer: Just as readily as someone who can see, I am told by Dr. Lewis R. Wolberg, eminent authority and author of "Medical Hypnosis." The once common practice of asking a person who was to be hypnotized to stare at a bright object or into the eyes of the hypnotist, is largely outdated.. Nowadays he is more often merely asked to relax, or even told "Your eyes are so heavy that you cannot keep them open!" The voice and words of the hypnotist are the main vehicles of the suggestion that induces the hypnotic trance, just as it is spoken command to which the subject responds while hypnotized, or afterwards.

Is the "hard-boiled" boss scared?

Answer: Yes, though as a rule he doesn't know it and would "take your head off" if you even hinted at such an idea. His "hard-boiledness" actually is his defense against recognizing the inner insecurity which he cannot bear to face. The more secure and self-assured a person feels, the less he will resent a minor deviation from his orders or will feel that he must scold or punish the offender. The one difficulty about working for a person who is sure of himself is that he may not bother to scold you until after he has made up his mind that you are unfitted for your job, and may dismiss you on "short notice."

One American Conquest

ROME.

The most successful export we have made to Europe and one of our best ambassadors in every country is our dance music. It's rather odd when you come to think about it a bit. The world's great music sprang from Europe but the Europeans, at least the current crop, don't seem to understand how to compose a popular song.

John Crosby

You can wander all over Europe and never get out of hearing distance of "Ol' Man River," "Begin The Beguine," "Night and Day" and "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" which are conceivably the four most international songs in the world. The French, the Italians, the Danes — well, name anybody — prefer our old popular songs, the older the better. At Grosvenor House in London you will find the English, a sober race, jiggling up and down sedately to "Bye Bye Blues." And at that football field of the dance floor in the Grande Hotel in Stockholm, you'll find a different crowd but the same tune.

Move over to Helsinki, which has been aptly described as the Tim Costello's of the north — there's only one nightclub there — or at the Wunderbar in Copenhagen you'll hear an awful lot of "After You've Gone." In Berlin at the Golden Horseshoe, where the customers ride horses around a sanded ring for reasons which were never made clear to me, you'll encounter that old-time tune, "Avalon."

In Vienna, at the Moulin Rouge, at this very moment I bet anything you'll find a couple of professional entertainers tap dancing to "Tea For Two" which, of course, is the tune people have been tap dancing to all over the world ever since it was written. In Rome, there is a wonderful restaurant and nightclub called the Hosteria dell Orso in an edifice that was standing there in Dante's day. And the tune we danced to there—"Yes, Sir, That's My Baby" which came along only a few years after Dante.

In Paris — this paragraph may just confuse you a bit at first but stick with me here — the Metro, the subway, contains some of the most glamorous names in France as station stops. One line contains in order the following subway stops — Louvre, Palais Royal, Tuileries, Place de la Cocorde, and Champs Elysees. I took this line once, stopped of at the Lido on the Champs Elysees and got there just in time to hear a girl sing "Take The A Train" which can hardly mean anything to the French. You'd think the French would write songs about their own subways. But no.

I was in that enchantingly beautiful city, Bruges, during the Whitsun holiday, which is strenuously celebrated in Belgium. There were carnivals in all the city squares. Blaring from one of the merry-go-rounds, competing with and almost drowning out the 13th Century bells of the Cathedral of St. Sauveur, was Hoagy Carmichael, old gravel-voice himself, croaking "Am I Blue?"

"Stardust," "Penthouse Serenade," "Time On My Hands" "September Song"—they'll ring in your ears everywhere this side of the Iron Curtain and conceivably on the other side, too. We Americans have not succeeded very well in exporting ideas. We are not very well understood anywhere and neither is democracy of capitalism. It has occurred to me that one device for selling our ideas might be the popular song. Let's get Irving Berlin, Cole Porter, Rogers and Hammerstein and the rest of them to wrap up a few American ideas in good popular dance tunes. They'll be sung all over Europe.

• — • — •

The GI's took the jitterburg, which has pretty well passed out of the picture in America to Europe during the war. It's still there, though not just everywhere. At the Vieux Colombier in Montparnasse, where the Sorbonne students hang out, you'll hear some of the best American jazz in the world, and also see some of the most amazing jitterbugging and Big Apple — a dance which has completely died back home. In both cases, the French have formalized the dances. There is less abandon, less improvisation, and more precision and formal movement, though they are still danced at the speed of light.

If you find scum in your washer, even on the final rinse, possibly you are using too much soap in the wash water. Try using a water softener, even in the rinse water.

Shrine Temple Plans Ritual Work June 2

Ali Ghan Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, will hold its spring ceremonial Saturday, June 2, in Hagerstown.

A. Wayne Reed, Westernport, chief rabban, will be in charge of ritualistic work. The degree will be conferred in Hagerstown High School, Potomac Avenue. Candidates will report to the recorder at the high school at 2 p. m. A parade of the uniformed units of the temple, led by the band and drum corps will be held at 4 p. m.

Dinner will be served at 6 p. m. in the school cafeteria and the ceremonial will begin at 8 p. m., with H. Clifford Spiker, director, in charge. Dr. Albert C. Cook will be master of ceremonies.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

By JOHN CROSBY

ROME.

The most successful export we have made to Europe and one of our best ambassadors in every country is our dance music. It's rather odd when you come to think about it a bit. The world's great music sprang from Europe but the Europeans, at least the current crop, don't seem to understand how to compose a popular song.

John Crosby

You can wander all over Europe and never get out of hearing distance of "Ol' Man River," "Begin The Beguine," "Night and Day" and "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" which are conceivably the four most international songs in the world. The French, the Italians, the Danes — well, name anybody — prefer our old popular songs, the older the better. At Grosvenor House in London you will find the English, a sober race, jigging up and down sedately to "Bye Bye Blues." And at that football field of the dance floor in the Grande Hotel in Stockholm, you'll find a different crowd but the same tune.

Move over to Helsinki, which has been aptly described as the Tim Costello's of the north — there's only one nightclub there — or at the Wunderbar in Copenhagen you'll hear an awful lot of "After You've Gone." In Berlin at the Golden Horseshoe, where the customers ride horses around a sanded ring for reasons which were never made clear to me, you'll encounter that old-time tune, "Avalon."

In Vienna, at the Moulin Rouge, at this very moment I bet anything you'll find a couple of professional entertainers tap dancing to "Tea For Two" which, of course, is the tune people have been tap dancing to all over the world ever since it was written. In Rome, there is a wonderful restaurant and nightclub called the Hosteria dell Orso in an edifice that was standing there in Dante's day. And the tune we danced to there—"Yes, Sir, That's My Baby" which came along only a few years after Dante.

In Paris — this paragraph may just confuse you a bit at first but stick with me here — the Metro, the subway, contains some of the most glamorous names in France as station stops. One line contains in order the following subway stops — Louvre, Palais Royal, Tuileries, Place de la Cocorde, and Champs Elysees. I took this line once, stopped of at the Lido on the Champs Elysees and got there just in time to hear a girl sing "Take The A Train" which can hardly mean anything to the French. You'd think the French would write songs about their own subways. But no.

I was in that enchantingly beautiful city, Bruges, during the Whitsun holiday, which is strenuously celebrated in Belgium. There were carnivals in all the city squares. Blaring from one of the merry-go-rounds, competing with and almost drowning out the 13th Century bells of the Cathedral of St. Sauveur, was Hoagy Carmichael, old gravel-voice himself, croaking "Am I Blue?"

"Stardust," "Penthouse Serenade," "Time On My Hands" "September Song"—they'll ring in your ears everywhere this side of the Iron Curtain and conceivably on the other side, too. We Americans have not succeeded very well in exporting ideas. We are not very well understood anywhere and neither is democracy of capitalism. It has occurred to me that one device for selling our ideas might be the popular song. Let's get Irving Berlin, Cole Porter, Rogers and Hammerstein and the rest of them to wrap up a few American ideas in good popular dance tunes. They'll be sung all over Europe.

• — • — •

The GI's took the jitterburg, which has pretty well passed out of the picture in America to Europe during the war. It's still there, though not just everywhere. At the Vieux Colombier in Montparnasse, where the Sorbonne students hang out, you'll hear some of the best American jazz in the world, and also see some of the most amazing jitterbugging and Big Apple — a dance which has completely died back home. In both cases, the French have formalized the dances. There is less abandon, less improvisation, and more precision and formal movement, though they are still danced at the speed of light.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

X M L M J Q D E P J Z X X D J Q M J L Y Z
X Y D Q S K S W Q Z D L Y — X L. F D E P.

Saturday's Cryptoquote: LIFE IS TO BE FORTIFIED BY MANY FRIENDSHIPS—SMITH.

If you find scum in your washer, even on the final rinse, possibly you are using too much soap in the wash water. Try using a water softener, even in the rinse water.

Shrine Temple Plans Ritual Work June 2

Ali Ghan Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, will hold its spring ceremonial Saturday, June 2, in Hagerstown.

A. Wayne Reed, Westernport, chief rabban, will be in charge of ritualistic work. The degree will be conferred in Hagerstown High School, Potomac Avenue. Candidates will report to the recorder at the high school at 2 p. m. A parade of the uniformed units of the temple, led by the band and drum corps will be held at 4 p. m.

Dinner will be served at 6 p. m. in the school cafeteria and the ceremonial will begin at 8 p. m., with H. Clifford Spiker, director, in charge. Dr. Albert C. Cook will be master of ceremonies.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our son and brother, Donald E. Kight, who passed away one year ago today, May 28, 1950.
A year has passed since God has called
our loved one away,
We've kept his smile within our hearts,
And he is not forgotten for a day.
We often travel to the spot where his
dear body is laid,
For there we knew we were close to him,
And he knows every prayer that is
said,
God bless this saddened home today.
MOTHER, FATHER,
BROTHER & SISTERS

In loving memory of my dear son, Enoch W. Fleek, who left me two years ago, May 27th, 1949.
Dear Enoch, I never will forget
That sad and lonely night
Two years ago.
The shock I received that night
Will always with me stay.
Your smile has gone forever
And your sweet hands I cannot touch;
I never will forget you
As long as God lets me live.
Sadly missed by his mother,
sisters and brother

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our son and brother, Donald E. Kight, who passed away one year ago today, May 28, 1950.
A year has passed since God has called our loved one away,
We've kept his smile within our hearts,
And he is not forgotten for a day.
We often travel to the spot where his dear body is laid,
For there we knew we were close to him,
And he knows every prayer that is said,
God bless this saddened home today.
MOTHER, FATHER,
BROTHER & SISTERS

In loving memory of my dear son, Enoch W. Fleek, who left me two years ago, May 27th, 1949.
Dear Enoch, I never will forget
That sad and lonely night
Two years ago.
The shock I received that night
Will always with me stay.
Your smile has gone forever
And your sweet hands I cannot touch;
I never will forget you
As long as God lets me live.
Sadly missed by his mother, sisters and brother

PAVING CONTRACTORS

Sealed Proposals addressed to the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, and endorsed, "Proposal for Surfacing Roads in Constitution Park" will be received at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Cumberland, Maryland, on or before twelve o'clock noon, E.D.S.T., June 4, 1951, on which date they will be publicly opened and read.

The work consists of the resurfacing of certain roads in Constitution Park with black top paving material, said surface to be one inch thick after compression, together with the necessary tack coat. The bidder is asked to submit separate proposals as follows:

Resurfacing approximately 2,950 square yards—approximately 164 tons, 1" thick after compression, plus necessary tack coat.

Each Proposal must be accompanied by a certified check drawn to the order of the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, Maryland, in the sum of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars, which check will be forfeited as liquidated damages in case an award is made and the contract is not promptly and properly executed. The checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned after the contract is awarded.

The Mayor and City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids or to award all or any part of this work.

Rubber Workers Ratify Contract With Tire Plant

Union Shop Included In Chief Provisions

At a special meeting held yesterday afternoon members of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America ratified a new contract with the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

The membership gave the negotiating committee instructions to sign the agreement upon ratification by the International Union of Rubber Workers.

It is understood that the chief provisions of the pact, which will be effective until March 1, 1953, are a union shop and a change in the vacation clause.

At a NLRB election early this year, the workers of the tire plant voted ten-to-one to authorize the committee to negotiate for a union shop.

Actually, only a handful of the some 1,800 hourly paid workers will be affected by the provision, which requires that workers must join the union within a stipulated time in order to continue employment. They do not, however, have to be union members before they are employed.

The new vacation clause, it is reported, allows workers to schedule vacations two or three weeks at a time, based on a seniority preference, if they so desire. Previously, one week of the vacation had to be taken during a plant shutdown, when vacation shutdowns were scheduled.

Wage issues were not discussed during the current contract talks.

Hail Storms Injure Crops

Considerable damage was caused yesterday afternoon by hail storms which occurred throughout the Twiggtown and Flintstone area. Reports indicate stones large as "marbles" fell for about 10 minutes east of Cumberland although damage was not too great.

Motorists along the Martins Mountain Highway said last night the leaves of trees were beat off and much damage was seen along the route round 4 o'clock.

Hit hardest in the spotty storms were small truck farms, orchards and early plants. Locally the weatherman gave out with intermittent rainfall throughout the day.

Seven Complete Fire Course

Seven members of District 16 Volunteer Fire Company, North Branch, received qualifying cards yesterday evening at a dinner in the fire hall for completion of a Fire School Course sponsored by the Fire Extension, College of Engineering, University of Maryland.

Receiving the cards presented by William A. Wilson, Midland, treasurer of the Maryland Fire Association, were Robert C. Brown, Harold B. Chaney, Chester Delawder, J. W. MacDonald, Norman Twigg, Carl G. Valentine, Delbert R. Valentine.

C. C. Larrimore, senior instructor for the Extension, presented a certificate to the volunteer fire company in recognition of the members completing the course. Cromwell Zembower, instructor, president of LaVale Volunteer Fire Company and vice president of the State Firemen Association, presented each fireman with an official arm insignia denoting successful completion of the course.

Dinner was prepared and served by the Firemen Auxiliary.

Old License Plate Is Discovered

An old Maryland auto license plate, now a collector's item, was discovered last week during excavation work on the flood project on the West Side. The 38-year-old plate, dated 1913, was found by Ed Fort, Brooklyn, N. Y., foreman on the construction job at Paca Street where the discovery was made. Russell Riggs, an auxiliary policeman on duty in the area, said the plate was in an almost perfect state of preservation. On the back of the plate could be read the words "Baltimore Enamel and Novelty Company, Baltimore, Maryland." Riggs then compared the old plate with the present day issue on his car, noting the difference in the numbers. The figures on the old plate were considered high in those days but the present day issues run into far greater figures. The 1913 plate was black with large yellow letters and numbers, probably representative of Maryland's colors, black and orange.

Edward Murray Re-Elected Head VFW District

State Convention Set For June 22

Edward J. Murray, Mt. Savage, a World War II veteran was re-elected commander of District No. 3, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at a meeting yesterday in Henry Hart Post No. 1411, VFW home here.

Named to serve with him are Marion Dorsey, McCoole, junior vice commander; Vernon Crable, Cumberland, senior vice commander; John Neder, Mt. Savage, quartermaster; Russell Reynolds, city, chaplain; Peter Carpenti, Cumberland, judge advocate; and Dr. James P. Hallinan, Cumberland and Mt. Savage, surgeon.

Crable and Carpenti, along with Murray were re-elected to second terms.

Following the election, Frank Webb, state department junior vice commander installed the new officers and refreshments were served.

Murray said last night he has appointed Thomas K. Whalley of the Cumberland post to serve as district adjutant.

Murray congratulated posts of District No. 3, for the record made in 1951 memberships. This district, he explained is the only one of 16 in the state to reach its 100 per cent quota of membership. Compared with last year, the district membership hit the 102 per cent mark yesterday.

There are only 16 districts in the entire United States with a 100 per cent membership thus far this year, and Western Maryland's District No. 3 is one of these.

The district also has another unique membership record for 1951 Murray told the delegates. In each of five divisions, based upon the size of the posts, District No. 3 posts lead the state. Henry Hart Post is first in Division "A". Lonaconing's Alvin C. Neat Post leads Division "B". Old Rail Post, Mt. Savage tops division "C"; Friendsville Post leads Division "D" and Oakland Post heads Division "E".

The state department VFW convention will be held in Ocean City, Md., June 22-24, Murray announced.

Retired Mt. Savage Welder Is Stricken

Joseph P. Dickel, 66, Mt. Savage, was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday morning after suffering a stroke at his home. He is a retired welder of the Western Maryland Railway and was honored last week by members of the Machinists Local here for 42 years of service. Last night his condition was reported as "fair".

Today's Sermonette

If I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am become sounding brass, or clanging symbol. And if I have the gift of prophecy, and know all mysteries and all knowledge; and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing. 1 Cor. 13:1-2.

By REV. O. AFTON LINGER

The Greatest Thing In The World

Rev. Linger

In his famous essay, "The Greatest Thing in the World," Henry Drummond said, "Every one has asked himself the question of antiquity as of the modern world: What is the summum bonum — the supreme good? You have life before you. Once only can you live it. What is the noblest object of desire, the supreme gift to covet? . . . I have taken you, in the chapter which I have just read (1 Cor. 13) to Christianity as its source: and there we have seen, 'The greatest of these is love.'"

In a letter from one whom I consider the greatest Christian I know, J. Rufus Moseley, I received these words, "I saw with new authority that love is life and that we only live as we love, and we love because He is love and loves us and loves all. So it is vital union with Him (Christ) and the continuous receptivity and response to His love and the outgoing of His love that matters. This is the heart of the whole thing. This is what it is all about."

As we face the words of the Scriptures and the testimonies of great Christian men, let us ask ourselves, "Why is love the greatest thing in the world?"

Love is the greatest thing in the world, because God is love.

"Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God . . . He that loveth not knoweth not God: for God is love." (1 Jno. 4:7,8.)

"Love is of God!" So, we would not know love, even human love, if it were not by the mercy and love of God.

Since "God is love" and love is the very essence and nature of God, when we are converted, or come to know God and have the life of God within our hearts, we must have love.

While we seek to know the greatest things in the world through our own powers and superior intelligence, we may well listen to the simple words of the Master again: "I thank Thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that Thou didst hide these things from the wise and understanding and didst reveal them unto babes." (Matt. 11:25 ASV.)

Spiritual life, light, and enlightenment can come by God's way alone. John the beloved disciple said. "Herein was the love of God manifested in us, that God hath sent His only begotten Son into the world that we might live through Him." (1 Jno. 4:9.) Love is the greatest thing in the world because it is of God and is made known through God's revelation to us. God took the first step and the initiative in our salvation. If we have wandered, as prodigals, into the far country of sin, it will be His great love that will follow us. Though we feel that we have assumed the obligation and responsibility, when we say, "I will arise and go to my Father," it is not us, but God, the loving Father, who gives us that impulse. "For," as the Master said, "God sent not His Son into the world to judge the world; but that the world should be saved through Him." (John 3:17.)

Love is the greatest thing in the world, because Jesus said so in His two great commandments.

A lawyer asked the Saviour, "Master, which is the great commandment of the law?" "Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord Thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment." But, "How," we ask, "can we come to know this great love?" Again, it is of God. "We love because the first loved us." When we were born into the world we knew neither love nor hate. We learned to love because the mother who gave us birth loved us. She smiled her love into our faces and we learned love through her love. "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us." (1 John 4:10). In the revealed Scriptures we have a recordd of that love of God. We read it and see what God has done for us and then we understand the statement of the Lord Jesus Christ, as he speaks of the great commandment.

This greatest thing in the world, the love of God, known in the New Testament by the Greek word "agape," has another side to it. Jesus in his answer to the lawyer did not hesitate to give expression to it, when he said: "And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." That no doubt inspired the words of John when he said, "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." (I John, 4-11). And also these words: "If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and His love is perfected in us." (1 Jno. 4:12). Then, climaxing all his statements about love, the "Apostle of Love" said, "If any man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen." (1 Jno. 4:20).

The world has witnessed many things in the lives of those who profess to be followers of Christ. The one thing which has been most conspicuous for its absence has been love. While it was said of the Christians of other days. "See how these Christians love one another!" we have missed the mark in many cases today.

As we near Memorial Day, let us remember that we can honor our dead in no better way than to enlist "for the duration" of our earthly lives in the services of Him who is the King of Love. If we wish to raise memorials, let us lift them in shafts bearing the words of Paul: "Love never fails . . . But now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; and the greatest of these is love."

Legion Outlines Boys State At District Confab

Program Scheduled June 22 To July 3

Annual Boys State program scheduled next month was outlined at a meeting of Mountain District, American Legion, yesterday at Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, Harrison Street.

Russell C. Paupe, department vice commander, will head a committee of three to take charge of the annual affair sponsored by the American Legion. This year's camp will be held at Fort George G. Meade, June 22 through July 3, Paupe said.

Members Named

Other members of the committee are Howard M. Spiker and J. Leslie Clark. Any organization in the district which wishes to sponsor a boy to attend Boys State may do so by securing an application blank from Howard Spiker at Fort Cumberland Post or from any commander of the nine posts in the district, the vice commander noted.

The program has been sponsored each year by the Legion for the past three or four years, Paupe said, and the youths who attend the encampment learn local, state and national government and elect mayor and council, a governor and two senators during the program.

Paupe pointed out that the youths who attend the program must be between 15 and 18 years of age, in junior high school, and physically fit. They should be leaders in their groups, such as camping units, debating teams, athletes and others.

All boys attending Boys State will be covered by insurance and will be provided meals, lodging, medical and dental attention. They will be given "T" shirts and text books during their 10-day stay. All are advised to take along toilet articles and enough school clothing for the trip. Also, athletic equipment and musical instruments may be taken along.

Cost Is Small

District organizations who wish to sponsor a boy to the camp are informed the cost for transportation and the program is about $30 per boy, Paupe said.

Delegates from the nine district posts attended the meeting. Posts in the district are Oakland, Accident, Lonaconing, Midland, Barton, Frostburg, Corriganville and Fort Cumberland and Fulton Myers posts in Cumberland.

News In Brief

The installation of officers of Local 26, United Rubber, Linoleum, Cork and Plastic Workers Union of America, will be held June 2 at the Midland Fire Hall. A dance will follow ceremonies.

W. Kenneth Crowe, Frostburg, was elected second vice president of the Maryland Moose Association yesterday at Salisbury.

The Allegany County Junior Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Martin Weisman will play its debut concert in Allegany High School auditorium Thursday at 8 p. m.

Colored movies of the construction of the ice skating area at Gephart Playground will be shown at a meeting of the playground association tonight at 8 o'clock.

An outdoor festival sponsored by the organizations of St. Mary's Catholic Church will be held June 5 and 6 at the school grounds. Andrew J. Saliga is general chairman.

Miss Eileen Twigg, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Twigg, 409 Laing Avenue, is recovering in Memorial Hospital from a tonsilectomy performed Wednesday.

The Allegany Hospital Aid Society will hold its regular meeting tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Nurses Home, Decatur Street.

Get Duke Degrees

Two Cumberland students are candidates for degrees at Duke University's 99th Commencement, Monday, June 4, at 10:30 in the Indoor Stadium, at Durham, N. C. Noyes T. Powers, (left), son of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Powers, 505 Washington Street, will receive an A. B. degree. Wheeler D. Weber, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Weber, 500 Oldtown Road will receive a B. S. M. E. degree. Powers is a Phi Beta Kappa student and played on the football and baseball teams. He was also on the Dean's list for three years, a member of the Red Friars and president of the senior class, 1950.

Two Local Insurance Men Are Promoted By Company

Two Cumberland men have received promotions in the Baltimore Life Insurance Company with one advancing to the Hagerstown district of the organization and the other taking charge of the local branch office.

George H. Rhea was named manager of the newly formed Hagerstown district of the company which is comprised of branch offices in Cumberland, Frederick and Hagerstown.

Rhea, a member of the local Lions club, assumed his duties in Hagerstown May 14 and will make his residence in the Washington County city where the district main office will be located. He had been manager of the Cumberland office here since July 5, 1949 and prior to that date was staff superintendent for the company in Chambersburg, Pa.

Leo P. Peterson was elevated to the position of staff superintendent of the Cumberland office May 21, taking over the duties formerly handled by Rhea.

Peterson formerly was employed by the Celanese Corporation of America before becoming an agent for the insurance firm here January of last year. Peterson attended St. Mary's school here and recently qualified as a member of the organization's Honor Club for 1950.

Married to the former Rose Marie Kelly and the father of four children, Peterson makes his home at 210 Cumberland Street.

Twin Baby Deer Born To Bambi At Constitution Park

Something new has been added at Constitution Park, and in time for the formal opening Memorial Day.

According to Russell R. Golden, park superintendent, Bambi and Jasper, the park's pair of pet deer, have twins.

The two tiny fawn were born to Bambi Friday, and Jasper, like all proud fathers has been throwing his weight around ever since.

Consistent with the practice and instinct of male deer, Jasper won't let anyone near Bambi or the two little offspring, but yesterday several hundred visitors at the park, stopped by the deer pen to see the new arrivals.

According to Golden, "mother and twins are doing nicely, but Jaspar, for awhile at least, is expected to be quite a problem."

Allegany High Class Sermon Set For June 3

Rev. Seth C. Morrow, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, will deliver the sermon to the graduating class of Allegany High School Sunday, June 3, at 2:30 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Rev. Morrow's sermon will be "The American Dream," and will be the high point of the service, final ceremony for the 1951 graduates prior to commencement exercises.

The service program will begin with the processional "Pomp and Circumstance," by Elgar with Carole Reith at the organ. The class will sing the hymn "God of Our Fathers" by Warren and Rev. Morrow will give the invocation. A responsive reading, Psalm No. 1, will follow and the Allegany High School choir will sing "Open Our Eyes," by Macfarlane.

The Scripture Lesson will be read from Jeremiah 6:6-16 and the Octet will sing "He Is My Savior," by Bach-Sateren, prior to Rev. Morrow's sermon.

Following the sermon the choir will sing "Sing and Rejoice"—James, and the audience will participate with the hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers,"—Hemy-Walton. Rev. Morrow will give the benediction and the recessional "Recessional," by Thorne will be played by Miss Reith at the organ at the conclusion of the program.

One of the touching moments during the program will be when the graduating class surrenders its seats to the junior class who move up as seniors next year.

Allegany High's Commencement exercises will be held at the school auditorium, June 8, at 8 p. m.

Five Injured In Accidents Over Weekend

Two Hitchhikers Hurt At Wright's Crossing

Five persons were injured, none seriously, in a serious of weekend accidents along the county highways. Early yesterday morning two trucks were involved in a mishap at Wright's Crossing. The driver of one truck, whom state police did not identify last night, ran into a milk truck operated by Robert William Flower, Meyersdale, Pa.

Ray Mayhew, about 21, Franklin, Md., a hitchhiker in the dairy truck was taken to Miners Hospital, Frostburg for treatment. Earl Beeman, Midland, a hitchhiker in the other truck was also treated at the hospital and later released.

According to State Police the truck ran into the dairy vehicle and spilled milk and bottles all along the highway. The roof fell in on the unidentified driver and the doors dropped off. The latter driver had no license and last night was still being sought by police.

Two automobiles were involved in an accident last night at Longhill about 6:30 o'clock and considerable damage, police say, was caused to the vehicles. A truck upset on Oldtown Road about 5:30 p. m. yesterday but no one was injured. Police were still investigating.

Automobile Demolished

Mrs. Edith S. Showalter, South George Street, was reported "resting well" at Memorial Hospital last night where she was admitted with facial lacerations early Friday morning. Her husband, James J. Showalter, driver of the car which was demolished in an accident with a tractor-trailer on Route 51 at Spring Gap, sustained a fractured left arm. Calvin C. Larch, Frame, W. Va. driver of the truck was uninjured. Police said the drivers blamed blindness from lights as the cause. Traffic was blocked from 1:40 a. m. until 5:30 a. m. in the $4,000 accident.

Student Injured

In another accident, several Ridgeley High School seniors were involved in an accident along Braddock Road when a car driven by Charles B. Baker, 2 Lyons Street, Ridgeley, W. Va.; struck a guard rail. A coupe driven by Charles D. Shaffer, 419 Fayette Street, ascending the mountain hit the Baker car in the side and struck Ronald Burgess, Virginia Avenue, knocking him over the guard rail. He was taken to Allegany Hospital for injuries but discharged Saturday. Blinding lights were also blamed in this accident.

Walter LeFevre, Ohio, was reported in satisfactory condition at Allegany Hospital last night. He was admitted Saturday night with back injuries sustained when his tractor-trailer jacknifed while ascending Polish Mountain. A tire blew out, LeFevre said, causing the mishap.

Investigating the car-tractor-trailer wreck was State Trooper Charles DeWitt and in investigating the Braddock Road mishap were City Police Officer Joseph Stitcher and J. W. Snyder.

No charges were filed in either accident.

District VFW Groups Elect New Officers

By HUGO FREAR
Managing Editor, Bedford Gazette

BEDFORD, Pa., May 25 (AP) — Young Jim Wise is a big leaguer at heart—and he's ready to go the route.

That's why Jim, the 13-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald (Nick) Wise of Bedford, is in Shriner's Hospital in Philadelphia for a series of three major operations.

Jim loves sports just like his dad, who is president of the Bedford County Baseball League. He's pretty good, too. He pitched for the Lions team in the Little League last summer and was one of its best hurlers.

One-Armed Catch

Jim also plays football. You should have seen him making a one-armed catch of a forward pass and scamper for a touchdown. And he's won his numerals in basketball.

Yes, Jim has the drive and ability and will to win. But Jim also has something which automatically would put most boys his age on the sidelines. Jim has a bad arm.

You don't notice it at first the way the kid scampers around making sensational one-arm catches, or the way he steams a fast ball in from the mound with a stance that is in the pattern of the big leaguers.

JIM WISE

Paralyzed Since Birth

Jim's left arm has been paralyzed since birth. He has to catch and throw a baseball with his one good arm. It's quite a trick—the way he catches the ball, flips the glove down on his wrist then throws the ball to a teammate.

Jim has licked his handicap. He's not only as good as kids his age but better than most. But that doesn't satisfy a fellow who's a big leaguer at heart—and that's Jim's driving ambition in life.

With a good left arm he knows he'll be better. With two good arms he can take part in athletics when the going gets tougher. Jim talked it over with his dad and mother and they talked it over with doctors.

Then came the big chance—to enter Shriner's Hospital. Jim is being sponsored there by two Shriners, Frederick Metzler of Philadelphia and W. Freeland Kendrick, chairman emeritus of the hospital's board.

It will take three operations and Jim will spend his summer vacation in bed. Even then the doctors have told him they can't guarantee a thing. Sometimes these operations work out—sometimes they don't.

"The kid knows the odds," says his auto mechanic father, "and he wants to go ahead. We're grateful he's been given the chance. We can only hope and pray it works out."

Back in his home town of Bedford, a lot of people hope so, too. They know a kid with a big leaguer's heart—and they're pulling for him as he starts out on the long route.

Rubber Workers Ratify Contract With Tire Plant

Union Shop Included In Chief Provisions

At a special meeting held yesterday afternoon members of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America ratified a new contract with the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

The membership gave the negotiating committee instructions to sign the agreement upon ratification by the International Union of Rubber Workers.

It is understood that the chief provisions of the pact, which will be effective until March 1, 1953, are a union shop and a change in the vacation clause.

At a NLRB election early this year, the workers of the tire plant voted ten-to-one to authorize the committee to negotiate for a union shop.

Actually, only a handful of the some 1,800 hourly paid workers will be affected by the provision, which requires that workers must join the union within a stipulated time in order to continue employment. They do not, however, have to be union members before they are employed.

The new vacation clause, it is reported, allows workers to schedule vacations two or three weeks at a time, based on a seniority preference, if they so desire. Previously, one week of the vacation had to be taken during a plant shutdown, when vacation shutdowns were scheduled.

Wage issues were not discussed during the current contract talks.

Hail Storms Injure Crops

Considerable damage was caused yesterday afternoon by hail storms which occurred throughout the Twiggtown and Flintstone area. Reports indicate stones large as "marbles" fell for about 10 minutes east of Cumberland although damage was not too great.

Motorists along the Martins Mountain Highway said last night the leaves of trees were beat off and much damage was seen along the route round 4 o'clock.

Hit hardest in the spotty storms were small truck farms, orchards and early plants. Locally the weatherman gave out with intermittent rainfall throughout the day.

Seven Complete Fire Course

Seven members of District 16 Volunteer Fire Company, North Branch, received qualifying cards yesterday evening at a dinner in the fire hall for completion of a Fire School Course sponsored by the Fire Extension, College of Engineering, University of Maryland.

Receiving the cards presented by William A. Wilson, Midland, treasurer of the Maryland Fire Association, were Robert C. Brown, Harold B. Chaney, Chester Delawder, J. W. MacDonald, Norman Twigg, Carl G. Valentine, Delbert R. Valentine.

C. C. Larrimore, senior instructor for the Extension, presented a certificate to the volunteer fire company in recognition of the members completing the course. Cromwell Zembower, instructor, president of LaVale Volunteer Fire Company and vice president of the State Firemen Association, presented each fireman with an official arm insignia denoting successful completion of the course.

Dinner was prepared and served by the Firemen Auxiliary.

False Alarm Answered

South End Firemen answered a false alarm early yesterday morning, Box 634, corner of Massachusetts Avenue and Oldtown Road was pulled at 5:15 a. m.

Old License Plate Is Discovered

An old Maryland auto license plate, now a collector's item, was discovered last week during excavation work on the flood project on the West Side. The 38-year-old plate, dated 1913, was found by Ed Fort, Brooklyn, N. Y., foreman on the construction job at Paca Street where the discovery was made. Russell Riggs, an auxiliary policeman on duty in the area, said the plate was in an almost perfect state of preservation. On the back of the plate could be read the words "Baltimore Enamel and Novelty Company, Baltimore, Maryland." Riggs then compared the old plate with the present day issue on his car, noting the difference in the numbers. The figures on the old plate were considered high in those days but the present day issues run into far greater figures. The 1913 plate was black with large yellow letters and numbers, probably representative of Maryland's colors, black and orange.

Edward Murray Re-Elected Head VFW District

State Convention Set For June 22

Edward J. Murray, Mt. Savage, a World War II veteran was re-elected commander of District No. 3, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at a meeting yesterday in Henry Hart Post No. 1411, VFW home here.

Named to serve with him are Marion Dorsey, McCoole, junior vice commander; Vernon Crable, Cumberland, senior vice commander; John Neder, Mt. Savage, quartermaster; Russell Reynolds, city, chaplain; Peter Carpenti, Cumberland, judge advocate; and Dr. James P. Hallinan, Cumberland and Mt. Savage, surgeon.

Crable and Carpenti, along with Murray were re-elected to second terms.

Following the election, Frank Webb, state department junior vice commander installed the new officers and refreshments were served.

Murray said last night he has appointed Thomas K. Whalley of the Cumberland post to serve as district adjutant.

Murray congratulated posts of District No. 3, for the record made in 1951 memberships. This district, he explained is the only one of 16 in the state to reach its 100 per cent quota of membership. Compared with last year, the district membership hit the 102 per cent mark yesterday.

There are only 16 districts in the entire United States with a 100 per cent membership thus far this year, and Western Maryland's District No. 3 is one of these.

The district also has another unique membership record for 1951 Murray told the delegates. In each of five divisions, based upon the size of the posts, District No. 3 posts lead the state. Henry Hart Post is first in Division "A". Lonaconing's Alvin C. Neat Post leads Division "B". Old Rail Post, Mt. Savage tops division "C"; Friendsville Post leads Division "D" and Oakland Post heads Division "E".

The state department VFW convention will be held in Ocean City, Md., June 22-24, Murray announced.

Retired Mt. Savage Welder Is Stricken

Joseph P. Dickel, 66, Mt. Savage, was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday morning after suffering a stroke at his home. He is a retired welder of the Western Maryland Railway and was honored last week by members of the Machinists Local here for 42 years of service. Last night his condition was reported as "fair".

Today's Sermonette

If I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am become sounding brass, or clanging symbol. And if I have the gift of prophecy, and know all mysteries and all knowledge; and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I am nothing. 1 Cor. 13:1-2.

By REV. O. AFTON LINGER

The Greatest Thing In The World

Rev. Linger

In his famous essay, "The Greatest Thing in the World," Henry Drummond said, "Every one has asked himself the question of antiquity as of the modern world: What is the summum bonum — the supreme good? You have life before you. Once only can you live it. What is the noblest object of desire, the supreme gift to covet? . . . I have taken you, in the chapter which I have just read (1 Cor. 13) to Christianity as its source: and there we have seen, 'The greatest of these is love.'"

In a letter from one whom I consider the greatest Christian I know, J. Rufus Moseley, I received these words, "I saw with new authority that love is life and that we only live as we love, and we love because He is love and loves us and loves all. So it is vital union with Him (Christ) and the continuous receptivity and response to His love and the outgoing of His love that matters. This is the heart of the whole thing. This is what it is all about."

As we face the words of the Scriptures and the testimonies of great Christian men, let us ask ourselves, "Why is love the greatest thing in the world?"

Love is the greatest thing in the world, because God is love.

"Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God . . . He that loveth not knoweth not God: for God is love." (1 Jno. 4:7,8.)

"Love is of God!" So, we would not know love, even human love, if it were not by the mercy and love of God.

Since "God is love" and love is the very essence and nature of God, when we are converted, or come to know God and have the life of God within our hearts, we must have love.

While we seek to know the greatest things in the world through our own powers and superior intelligence, we may well listen to the simple words of the Master again: "I thank Thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that Thou didst hide these things from the wise and understanding and didst reveal them unto babes." (Matt. 11:25 ASV.)

Spiritual life, light, and enlightenment can come by God's way alone. John the beloved disciple said. "Herein was the love of God manifested in us, that God hath sent His only begotten Son into the world that we might live through Him." (1 Jno. 4:9.) Love is the greatest thing in the world because it is of God and is made known through God's revelation to us. God took the first step and the initiative in our salvation. If we have wandered, as prodigals, into the far country of sin, it will be His great love that will follow us. Though we feel that we have assumed the obligation and responsibility, when we say, "I will arise and go to my Father," it is not us, but God, the loving Father, who gives us that impulse. "For," as the Master said, "God sent not His Son into the world to judge the world; but that the world should be saved through Him." (John 3:17.)

Love is the greatest thing in the world, because Jesus said so in His two great commandments.

A lawyer asked the Saviour, "Master, which is the great commandment of the law?" "Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord Thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment." But, "How," we ask, "can we come to know this great love?" Again, it is of God. "We love because the first loved us." When we were born into the world we knew neither love nor hate. We learned to love because the mother who gave us birth loved us. She smiled her love into our faces and we learned love through her love. "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us." (1 John 4:10). In the revealed Scriptures we have a recordd of that love of God. We read it and see what God has done for us and then we understand the statement of the Lord Jesus Christ, as he speaks of the great commandment.

This greatest thing in the world, the love of God, known in the New Testament by the Greek word "agape," has another side to it. Jesus in his answer to the lawyer did not hesitate to give expression to it, when he said: "And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." That no doubt inspired the words of John when he said, "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." (I John, 4-11). And also these words: "If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and His love is perfected in us." (1 Jno. 4:12). Then, climaxing all his statements about love, the "Apostle of Love" said, "If any man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen." (1 Jno. 4:20).

The world has witnessed many things in the lives of those who profess to be followers of Christ. The one thing which has been most conspicuous for its absence has been love. While it was said of the Christians of other days. "See how these Christians love one another!" we have missed the mark in many cases today.

As we near Memorial Day, let us remember that we can honor our dead in no better way than to enlist "for the duration" of our earthly lives in the services of Him who is the King of Love. If we wish to raise memorials, let us lift them in shafts bearing the words of Paul: "Love never fails . . . But now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; and the greatest of these is love."

Legion Outlines Boys State At District Confab

Program Scheduled June 22 To July 3

Annual Boys State program scheduled next month was outlined at a meeting of Mountain District, American Legion, yesterday at Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, Harrison Street.

Russell C. Paupe, department vice commander, will head a committee of three to take charge of the annual affair sponsored by the American Legion. This year's camp will be held at Fort George G. Meade, June 22 through July 3, Paupe said.

Members Named

Other members of the committee are Howard M. Spiker and J. Leslie Clark. Any organization in the district which wishes to sponsor a boy to attend Boys State may do so by securing an application blank from Howard Spiker at Fort Cumberland Post or from any commander of the nine posts in the district, the vice commander noted.

The program has been sponsored each year by the Legion for the past three or four years, Paupe said, and the youths who attend the encampment learn local, state and national government and elect mayor and council, a governor and two senators during the program.

Paupe pointed out that the youths who attend the program must be between 15 and 18 years of age, in junior high school, and physically fit. They should be leaders in their groups, such as camping units, debating teams, athletes and others.

All boys attending Boys State will be covered by insurance and will be provided meals, lodging, medical and dental attention. They will be given "T" shirts and text books during their 10-day stay. All are advised to take along toilet articles and enough school clothing for the trip. Also, athletic equipment and musical instruments may be taken along.

Cost Is Small

District organizations who wish to sponsor a boy to the camp are informed the cost for transportation and the program is about $30 per boy, Paupe said.

Delegates from the nine district posts attended the meeting. Posts in the district are Oakland, Accident, Lonaconing, Midland, Barton, Frostburg, Corriganville and Fort Cumberland and Fulton Myers posts in Cumberland.

News In Brief

The installation of officers of Local 26, United Rubber, Linoleum, Cork and Plastic Workers Union of America, will be held June 2 at the Midland Fire Hall. A dance will follow ceremonies.

W. Kenneth Crowe, Frostburg, was elected second vice president of the Maryland Moose Association yesterday at Salisbury.

The Allegany County Junior Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Martin Weisman will play its debut concert in Allegany High School auditorium Thursday at 8 p. m.

Colored movies of the construction of the ice skating area at Gephart Playground will be shown at a meeting of the playground association tonight at 8 o'clock.

An outdoor festival sponsored by the organizations of St. Mary's Catholic Church will be held June 5 and 6 at the school grounds. Andrew J. Saliga is general chairman.

Miss Eileen Twigg, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Twigg, 409 Laing Avenue, is recovering in Memorial Hospital from a tonsilectomy performed Wednesday.

The Allegany Hospital Aid Society will hold its regular meeting tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Nurses Home, Decatur Street.

Two Local Insurance Men Are Promoted By Company

Two Cumberland men have received promotions in the Baltimore Life Insurance Company with one advancing to the Hagerstown district of the organization and the other taking charge of the local branch office.

George H. Rhea was named manager of the newly formed Hagerstown district of the company which is comprised of branch offices in Cumberland, Frederick and Hagerstown.

Rhea, a member of the local Lions club, assumed his duties in Hagerstown May 14 and will make his residence in the Washington County city where the district main office will be located. He had been manager of the Cumberland office here since July 5, 1949 and prior to that date was staff superintendent for the company in Chambersburg, Pa.

Leo P. Peterson was elevated to the position of staff superintendent of the Cumberland office May 21, taking over the duties formerly handled by Rhea.

Peterson formerly was employed by the Celanese Corporation of America before becoming an agent for the insurance firm here January of last year. Peterson attended St. Mary's school here and recently qualified as a member of the organization's Honor Club for 1950.

Married to the former Rose Marie Kelly and the father of four children, Peterson makes his home at 210 Cumberland Street.

Twin Baby Deer Born To Bambi At Constitution Park

Something new has been added at Constitution Park, and in time for the formal opening Memorial Day.

According to Russell R. Golden, park superintendent, Bambi and Jasper, the park's pair of pet deer, have twins.

The two tiny fawn were born to Bambi Friday, and Jasper, like all proud fathers has been throwing his weight around ever since.

Consistent with the practice and instinct of male deer, Jasper won't let anyone near Bambi or the two little offspring, but yesterday several hundred visitors at the park, stopped by the deer pen to see the new arrivals.

According to Golden, "mother and twins are doing nicely, but Jaspar, for awhile at least, is expected to be quite a problem."

Allegany High Class Sermon Set For June 3

Rev. Seth C. Morrow, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, will deliver the sermon to the graduating class of Allegany High School Sunday, June 3, at 2:30 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Rev. Morrow's sermon will be "The American Dream," and will be the high point of the service, final ceremony for the 1951 graduates prior to commencement exercises.

The service program will begin with the processional "Pomp and Circumstance," by Elgar with Carole Reith at the organ. The class will sing the hymn "God of Our Fathers" by Warren and Rev. Morrow will give the invocation. A responsive reading, Psalm No. 1, will follow and the Allegany High School choir will sing "Open Our Eyes," by Macfarlane.

The Scripture Lesson will be read from Jeremiah 6:6-16 and the Octet will sing "He Is My Savior," by Bach-Sateren, prior to Rev. Morrow's sermon.

Following the sermon the choir will sing "Sing and Rejoice"—James, and the audience will participate with the hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers,"—Hemy-Walton. Rev. Morrow will give the benediction and the recessional "Recessional," by Thorne will be played by Miss Reith at the organ at the conclusion of the program.

One of the touching moments during the program will be when the graduating class surrenders its seats to the junior class who move up as seniors next year.

Allegany High's Commencement exercises will be held at the school auditorium, June 8, at 8 p. m.

District VFW Groups Elect New Officers

Grace Cross To Head Women's Auxiliaries

District No. 3, Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliaries elected officers at the annual encampment yesterday at Alvin C. Neat Post, Lonaconing.

Grace Cross, Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Cumberland, was elected president, succeeding retiring president, Jennie Smith of Lonaconing.

Other officers named were Vera Nave, John Fairgrieve Post, Frostburg, senior vice president; Iris Stowell, Old Rail Post, Mt. Savage, junior vice president; Rosalie Everstine, Cumberland, treasurer; M. Bayton, Queen's Point Post, McCoole, chaplain; Nellie Hotchkiss, Mt. Savage, conductress; and J. Risler, William D. Byron Post, Hagerstown, guard.

The first official act of the newly-elected president was to appoint Mary Moore, Cumberland, secretary; Dellene Norris, Cumberland, patriotic instructress; Chloe Reynolds, Cumberland, musician; Grace Bosenberg, Cumberland, publicity chairman; R. About 60 delegates from seven posts were present at the election and installation of officers.

Liquor Violation Hearing Set

A hearing has been set for this morning at Police Court involving violation of City Ordinance Chapter 10, Section 1. F. W. Bierman, 13 Harrison Street, was taken into custody yesterday afternoon for the unlawful sale of intoxicating beverages.

Five Injured In Accidents Over Weekend

Two Hitchhikers Hurt At Wright's Crossing

Five persons were injured, none seriously, in a serious of weekend accidents along the county highways. Early yesterday morning two trucks were involved in a mishap at Wright's Crossing. The driver of one truck, whom state police did not identify last night, ran into a milk truck operated by Robert William Flower, Meyersdale, Pa.

Ray Mayhew, about 21, Franklin, Md., a hitchhiker in the dairy truck was taken to Miners Hospital, Frostburg for treatment. Earl Beeman, Midland, a hitchhiker in the other truck was also treated at the hospital and later released.

According to State Police the truck ran into the dairy vehicle and spilled milk and bottles all along the highway. The roof fell in on the unidentified driver and the doors dropped off. The latter driver had no license and last night was still being sought by police.

Two automobiles were involved in an accident last night at Longhill about 6:30 o'clock and considerable damage, police say, was caused to the vehicles. A truck upset on Oldtown Road about 5:30 p. m. yesterday but no one was injured. Police were still investigating.

Automobile Demolished

Mrs. Edith S. Showalter, South George Street, was reported "resting well" at Memorial Hospital last night where she was admitted with facial lacerations early Friday morning. Her husband, James J. Showalter, driver of the car which was demolished in an accident with a tractor-trailer on Route 51 at Spring Gap, sustained a fractured left arm. Calvin C. Larch, Frame, W. Va. driver of the truck was uninjured. Police said the drivers blamed blindness from lights as the cause. Traffic was blocked from 1:40 a. m. until 5:30 a. m. in the $4,000 accident.

Student Injured

In another accident, several Ridgeley High School seniors were involved in an accident along Braddock Road when a car driven by Charles B. Baker, 2 Lyons Street, Ridgeley, W. Va.; struck a guard rail. A coupe driven by Charles D. Shaffer, 419 Fayette Street, ascending the mountain hit the Baker car in the side and struck Ronald Burgess, Virginia Avenue, knocking him over the guard rail. He was taken to Allegany Hospital for injuries but discharged Saturday. Blinding lights were also blamed in this accident.

Walter LeFevre, Ohio, was reported in satisfactory condition at Allegany Hospital last night. He was admitted Saturday night with back injuries sustained when his tractor-trailer jacknifed while ascending Polish Mountain. A tire blew out, LeFevre said, causing the mishap.

Investigating the car-tractor-trailer wreck was State Trooper Charles DeWitt and in investigating the Braddock Road mishap were City Police Officer Joseph Stitcher and J. W. Snyder.

No charges were filed in either accident.

By HUGO FREAR
Managing Editor, Bedford Gazette

BEDFORD, Pa., May 25 (AP) — Young Jim Wise is a big leaguer at heart—and he's ready to go the route.

That's why Jim, the 13-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald (Nick) Wise of Bedford, is in Shriner's Hospital in Philadelphia for a series of three major operations.

Jim loves sports just like his dad, who is president of the Bedford County Baseball League. He's pretty good, too. He pitched for the Lions team in the Little League last summer and was one of its best hurlers.

One-Armed Catch

Jim also plays football. You should have seen him making a one-armed catch of a forward pass and scamper for a touchdown. And he's won his numerals in basketball.

Yes, Jim has the drive and ability and will to win. But Jim also has something which automatically would put most boys his age on the sidelines. Jim has a bad arm.

You don't notice it at first the way the kid scampers around making sensational one-arm catches, or the way he steams a fast ball in from the mound with a stance that is in the pattern of the big leaguers.

JIM WISE

Paralyzed Since Birth

Jim's left arm has been paralyzed since birth. He has to catch and throw a baseball with his one good arm. It's quite a trick—the way he catches the ball, flips the glove down on his wrist then throws the ball to a teammate.

Jim has licked his handicap. He's not only as good as kids his age but better than most. But that doesn't satisfy a fellow who's a big leaguer at heart—and that's Jim's driving ambition in life.

With a good left arm he knows he'll be better. With two good arms he can take part in athletics when the going gets tougher. Jim talked it over with his dad and mother and they talked it over with doctors.

Then came the big chance—to enter Shriner's Hospital. Jim is being sponsored there by two Shriners, Frederick Metzler of Philadelphia and W. Freeland Kendrick, chairman emeritus of the hospital's board.

It will take three operations and Jim will spend his summer vacation in bed. Even then the doctors have told him they can't guarantee a thing. Sometimes these operations work out—sometimes they don't.

"The kid knows the odds," says his auto mechanic father, "and he wants to go ahead. We're grateful he's been given the chance. We can only hope and pray it works out."

Back in his home town of Bedford, a lot of people hope so, too. They know a kid with a big leaguer's heart—and they're pulling for him as he starts out on the long route.
